Other nontariff measures	Yes.	The following imports are subject to licensing for the purpose of consumer protection and to ensure compliance with domestic standards: dual-purpose goods and technologies, ammunition, military equipment, and special compounds for the manufacture thereof; explosive substances; nuclear products and technology; medicine, equipment for the manufacture of medicine, and medical equipment; chemicals; cultures for developing microorganisms; and stupefying or psychotropic materials and compounds for their derivation or production, tabaco, ethyl alcohol, petrol, diesel and/or liquefied gas at filling stations. At the same time, the following imports are subject to authorization: dual-purpose goods and technologies, the import of wild animals and plants, substances that destroy the ozone layer, products and equipment containing such substances, drugs, narcotic, psychotropic substances and precursors, tobacco products manufacturing equipment. Sugar imports are also subject to authorization to monitor the volume of imports from countries that have signed FTAs with Moldova and are not members of the WTO (for example, Belarus) in conformity with Government Decision No. 134 of February 10, 2009. Effective August 15, 2023, by the Government Decision No. 594, licensees from the Transnistrian region must pay a license cost and present some documents for obtaining a license. Previously, the license applicants from the Transnistrian region were exempted from paying the license cost and presenting the documents.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The Republic of Moldova applies two types of tariffs: on an MFN Clause rate (non-preferential tariffs) and preferential tariffs applied within signed FTAs. Law Approving the Combined Nomenclature of Goods (No. 172 of July 25, 2014) stipulates all tariffs applied on a non-preferential basis, on an MFN rate. For WTO members, importation of sugar is performed on the basis of the first-in first-out principle and within the limits of tariff quotas, in conformity with Government Decision No. 114 of February 22, 2012. Sugar imports from EU members are based on a system for administration of tariff quotas that relies on the first-in first-out principle, under the registration in SIIV ASYCUDA World of the customs declaration. The Republic of Moldova also applies preferential tariff rate quotas within FTAs, particularly within Deep and Comprehensive FTA (DCFTA) with EU, Turkey and with the United Kingdom of the Great Britain and Northern Ireland. Integrated Customs Tariff of the Republic of Moldova (TARIM) contains all applied tariffs of the Republic of Moldova (including preferential trade agreements with EU, CIS countries, CEFTA states, Turkey, United Kingdom of the Great Britain, and Northern Ireland), as well as VAT and excise duty. Fees for customs procedures and customs duties are not charged on imports of domestic currency and foreign currency in cash to the Republic of Moldova by commercial banks and the NBM. Effective August 15, 2023, by the Government Decision No. 594, licensees from the Transnistrian region must pay a license cost and present some documents for obtaining a license. Previously, the license applicants from the Transnistrian region were exempted from paying the license cost and presenting the documents.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Regulation, capital transactions do not require NBM approval, except as specified by law. NBM approval is required for certain capital transactions of residents that imply capital outflow. The authorization regime does not generally apply to (1) capital foreign exchange operations involving the MOF and the NBM, (2) capital foreign exchange operations with national public budget funds, and (3) foreign exchange operations related to guarantees as laid down in Article 4 Paragraph 12 of the Law No. 184 of July 22, 2016, on financial collateral arrangements. Operations involving receipt by residents from nonresidents of certain categories of loans and credits and(As of July 20, 2023, guarantees are no longer subject to notification to the NBM. Amendments made by Law No. 363 of December 29, 2022, on Amending of the certain normative acts)must be notified by residents to the NBM for statistical purposes. When amount of a loan/credit from nonresident does not exceed €510,000 or its equivalent, it is not (As of July 20, 2023, the amount of the mentioned loan or credit, subject to notification to the NBM. Foreign exchange operations related to guarantees as laid down in Article 4, Item 12 of the Law No. 184 of July 22, 2016, on financial collateral arrangements are, was decreased to €10,000 from €50,000. Amendments made by Law No. 363 of December 29, 2022, on Amending of the certain normative acts) or its equivalent, it is not subject to notification to the NBM. The NBM approval for capital transactions of residents that imply capital outflow does not generally apply to foreign exchange operations not exceeding EUR 10,000 (or their equivalent). Capital foreign exchange transactions are subject, among other requirements, to submission of supporting documents to the licensed bank and to resident nonbank payment service providers, except as specified under NBM regulations. To make such payments, foreign currency may be purchased from licensed banks and resident nonbank payment service providers.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds received by resident legal entities from capital transactions must be repatriated to Moldova unless a specific exemption has been granted by law. Law No. 1466 of January 29, 1998, on Regulation of Repatriation of Funds, Goods, and Services Obtained from External Economic Transactions regulates the repatriation of proceeds by resident legal entities in Moldova. The repatriation requirement within a maximum of three years applies to capital transactions. The provisions of Article 3 Paragraph (1) Item (d) of the Law No. 1466 of January 29, 1998, should be applied to capital transactions. Thus, in the case of capital transactions, the repatriation must be carried out within no more than three years from the date of the emergence of the right to collect the funds as a result of the external economic transaction. The repatriation period depends on the type of contract as specified in Article 3 “Deadlines of repatriation of funds, goods, and services originating from foreign economic transactions.”

		investor may purchase government securities of a single international securities identification number (ISIN) according to the purchase limit of government securities, if it is announced in Communiqué of government securities placement. A noncompetitive bid submitted by an investor for government securities may not exceed more than 3% of the indicative volume of the issue announced at the reference auction, under a single ISIN.
On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.	According to the Law on the NCFM in case of violations in the securities market, to protect the rights of investors and the public, the NCFM may suspend the placement and circulation of securities admitted on the regulated market, outside regulated market, or multilateral trading facility (MTF), as well as clearing and settlement of transactions. According to the amendments to the Law on Capital Market regarding information disclosure, if the shareholder has acquired or alienated the voting shares of an issuer considered a public interest entity, the shareholder is required to inform the issuer and the NCFM within four working days of acquisition or alienation, if, after the transaction, the share reaches, exceeds, or falls below 5%, 10%, 15%, 20%, 25%, 33%, 50%, 66%, 75%, or 90%. The company must disclose information about its activity in accordance with this law, the Capital Market Law, and the normative acts of the NCFM. Therewith, an issuer that is considered to be a public interest entity will disclose publicly the information. The number of shares granting control over the company must be determined by the conditions for exercising control in the situations established by the capital market legislation. The natural or legal person that holds, directly or indirectly, alone or together with the persons acting in concert with it, more than 50% of the voting shares, which are in the circulation of the company or of the securities that can be converted or offer the right to purchase the voting shares, is obliged to carry out a mandatory takeover bid within three months from the date of making subscriptions (in the register of shareholders) regarding acquisition of shares. Up to the fulfillment of the requirements mentioned above, the person holding more than 50% has the right to vote at the general meeting of the shareholders within 25% of the voting shares, which are in the circulation of the company. The total number of voting shares belonging to this person must be taken into account only for the establishment of the quorum at the holding of the general meeting of the shareholders. The person holding more than 50% and/or its representatives is registered with the entire stock of securities held. The takeover bid may be initiated only in respect of securities issued by public interest entities. A mandatory takeover bid can be carried out by: (1) a natural or legal person who holds, directly or indirectly, alone or together with persons acting in concert, more than 50% of the voting rights of a company or transferable securities or offers the right to purchase the securities with the right to vote, is obliged to make a takeover bid regarding the purchase at a fair price of securities of the same class held by other persons; (2) a legal person who directly or indirectly owns more than 50% of all the voting securities of an issuer must be obliged to initiate a mandatory takeover bid whenever its founders change (associations or shareholders) who, together with the persons with whom they act in concert, hold a majority of the voting rights in that legal person. The takeover bid is voluntary if the bidder, failing this obligation, submits a takeover bid related to the purchase of a number of voting securities of an issuer that pursues or aims to obtain more than 50% of the total number of these securities. A takeover bid prospectus is approved by the NCFM and must be published within seven working days. A minority shareholder, who obtained the shares against patrimonial vouchers or its legal successor, may require the acquisition of its shares by a person who alone or with affiliates owns more than 90% of the total number of voting shares. The price offered for the shares of minority shareholders must equal at least the highest of the following: (1) the weighted average share price in transactions over the 12 months preceding the date of notification of the application, (2) the per share NAV in accordance with the issuer's latest financial position, (3) the per share market value of net assets, calculated by the censors committee on the basis of the valuation report drawn up by a specialized organization which is not a related party of the company, or (4) the nominal (set) value of shares. The majority shareholder, within 30 working days of receipt of the application, must notify the minority shareholder of the fixed price according to the criteria mentioned above. Payment for the shares by the majority shareholder may take place with the consent of the minority shareholder at a price in accordance with the application within 30 working days of acceptance of the price. The stock exchange must disclose the following information for securities admitted on the regulated market or an MTF: (1) date and time of the transaction, (2) class and government registration number of the securities traded, (3) price per security, (4) type of transaction, and (5) amount and share of securities in the transaction of the respective class. Insiders may purchase and sell securities of the issuer if information that could influence the securities price is disclosed before the purchase and the price are established according to the securities market law. The Regulation on licensing and authorization on the capital market set requirements for granting, suspending, and withdrawing licenses and authorizations on the capital market according to the EU Directives. It stipulates new requirements for equity capital, internal policies, internal control, entity's management, technical audit for registrars, approval of delegated agents and accepted persons, evaluation procedure of qualified holdings in the investment firm, market operator, and central depository (NCFM Decision No. 56/11). In a transaction with financial instruments admitted on a regulated market, outside regulated market, or an MTF, investment firms must disclose information on the volume, price, and data of these transactions. For transactions in financial instruments admitted to trading outside regulated markets or MTFs, reports must be submitted to the NCFM no later than one working day after the transaction as prescribed by the NCFM. Licensed/authorized entities must also disclose other information on their activity according to the law. Reports on events and actions affecting the financial and economic activities of the issuer must be published by the issuer in accordance with the normative acts. The Rules of the regulated market of the Moldova Stock Exchange were approved by NCFM Decision No. 23/3 of May 8, 2015, published in the Official Gazette No. 115-123/758 of May 15, 2015. The rules stipulate the requirements for admission of issuers and members on the regulated market and trading rules in equity and debt instruments. The Instruction on reporting of licensed and authorized entities on the capital market was approved by NCFM Decision No. 38/5 of July 3, 2015. The Instruction on reporting provides requirements on the reporting method and conditions for legal entities authorized and licensed to provide services on the capital market. It includes provisions regarding the conditions for information disclosure and principles to which the reports should comply.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The acquisition by the bank of any qualifying holding in a foreign entity is subject to the prior approval of the NBM if, as a result of the acquisition, the entity must be included in the scope of prudential consolidation. The total net MDL exposure of a bank indexed to foreign currency to individuals, including those engaged in entrepreneurial or other activities, may not exceed 30% of eligible capital, of which total net exposure, other than mortgages, may not exceed 10% of eligible capital of banks. Residents of jurisdictions that do not implement international transparency standards may not hold directly or indirectly equity shares in the capital of banks. The mechanism for setting up a branch of a foreign bank provides for requirements related to licensing, endowment capital (which have to be the same amount as the capital that a bank must maintain) and conditions for carrying out the activity. To overcome the difficult period in the context of the negative economic consequences generated by COVID-19, the Executive Board of the NBM adopted the following decisions: -Decision No. 69 of March 17, 2020 “on certain measures concerning the classification of loans to individuals” (that includes individuals carrying out entrepreneurial activities) as of March 20, 2020, until July 31, 2020; -Decision No. 81 of March 27, 2020 “on certain measures concerning the classification by banks of loans granted to legal persons” as of April 2, 2020, until June 30, 2020. The mentioned Decisions allowed banks to manage flexibly the payment obligations of individuals, including individuals carrying out entrepreneurial activities and legal entities, which, are in difficulty to pay their loans under the conditions of state of emergency generated by COVID-19. Strengthening the financial stability of the nonbank lending sector and fostering consumer protection and responsible lending practices to reduce the risks of over-indebtedness of the population and bring into line the laws related to the activity of nonbank lending organizations has led to performing the following amendments to the law: (1) prohibiting nonbank credit organizations (NBCOs) to call for any deposits and other reimbursable funds from public since April 20, 2020. However, this prohibition does not apply to subordinated loans; (2) limiting the total costs of the nonbank credit or financial leasing for a period of up to two years and in the amount of up to 50 thousand lei (for individual consumers), that should not exceed the amount disbursed according to the respective contract, since April 20, 2020; (3) regulating the responsible credit, including the conditions and the way of evaluating the client’s ability to repay the nonbank credit and/or financial leasing, the degree of collateral coverage, criteria related to the debt service ratio to the debtor’s income, since April 20, 2020; (4) the introduction and significant increase of pecuniary sanctions on NBCOs, so that they are effective, proportionate, and dissuasive, since April 20, 2020; increasing the minimum capital requirements up to 1 million lei since January 1, 2021; (5) introducing additional instruments to ensure the transparency of credit costs by the NBCOs obligation to disclose information according to legislation, since April 20, 2020.

Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Notification to the NBM is required for (1) financial loans and credits, except for (a) interbank loans with an initial repayment period of less than one year and (b) loans and credits received from nonresidents through credit cards issued by nonresidents at a resident’s request; (2) commercial loans and credits bearing interest, except for factoring operations in which the nonresident factor assumes the risk for the nonresident debtor’s insolvency; and (3) loans/credits within operations related to direct investments. However, notification to the NBM is not required if the amount of a loan/credit does not exceed €10,000 (Effective July 20, 2023, the amount of the mentioned loan or credit, subject to notification to the NBM, was decreased to €10,000 from €50,000. Amendments made by Law No. 363 of December 29, 2022, on Amending of the certain normative acts.) (or its equivalent). Licensed savings and credit associations (SCAs) may not perform activity abroad or in foreign currency. With regard to the activity of NBCOs, there are no restrictions.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Licensed banks may open accounts abroad on their name with nonresident banks, necessary for carrying out activities under the license issued by the NBM, without the NBM approval. Under the foreign exchange legislation, NBCOs may open accounts with nonresident banks abroad with the NBM approval.

Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	The NBM approval is not required for financial loans or credits granted by licensed banks to nonresidents. The NBM approval is not required for commercial loans or credits provided by licensed banks to nonresidents.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Licensed banks may grant foreign currency loans to residents as follows: (1) for payments and transfers with nonresidents, (2) for purposes provided for in the credit agreements concluded between the Moldovan government and nonresidents and between licensed banks and international financial organizations, (3) to licensed banks, (4) to resident legal entities involved in exports of goods (including leased assets) and services against financial means in foreign currency, (5) to legal entities engaged in insurance and nonbank lending activity, and (6) for the purpose of payment credits received from licensed banks, pursuant to Items (1)–(5). Effective July 20, 2023, Law No. 363/2022 (amending the Law No. 62/2008 on foreign exchange regulation) extended the right of licensed banks to grant foreign currency loans to residents by allowing to grant foreign currency loans for the purpose of repaying all foreign currency loans obtained from licensed banks.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Securities denominated in foreign exchange are not issued in Moldova.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banking regulations do not provide for separate accounts in foreign exchange; banks, however, perform separate accounting for each currency.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Banks keep their required reserves separately in Moldovan lei and foreign currencies (in US dollar and euro). The reserve base for required reserves in MDL consists of liabilities in MDL and nonconvertible currencies, while the reserve base for required reserves in foreign currency consists of liabilities in freely convertible currencies. A required reserves ratio (RRR) of 0% applies to banks' liabilities with a contractual maturity higher than two years that fall under certain criteria. During 2022, to counter persistent inflationary pressures, the CB increased RRR. Effective May 16, 2022, the RRR for foreign currency was increased from 30% to 33% and the RRR for domestic currency from 28% to 30%. Effective June 16, 2022, the RRR for foreign currency was increased from 33% to 36% and the RRR for domestic currency from 30% to 32%. Effective July 16, 2022, the RRR for foreign currency was increased from 36% to 39% and the RRR for domestic currency from 32% to 34%. Effective August 16, 2022, the RRR for foreign currency was increased from 39% to 42% and the RRR for domestic currency from 34% to 37%. Effective September 16, 2022, the RRR for foreign currency was increased from 42% to 45% and the RRR for domestic currency from 37% to 40%. Considering the shift in inflationary expectations toward the end of 2022, the CB started to decrease RRR in domestic currency. The RRR in foreign currency was kept stable, leading to a widening gap between RRRs. Effective December 16, 2022, the RRR for domestic currency was decreased from 40% to 37%. Effective January 16, 2023, the RRR for domestic currency was decreased from 37% to

Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Banks must ensure that the currency denomination of their liquid assets is consistent with the distribution by currency of their net liquidity outflows. However, where appropriate, the NBM may require banks to restrict currency mismatch by setting limits on the proportion of net liquidity outflows in a currency that can be met during a stress period by holding liquid assets not denominated in that currency. According to Item 15 of Regulation No. 44/2020 on requirements of LCR for banks, banks must report liquidity buffer, liquidity inflows, and liquidity outflows when aggregate liabilities in a currency other than Moldovan lei amounting to or exceeding 5% of the bank's or the single liquidity sub-group's total liabilities.

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Mongolia is the Mongolian togrog.
Other legal tender	No.
Exchange rate structure
Unitary
Dual
Multiple	Yes.	The exchange rate structure is classified as multiple because the official exchange rate may differ from the market rate by more than 2%, and a multiple-price auction was introduced without a formal mechanism to prevent a spread exceeding 2% of effective rates between the winning bids. Since the inception of the auction, however, winning bids have never deviated by more than 2%. To eliminate the risk of accepted bids deviating by more than 2%, in addition to multiple-price auction, the BOM (Bank of Mongolia) introduced a single-price auction, from October 1, 2015, that is, where all accepted offers are fulfilled at a single cutoff rate. If a bank's bid rate is deemed too different from the market rate, the BOM will decline the bid. In the foreign currency online trading platform, banks are not allowed to enter bids that differ by more than 2% from the prevailing exchange market rate. When banks submit their bids on the platform, it prevents them from entering bids that deviate significantly from the market rate, which applies to all trades including auctions and bilateral trades.

Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The BOM reserves the right to intervene in the foreign exchange market. To ensure the togrog's exchange rate flexibility with macroeconomic fundamentals, BOM intervenes through the auction in the foreign exchange market to mitigate the supply–demand gap. BOM's intervention in the foreign exchange market through auction has increased in 2023 compared to 2022. In the first quarter of 2023, the order from banks has decreased by 1.5 times from previous year. As of June 30, 2023, Mongolia's imports have risen by 8% to US$4.27 billion, exports have increased by 43% to US$7.5 billion from previous year, and Balance of Payment (BOP) showed a surplus of US$394 million. As of June 30, 2023, the exchange rate of MNT against USD depreciated by 0.35% to 3432.66 from the start of the year. Also, compared to June 30, 2022, the exchange rate depreciated by 9.5%. Since March 2022, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar with two realignments, one in May 2022 and a second one in September 2022, each within a 6-month period. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from stabilized, effective March 3, 2022. The intervention data is published on the Bank of Mongolia's website right after the intervention.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BOM's closing rate—togrog against US dollar—is calculated as the sum of weighted purchase and sale rates multiplied by total purchase and sale volume percentages, respectively. Purchase and sale volumes are based on transactions between 3:30 p.m. of the previous day and 3:30 p.m. of the current day reported by banks by 4:10 p.m. every business day. The closing reference rate is announced by 5:40 p.m. everyday once it is cleared by the director of the Reserve Management and Financial Markets Department at the BOM. Calculation of reference rates of togrogs against all other foreign currencies is based on rates in international markets between 3:30 p.m. and 4:10 p.m. of the current day. The reference rate is used in accounting, customs valuation, and government transactions with the BOM. For accounting purposes, the daily reference rate is the BOM's closing rate on the previous day. The reference rate is announced each weekday except national holidays.

Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	The BOM has officially implemented IT framework since 2013, introduced the concept of Inflation targeting framework, and published the Monetary Policy Guidelines of 2014. Between 2012 and 2016, when quasi-fiscal spending increased largely and the BOM became more involved, the implementation faced challenges. The BOM has consistently committed to implementing the IT framework.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	According to the Law on Central bank, the BOM's mandate is to formulate the Monetary Policy Guideline for the upcoming year, which includes the inflation targets for the medium term, and submit it to the Parliament before October 1 each year. The Parliament approves the target, the inflation target is publicly announced, and the BOM is committed to accomplishing the target. As a core decision-making body, the Monetary Policy Board was established in October 2012. This organization changed its board structure into a committee, known as the MPC, in May 2018 to enable a collective decision-making process regarding monetary policy. The MPC consists of 7 members, including the BOM Governor, the First Deputy Governor, the Deputy Governor, and four external members. The annual schedule of MPC meetings is disclosed in January of each year and these meetings are held at least 4 times a year. The MPC meetings follow a structured two-day format. On the first day, the MPC members engage in technical presentations that cover recent developments and the outlook of the economic, banking and financial sectors. The second day is dedicated to decision-making, based on the assessment of baseline forecasts, along with alternative scenarios. The monetary policy decisions are primarily guided by the deviation of the medium-term inflation forecast from the target, which is broadly based on the assessment of current and expected economic, monetary, and financial condition.

Domestic exchanges	Yes.	The Law on Virtual Asset Service Provider (VASP) became effective February 25, 2022. Article 6 of the Law on VASP defines a VASP as a legal entity conducting the following activities or operations for or on behalf of natural or legal persons: (1) Exchange between virtual assets and fiat currencies; (2) exchange between one or more forms of virtual assets; (3) transfer of virtual assets; (4) safekeeping and/or administration of virtual assets or instruments enabling control over virtual assets; and (5) participation in and provision of financial services related to an issuer's offer and/or sale of a virtual asset. Only legal entities may provide virtual asset services in Mongolia. Legal entities aiming to provide services defined in Article 6.1 must be registered with the Financial Regulatory Commission (FRC) according to Section 10. The FRC will decide whether to register within six months after receiving the request and the complete documents that meet requirements specified in Article 10.1 of the law. VASPs must meet all the requirements set out in Article 7 and other requirements set by the Financial Regulatory Commission prior to starting their operations and while providing services. Article 7.1 of the Law on VASPs sets out the requirements for applying for registration as a VASP. The Chairman of the Financial Regulatory Commission established a working group on November 25, 2021, by Order No. 314 with the purpose of developing the necessary regulations and requirements specified in Article 10.9.1 of the VASP: Regulation on VASP registration; Regulation on VASP activities: Governance, operation and reports; Regulation on registration of auditing operations for VASPs and requirements for audit entities; Regulation on standards for VASP professional associations; Regulation on VASP fitness and propriety; Regulation on restriction and suspension of VASP activities; Regulation on offsite and onsite supervision in VASPs; Share capital and capital equity for VASPs. VASPs are responsible for attracting funds only in the form of IEOs when organizing the offering and sale of virtual assets to the public.

Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Import licensing procedures are maintained for various reasons including protection of national security, human, animal, or plant life or health, and to meet commitments under international conventions to which Montenegro is a signatory, for example, the CITES. As of the end of 2023, these requirements covered approximately 4.341 ten-digit HS tariff items, or 43.11% of all tariff lines, comprising explosives, headgears, optical instruments, pharmaceutical products, insecticides, contact lenses, uranium, and apparatus based on the use of X-rays or alpha, beta, or gamma radiation.
Positive list	No.	There is no positive list. An estimated 96.4% of all tariff items may be imported freely. Goods not included on the control list (negative list) may be imported and exported freely.
Negative list	Yes.	Negative list (prohibitions or restrictions). Montenegro prohibits a few imports, mainly to protect health, safety, security, the environment, and natural resources. Imports of radioactive waste and trade in nuclear materials are prohibited. No other import prohibitions are in place. Regarding the importation of used products, certain technical requirements must be met. The import of hazardous waste is prohibited. Import of nonhazardous waste for disposal and use as fuel or otherwise for energy production is prohibited. It is forbidden to add radioactive substances to food, drinking water, medicines, tobacco and tobacco products, toys, jewelry, cosmetics, personal hygiene products, building materials, animal feed, ores, metal products of primary form, mineral raw materials and consumer goods, as well as import, export and marketing of such products. Waste tires can only be imported for processing, on the basis of an approval or an import license issued by the Environmental Protection Agency, and provided their import does not endanger the environment or human health.

Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.	Export and import quotas have been eliminated in Serbia and Montenegro, in accordance with an agreement between the two republics for harmonizing their trade, customs, and indirect tax regimes. According to the Law on Road Traffic Safety ("Official Gazette of Montenegro" (OGM) No. 33/12, 58/14, 14/17, and 66/19) motor vehicles and trailers that are imported, or being placed on the Montenegrin market for the first time, as well as their parts, devices, and equipment, according to their construction and safety characteristics, must be in compliance with technical requirements and conditions. Vehicle homologation is carried out at the request of the legal or physical person who imports the vehicle, that is, the vehicle manufacturer registered in Montenegro. The rulebook on technical requirements for vehicles that are imported or put on the market for the first time in Montenegro (OGM, No. 05/15, 63/18, and 10/19) stipulates that the homologation procedure is carried out for new and used vehicles that are imported, that is, put on the market for the first time in Montenegro, before the procedure of importing and registering vehicles in Montenegro.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The Law on Customs Tariff (OGM No. 28/12) stipulates customs duty that has to be paid for imports of goods. The rate does not exceed 50%. The average applied tariff rate for 2022 is 5.43% calculated by customs rates set out in the Decree on Customs Tariffs for 2022 (OGM No. 142/21). Montenegro applies only tariff-rate (preferential) quotas under its Regional Trade Agreements. They currently affect imports of 149 agricultural products from the EU in line with the Stabilization and Association Agreement (for example, poultry meat, fish, cheese, water, and wine), as well as the application of tariff quotas under the FTA with Turkey. Effective October 14, 2022, tariff quotas up to 100 tons are allocated by the Customs Administration on a "first come, first served" basis, while over 100 tons are distributed by the Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Water Management in accordance with the Rulebook on the Procedure and Conditions for the Distribution of Preferential Customs Quotas for Agricultural Imports. products (the Rules were published in the "Official Gazette of Montenegro", No. 2/2019, 116/2021, and 115/2022.).

Without quotas	Yes.	Nonautomatic export licenses are required for the following commodities: drugs, medicines, blood and pharmaceutical products, precious metals, explosives, arms, military equipment, dual-use goods, and goods which may be used for the execution of a death penalty and whose application may be subject to torture and national art treasures. To (1) preserve the stability of the supply of raw materials to the processing sector, (2) ensure the stability of the population of the northern part of Montenegro who use wood for heating, (3) preserve the stability of the prices of fuel, and (4) control the preservation of the forest fund, combat illegal harvesting, and control the implementation of the cutting in line with the cutting plan, Montenegro has in place a licensing regime for export of raw wood and certain wood products. The scope of the licensing regime consists of a total of 30 tariff lines that are restricted (OGM No. 43/20123). Effective April 29, 2023, the validity of the licensing regime for exports of raw wood and certain products was extended until May 1, 2025. The Decision on Temporary Limitation of Export of Certain Wood Articles published in the “OGM,” No. 43/2021 of April 23, 2022, entered into force May 1, 2021, and applied until May 1, 2023, with the same content, without additional restrictions or measures. In addition to the shortage of firewood and logs on the Montenegrin market, there was also a significant increase in prices, which in the case of firewood had an impact on the standard of the most vulnerable social groups of the population, especially in rural areas. In this situation, the Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Water Management was forced to initiate the introduction of a temporary measure to control the export of wood assortments as a raw material basis for the wood industry, and to protect the firewood market as one of the most important household items, especially in rural areas. The measure in question has a limited duration of two years, with the fact that in the meantime the development of the situation on the Montenegrin market would be monitored and, if necessary, appropriate measures would be taken. The implementation of the decision in question is expected to eliminate market disturbances in terms of price stabilization and market supply.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Article 27 of the Law on Investment Funds prescribes the following: (1) Open-end funds may invest no more than (a) 10% of assets in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by the same entity and (b) 20% of assets in deposits with the same subject. (2) Exposure of open-end funds to counterparty risk in OTC derivatives transactions may not exceed (a) 10% of assets if the counterparty is a credit institution referred to in the Article 25, Paragraph 1, Item 4, of the law and (b) 5% of assets in other cases. (3) The total value of transferable securities and money market instruments held by open-end funds in issuers in which more than 5% of assets are invested may not exceed 40% of total assets. (4) The limitation referred to in Paragraph 3 of this article does not apply to deposits or transactions in OTC derivatives with financial institutions subject to prudential supervision. (5) Notwithstanding the limits referred to in Paragraph 1 of this article, open-end funds may not, if it would cause investment of more than 20% of assets in the same company, combine (a) investments in transferable securities or money market instruments issued by such company; (b) deposits with the respective company; and (c) exposures arising from transactions in OTC derivatives in which the respective company is involved. (6) Notwithstanding Paragraph 1 of this article, open-end funds may invest no more than 35% of assets in transferable securities or money market instruments of the same company, if transferable securities or money market instruments are issued or guaranteed by the state, the local government, or an international organization. (7) Notwithstanding Paragraph 1 of this article, open-end funds may invest no more than 25% of assets in bonds, if bonds are issued by a credit institution with a registered office in an EU member state that is under the supervision of the relevant authority for the purpose of protection of bondholders. For bonds issued by foreign institutions not registered in an EU member state, the 10% limit indicated in Item 1 applies. (8) Funds raised by issuing bonds referred to in Paragraph 7 of this article must be invested in assets that until the maturity of the bond may back claims on bonds, and

(9) If an open-end fund invests more than 5% of its assets in bonds referred to in Paragraph 7 of this article issued by the same entity, the total value of these investments may not exceed 80% of open-end fund assets. (10) If an open-end fund invests more than 5% of its assets in transferable securities and money market instruments in accordance with Paragraphs 6 and 7 of this article, those transferable securities are not taken into account when applying limits specified in Paragraph 2 of this article. (11) Investments in transferable securities and money market instruments issued by the same entity, or in deposits or derivative instruments issued by the same entity, which are carried out in accordance with Paragraphs 1–8 of this article, may not together exceed 35% of the open-end fund's assets. (12) Companies in the same group as the group that keeps the consolidated accounts in accordance with recognized IAS are considered to be a single company for the purpose of calculating limits referred to in this article. Open-end funds may cumulatively invest no more than 20% of assets in transferable securities and money market instruments within the same group. Article 81, Paragraph 1, Items 4 and 5, of the Law on Investment Funds prescribes allowable investments of a closed-end investment fund as follows: (1) deposits with authorized banks in Montenegro or in another country, provided they are subject to supervision and limitations equivalent to supervision and limitations established by the regulations, maturing within no more than 12 months and withdrawable at any time; (2) forwards and options and other financial derivatives traded on an organized market, provided they are based on financial investment instruments, financial indices, interest rates, exchange rates, or currencies in which the fund is permitted to invest according to its prospectus and articles of association; business activities agreed on in other organized markets and concluded with institutions subject to supervision of the appropriate authority in Montenegro or in an EU member state, subject to reliable and verifiable daily valuation and sellable at any time, and that may be liquidated or completed by settlement at their fair value at the request of the fund. Such instruments may be used solely to reduce or limit risk or increase yields and reduce costs of the fund without increasing the risk—that is, that they should not change the investment strategy, objectives, or limitations defined by this law and the prospectus and/or articles of association of the fund. The fund's prospectus must provide for investment in these instruments and the purpose for which they may be used (protection against the risk and/or to achieve the investment objectives of the fund) and indicate that risk evaluation of these instruments has been provided. Article 62, Paragraph 2, of the Law on Investment Funds prescribes that an investment fund for investment in initial capital may not invest more than 20% of its net assets in any other company.

Controls on crypto exchanges and trading platforms	No.
Domestic exchanges	No.	While there is no regulation which prohibits crypto exchanges and trading platforms explicitly, there are several provisions in the Law on the Prevention of Money-Laundering and Financing of Terrorism and the Guidelines for Risk Analysis that put limits on such transactions in Montenegrin financial institutions. Most notably, banks in Montenegro have defined in their internal acts the prohibition of establishing a business relationship with a client whose activity is related to the purchase and sale of cryptocurrencies, that is if trading in cryptocurrencies is identified subsequently, the business relationship will be terminated. Any domestic crypto exchange would be established illegally as there is no licensing regime established. The presence of such institutions would be reported to the Police Administration.
Access to crypto exchange/trading platform by residents	No.	There is a minor number of transactions executed through the SWIFT system, which are related to the existence of accounts on exchange/trading platforms. These transactions are additionally checked before their execution by the AML team (for example, some banks monitor and stop these transactions even in case of the smallest amounts), which then gives additional approval as to whether the transaction can be carried out. Most banks refuse to execute these transactions, that is they do not want the origin of the funds to be linked to previous cryptocurrency earnings.

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions, authorization from the Foreign Exchange Office (FEO) is required to conduct financial transactions with resident or nonresident individuals or entities with suspected links to international terrorism.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Morocco maintains restrictions against certain countries pursuant to UNSC resolutions. The negative lists of persons with suspected links to international terrorism organizations drawn up by the UN and/or similar institutions are taken into consideration. They do not benefit from any money transfer authorizations and remain under permanent surveillance.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Morocco is the Moroccan dirham. Commemorative gold coins with a face value of DH 250 and DH 500 and commemorative silver coins with a face value of DH 50, DH 100, DH 150, and DH 200 are also legal tender.

Pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands	Yes.	Bank Al-Maghrib (BAM) is implementing exchange rate policy in connection with the exchange regime and guidelines established by the government, subject to the opinion of the bank (Article 11 of the Law establishing the Charter of the BAM). The exchange system is a pegged exchange rate within horizontal bands calculated based on a basket of currencies, comprised since April 2015 of the euro and the US dollar, weighted, respectively, at 60% and 40%. The limit exchange rates for the fluctuation band around the central rate of the basket have been (+) and (−) 5% since March 2020.
Other managed arrangement
Floating
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The dirham has been pegged since 1973 to a basket of currencies reflecting Morocco's foreign exchange structure with the rest of the world. The composition of this basket is subject to adjustment. Since April 2015, the basket has been composed of the euro and the US dollar, with weights of 60% and 40%, respectively. The BAM sets the central dirham/US dollar exchange rate, as well as the limits for the exchange rate fluctuation bands around the central rate at +/−5%. However, the BAM may establish limits for the exchange rate bands against another currency. Based on its published methodology, the BAM establishes daily reference exchange rates for the dirham based on quotes listed by banks with market maker status as outlined in the BAM's Circular.
Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar
Euro
Composite	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis a composite comprising the euro and the US dollar. Within the framework of an exchange rate fixed to a currency composite, the BAM adopted a monetary policy framework in 2006 based on various inflation indicators, with the overnight interest rate as its operational target to pursue its main objective of price stability. On March 22, 2016, the BAM lowered the reference interest rate to 2.25%. Since April 2015, the basket has been composed of the euro and the US dollar, with weights of 60% and 40%, respectively.

Exchange tax	Yes.	Banks charge a 1‰ (1 per mil) commission on foreign exchange transactions for dirhams with customers, as well as with foreign banks. This commission is not charged on transactions between Moroccan banks. For banknote transactions with foreign banks, the commission is not charged.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market was established in 1996.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Banks must adhere to the band rates set by the BAM when performing spot market foreign exchange transactions in exchange for dirhams, referred to in Articles 2 and 4 of the Decision of the Governor of the BAM on how to apply the exchange rate regime. The exchange rate band in relation to the central rate is set at +/−5%.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		The FEO's Foreign Exchange Policy Statement defines spot foreign exchange transactions as follows: (1) the purchase and sale of foreign currencies against dirhams by banks, between themselves, with the BAM, or with their customers and (2) the purchase and sale of foreign currencies against other foreign currencies by banks, between themselves, with customers, with foreign banks, or with the BAM. Banks are authorized to carry out, either on their own account or on behalf of their customers, spot foreign exchange transactions, hedging transactions, loan-borrowing transactions in accordance with the 2022 General Instructions on Foreign Exchange Operations, and to establish foreign exchange positions, in accordance with the procedures laid down by the BAM. Amounts repatriated and not paid into the foreign currency accounts referred to in the provisions of the foreign exchange regulations in force must be transferred under market conditions and in accordance with the procedures laid down by the BAM regarding the applicable exchange rates within three working days of receipt of the funds by the bank. The equivalent in dirhams must be immediately made available to the beneficiary by the bank that received the funds. For foreign exchange transfers, licensed banks and exchange bureaus freely determine their bid-ask spread within the fluctuation band of +/−5% around the central rate of the band established by the BAM. Banks charge a 0.1% commission on foreign exchange transactions for dirhams with customers, as well as with foreign banks. This commission is not charged on transactions between Moroccan banks. For banknote transactions with foreign banks, the commission is not charged. Banks are authorized to buy and sell foreign currency among themselves and with customers and to maintain foreign exchange positions on terms established by the BAM. Purchase, sale, and arbitrage operations among banks or on behalf of their clients may be denominated in any currency traded in the foreign exchange market. Banks may conduct foreign currency buying and selling operations with foreign banks and the BAM for any currency traded in the foreign exchange market. The BAM reserves the right not to list certain currencies even if they are traded in the foreign exchange market. Currencies not listed by the BAM may be traded by banks among themselves or with their foreign correspondents. There were 15 financial institutions active on the foreign exchange market as of December 31, 2022.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BAM intervenes in the exchange rate market, on its own initiative, via buy or sell currency auctions in exchange for dirhams. The BAM sets (1) the currency for its interventions on the exchange rate market and (2) the terms of eligibility for auctions. It may also intervene using other instruments, such as OTC currency sales or purchases in exchange for dirhams, currency loans or borrowings, and foreign exchange swaps against the dirham.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.	The BAM does not redistribute foreign exchange inflows to transactors, nor does it verify transactions in advance when dealing with commercial banks.
Auction	Yes.	The BAM organizes on its own initiative auctions to buy or sell US dollars in exchange for dirhams on an electronic platform. It may also organize auctions for other currencies. Only banks with market maker status are authorized to participate in the currency auctions. The first auction took place January 15, 2018. Before each session, the BAM uses the auction platform to publish its contribution pages on Reuters, Bloomberg, and its website, with the press release setting out the characteristics of the following call for tenders: session date; purchase or sale; currency; amount; opening time; closing time; and value date. Bids must comply with the following conditions: The minimum amount per bid is US$500,000; the amount of the bid must be a multiple of 500,000; each bid may be divided, at most, into 3 tranches of a multiple of 500,000; the amount per bid must not exceed the amount of the auction announced by the BAM. The BAM sets and publishes the fluctuation band, in relation to the central exchange rate, which it uses as a basis for operating on the foreign exchange market. To that end, it sets a minimum and maximum exchange rate for each auction. Bidders may modify or cancel their bids until the auction closing time. At the closing time of the auction session, the bids submitted to the BAM are deemed firm and irrevocable. The BAM publishes the overall results of the auction on its website as well as on its contribution pages on Reuters and Bloomberg. The sanctions that apply in case of default of the auction participants: The BAM reserves the right to suspend access for banks having status as market makers in foreign exchange auctions when they fail to comply with the rules in connection with this status to which they are subject under the circular from the BAM. The BAM may also decide to withdraw market maker status from a bank when it no longer meets the conditions for which the status of market maker was granted, and despite warnings issued by the BAM, the bank engages in actions that may adversely affect the proper functioning of the foreign exchange market. Auction participants are not required to finance specific international transactions with the currencies obtained at the auction.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank market participants are primarily market makers, the number of which was nine banks as of December 31, 2022. Banks that have status of market makers must comply daily, among themselves, with firm reciprocal buying and selling price obligations on the USD/MAD parity. Banks having market maker status may freely engage in foreign exchange operations with other Moroccan and foreign banks in compliance with current regulations. As of December 31, 2022, 15 banks were participating in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	Banks, OTC traders, and sub-delegates authorized by the FEO may conduct OTC transactions, in accordance with the General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations. (1) Banks, foreign exchange bureaus, and payment institutions, licensed for this purpose by the FEO, may engage in trading involving foreign banknotes and traveler's checks with customers. Only credit institutions with the status of authorized intermediary may negotiate with customers LCs, bank checks, and money orders. These institutions may also engage in currency trading involving foreign banknotes with Moroccans and foreign nationals holding foreign exchange accounts. For OTC foreign exchange operations, licensed intermediary banks may (a) buy or sell foreign currency banknotes, travelers' checks, LCs, bank checks, and money orders with their customers and (b) repurchase nonresidents' dirhams at the end of their stay in Morocco from previously surrendered foreign currency. The FEO permits exchange bureaus and payment institutions it has authorized to conduct OTC operations to buy and sell foreign banknotes and travelers' checks with their customers as allowed by foreign exchange regulations. Foreign exchange bureaus and payment institutions authorized to conduct OTC transactions may buy, in exchange for domestic currency, foreign banknotes and/or foreign-currency-denominated travelers' checks and sell for cash, in exchange for domestic currency, foreign banknotes and traveler's checks, as part of the allowance for personal travel, missions, and internships abroad by personnel of central and local governments and of public institutions and enterprises. Payment institutions are also permitted to grant electronic trade allowances to individuals.

Foreign exchange bureaus may hold cash equivalent to DH 500,000. For exchange bureaus in airport duty-free (hors douane) departure lounges or bonded arrival areas, the cash limit is set at the equivalent of DH 600,000. Foreign exchange bureaus must deal with a licensed intermediary bank or the BAM to transfer their surplus holdings and cash travelers' checks. Certain establishments – other than licensed bank intermediaries, exchange bureaus, and payment institutions – may also be authorized by the FEO to purchase foreign banknotes and/or traveler's checks for dirhams on behalf of a licensed bank intermediary they have freely chosen. These authorizations are known as sub-delegations and the beneficiaries as sub-delegates. Such establishments are classified as hotels, guesthouses, tourism residences, youth hostels, international passenger carriers, travel agencies, and car rental firms with offices at ports and airports, and casinos authorized by the relevant authorities.

Sub-delegates may engage, for the account of an authorized intermediary, in operations involving the purchase of foreign banknotes or negotiation of traveler's checks with customers.

(2) Authorized intermediaries, foreign exchange bureaus, and payment institutions may deal in foreign banknotes, traveler's checks, LCs, bank checks, and money orders in foreign exchange with their customers up to the limits allowed by the limit rates applied by the BAM at the central rate of plus 7.5% for sales and minus 7.5% for purchases. The BAM sets the OTC fluctuation band exchange rate limits for the dirham against other currencies.

Sub-delegates engage in the transactions referred to in Article 1(3) of the BAM Circular on OTC transactions at the exchange rates agreed on with the authorized intermediary on whose behalf they are dealing. Rates applied to OTC exchange transactions are net, inclusive of all charges and commissions.

Foreign exchange bureaus and payment institutions must go to a credit institution with the status of authorized intermediary trade in foreign banknotes and cash traveler's checks.

These operations are carried out on the terms and conditions agreed on between the parties.

As of December 31, 2022, there were 655 exchange bureaus authorized by the FEO exclusively to engage in OTC foreign exchange operations.

It may postpone setting the OTC band rate limit of one or more currencies in the event of a major event affecting them.

When performing OTC foreign exchange transactions, banks must apply exchange rates that fall within the band rate limits referred to in Article 8 of the Decision of the Governor of the BAM on how to apply the exchange rate regime. The BAM informs banks of the exchange rates of listed currencies against the US dollar applicable to the foreign banknote transactions it carries out with them at the time of publication of the rate limits.

Regarding OTC foreign exchange transactions between the BAM and banks, the settlement of foreign banknote transactions initiated by banks with the BAM is carried out by hedging in foreign currency with their foreign correspondent banks. These transactions involve only the banknotes of listed foreign banks and result in the payment of 1% commission, before tax, to the BAM.

Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	Banks with market maker status must meet the following requirements: (1) Provide continuous buy/sell trading quotes of USD/MAD on the spot market listed on Reuters and Bloomberg, with updates every 15 seconds; (2) provide firm buy/sell spot market quotes for USD/MAD on the trading platform for at least 6 banks with market maker status within the limits of their daily requirements; (3) provide simultaneous and identical quotes on the trading platform and on Reuters and Bloomberg contribution pages; (4) provide quotes for a minimum of US$1,000,000 with a maximum bid-ask spread of 50 basis points (bps) within the limits of the daily requirement; (5) provide reciprocal daily commitments vis-à-vis relevant market makers in terms of amounts and spread; (6) perform all trades relating to the reciprocal quote commitments on the trading platform; and (7) perform all other operations not relating to reciprocal commitments on the Bloomberg or Reuters platform.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks may perform the following hedging operations against the following risks on behalf of their customers or for their own proprietary purposes, in compliance with the foreign exchange regulations in effect: (1) hedging operations against foreign exchange rate risk for foreign currencies against dirhams and foreign currencies against other foreign currencies; (2) hedging operations against interest rate risk; (3) hedging operations against the risk of commodity fluctuations taken out by Moroccan legal entities with banks or foreign broker-dealers on an organized international market; commodities include mining, energy, and agricultural products, as well as timber, coal, silver, and other precious metals; and (4) hedging transactions against any risk inherent in any asset or debt. Banks are required to ensure that the unwinding of hedging transactions does not exceed the settlement periods of the current or underlying capital transaction provided for in the commercial or financial contracts concluded in this context. Operators may undertake hedging operations with justification that the outcome has been secured rather than the initiation of the hedge agreement for imports and exports of goods. This option of signing hedging agreements for imports and exports may be executed within the limit of 25% of the average value of imports carried out during the last three fiscal years and 100% of the average export turnover for the past three fiscal years. Hedging transactions, carried out by banks with their customers, must be covered by a contract in the framework of the International Swaps and Derivatives Association (ISDA), the French Banking Federation (FBF), or the European Market Infrastructure Regulation (EMIR). Hedging transactions – foreign exchange transactions against dirhams – carried out with customers are subject to foreign exchange commissions in accordance with current regulations. Articles 140 and 143 of the 2020 General Instruction from the FEO on Foreign Exchange Operations on hedging operations specifies the terms and conditions of hedging operations with regard to the above-mentioned risks, which must be related to actual commercial or financial operations when the hedge relates to a current or capital transaction linked to the activity of the company (which must have been in business for at least three years) and when the amount to be hedged does not exceed the amount of the transaction and the settlement does not exceed the settlement deadlines. These provisions are intended to prevent speculative transactions in the foreign exchange market. Banks may offer their customers a combination of instruments as part of the same hedging operation. Hedging transactions may also result in the unwinding of positions arising from such transactions. In addition, hedging the stock of imported commodities may cover exported/imported products as well as imported and stored products. For hedging against any risk inherent in any asset or debt, banks may conclude these transactions only on a proprietary basis or on behalf of certain institutional entities – credit institutions and similar entities, insurance companies, and collective investment funds (organismes de placement collectif en titrisation). Institutional investors were also allowed to cover capital transactions, such as investments made abroad by UCITS or insurance companies.

Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Transactions between Morocco and foreign countries – regardless of the type – must be settled in foreign currencies quoted by the BAM or in convertible dirhams.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	As a general rule, settlement of current transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. However, importers of services are authorized to use dirhams on the national territory to settle transactions for import services rendered in Morocco by nonresident natural persons. "Special" accounts denominated in dirhams may be opened in the name of nonresident foreign natural or legal persons in the cases and conditions set out in the 2022 General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations. Current transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency. Any foreign exchange transaction not specifically defined remains subject to the authorization of the Exchange Office.
For capital transactions	Yes.	As a general rule, settlement of capital transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. Capital transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency. Any foreign exchange transaction not specifically defined remains subject to the authorization of the Exchange Office.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	As a general rule, settlement of capital transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. Capital transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	As a general rule, settlement of capital transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. Capital transactions within the national territory may only be settled in the national currency.
Credit operations	Yes.	As a general rule, settlement of the credit transactions between residents and nonresidents must be made in currencies listed by the BAM. However, banks are allowed to grant loans in national currency to nonresidents: (1) loans in dirhams granted by banks to nonresident foreign individuals and Moroccans residing abroad, intended to finance the acquisition and/or development of real estate in Morocco; (2) consumer loans granted in dirhams by banks to foreign personnel working for diplomatic representations accredited in Morocco or international organizations based or represented in Morocco; and (3) credit lines and facilities granted to branches registered with the FEO as part of the execution of contracts in Morocco, the remuneration of which is denominated entirely in dirhams. Credit transactions within the national territory may only be settled in national currency.

Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Transactions among residents in Morocco must be denominated and settled in domestic currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A regional payments arrangement among the CBs of Algeria, Libya, Mauritania, Morocco, and Tunisia governs payment operations among those countries. Economic operators may settle their transactions either within the framework of these arrangements or by following normal procedures. Payments between Morocco and AMU countries may be made either under the unified bilateral payments agreement concluded between AMU countries or through the banking system. Payments between Morocco and the AMU countries and all related documents must be denominated either in one of the currencies of the two countries involved in the transaction or in a currency that is jointly quoted by the two countries.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Foreign exchange controls are overseen by the FEO (Office des Changes) and the Administration of Customs and Indirect Taxes, both under the MOF. The Office has delegated the execution of the main exchange regulation measures to authorized banks. Foreign exchange controls involve verifying that all foreign exchange transactions are conducted in accordance with the regulations in effect.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may purchase, hold, and sell gold coins in Morocco for numismatic or investment purposes. Ten different types of foreign gold coins are traded on the Casablanca Stock Exchange, which does not, however, deal in gold bars. Any individual or legal entity wishing to operate as a manufacturer or merchant of items made of platinum, gold, or silver is required to file a declaration with the customs precious metal warranty office, eight days prior to the date on which the establishment opens or commences operation (Article 4 of Dahir No. 1-77-340 and Article 91 of Minister of Finance arrêté 1309-77). This application must include the following supporting documents: (1) a copy certified as true to the original from the register of commerce and (2) a certificate of registration in the business license tax rolls (rôle des patentes), prepared for the year during which the declaration is prepared. Items made from platinum, gold, or silver, except for those articles weighing one gram or less, imported into or manufactured in Morocco, must be presented to the customs precious metal warranty offices to undergo assay and, if necessary, to be covered with hallmarks indicating warranty (Article 44 of Dahir No. 1-77-340). The items thus presented may not have a fineness of less than the following minimum amounts: (1) for platinum items: 950 per mille; (2) for gold items: 750 per mille; and (3) for silver items: 800 per mille. Manufacturers and merchants (including itinerant traders) of platinum, gold, or silver items are required to keep a register signed and initialed by the chief of the customs precious metal warranty office with local jurisdiction, in which register they must enter the type, number, weight, and fineness of the articles made of these materials which they are purchasing, selling, or receiving to repair, and they must do so on a daily basis and at the very time when these items are bought, sold, or brought in (Articles 93 and 94(2) of the Minister of Finance arrêté).

On external trade	Yes.	Imports of gold are subject to authorization from the Administration of Customs and Indirect Taxes. The MOF fixes a quota annually for the importation of gold ingots. The quota is allocated among jewelers and industrial users of precious metals. Exports of gold are also regulated.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Exports of domestic banknotes are subject to authorization. However, authorized intermediary banks or operators established in industrial acceleration zones may export dirham-denominated banknotes to industrial acceleration zones with an export declaration. The dirhams must be drawn from convertible dirham accounts of operators in the export zone and used solely for payments to residents for the following expenditures: wages and other wage-earner remuneration up to any amount and transportation, repairs, work, and supplies of products from the territory covered up to DH 5,000 an operation and subject to an annual ceiling of DH 150,000 an operator. Travelers may export up to DH 2,000 in dirham banknotes. Authorized intermediary banks may set up foreign exchange counters on sea ferries operating between Morocco and other countries. The rules governing such foreign exchange counters (1) allow banks to bring aboard the ferry, under customs control, a stock of dirham banknotes for each crossing, and (2) limit such transactions at these counters to the purchase of foreign banknotes against dirhams from Moroccan citizens and foreign residents or nonresidents traveling to Morocco. Stocks of dirham banknotes for such counters must be brought aboard the ferry under customs control. For this purpose, the bank must execute with customs a dirham export declaration at the time of the ferry's departure.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Foreign and Moroccan nonresidents may export foreign-currency-denominated means of payment previously imported or debited from their foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts. Nonresident individuals (foreigners and Moroccans residing abroad) are not required to show a declaration to Customs filled out on entering the territory or a foreign currency receipt when, at the end of their stay, they resell remaining dirhams from previous exchange transactions to foreign exchange bureaus, payment institutions authorized to conduct OTC exchange transactions, and authorized intermediary banks situated at ports or airports, up to DH 2,000 a passport. Residents may also export foreign banknotes within the limits specified in the foreign exchange regulations (for example, for travel allowances). Nonresident individuals are authorized, when leaving Morocco, to export previously imported foreign-currency-denominated means of payment in accordance with the foreign exchange regulations currently in force. Moroccan nationals residing abroad may repurchase and export 100% of the foreign exchange previously repatriated and transferred on the foreign exchange market up to a maximum of DH 100,000, excluding the foreign currency credited to their convertible dirham accounts.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	The importation of domestic banknotes is subject to authorization. Travelers are, however, authorized to import up to DH 2,000 in dirham banknotes.
Foreign currency	No.	Nonresident travelers may bring in unlimited amounts of foreign banknotes, traveler's checks, and other means of payment denominated in foreign exchange, including negotiable bearer instruments. The term "negotiable bearer instruments" means monetary bearer instruments such as traveler's checks; negotiable instruments (especially checks, promissory notes, and money orders) that are either payable to the bearer or freely endorsable or made out to a fictitious beneficiary or in any form that permits a transfer by simple remittance; and incomplete instruments (especially checks, promissory notes, and money orders) that are signed but do not indicate the beneficiary. Resident travelers may also import unlimited amounts of foreign banknotes, but must surrender them for dirhams within 30 days of their return to Morocco. Imports of foreign banknotes must be declared at customs offices when the amount to be imported exceeds the equivalent of DH 100,000. Imports of foreign currency banknotes less than the equivalent of DH 100,000 may be covered, if desired, by a written declaration filed with customs on entering Morocco.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	The foreign exchange accounts permitted are: (1) foreign exchange accounts in the name of exporters of goods and services; (2) "international trade" foreign exchange accounts; (3) "foreign exchange insurance" accounts; (4) foreign exchange accounts for reinsurance in foreign exchange; (5) foreign exchange accounts in the name of reinsurance brokers; (6) "business travel allowance" foreign exchange accounts; (7) foreign exchange accounts for hedging operations against the risk of price fluctuation; (8) foreign exchange accounts in the name of resident foreign nationals (natural or legal persons); (9) foreign exchange accounts in the name of corporations established in industrial acceleration zones or offshore financial centers located in Morocco; (10) foreign exchange accounts for investment transactions abroad of Collective Capital Investment Organizations (Organisme de Placement Collectif en Capital – OPCC), UCITS, and Collective

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Real Estate Investment Funds (Organismes de Placement Collectif Immobilier – OPCI);
(11) foreign exchange accounts for investment abroad of insurance or reinsurance companies;
(12) foreign exchange accounts in the name of service exporters bidding for or holding contracts awarded as part of foreign tenders;
(13) foreign exchange accounts in the name of Moroccan resident individuals, not listed in the trade register, with foreign-source income;
(14) foreign exchange accounts in the name of Moroccan nationals who had resided abroad and have transferred their tax residence to Morocco.
Two types of accounts may be opened:
(1) Foreign resident individuals and foreign firms may open foreign exchange accounts in Moroccan banks without limitation.
These accounts may be credited with:
(a) transfers from abroad;
(b) payments by any foreign-exchange-denominated means of payment (for example, banknotes and traveler's checks);
(c) Transfers of foreign banknotes by the account holder must be justified by an original signed import declaration from the border customs offices or a foreign currency receipt or any other document, dated within one month, justifying the origin of the foreign currency;
(d) foreign currency withdrawals from Moroccan banks in accordance with the foreign exchange regulations in force;
(e) remuneration and reimbursements arising from capital operations carried out by account holders;
(f) effective January 3, 2022, retirement pensions repatriated by foreigners residing in Morocco directly into ordinary dirham accounts opened in their names, for the past 12 months, on presentation to the bank of a copy of the corresponding pension form.
These accounts may be debited for transfers abroad or for the surrender of foreign currency for dirhams for all domestic settlements. There are no restrictions on interest payments on these accounts, on transfers between foreign exchange accounts, or on transfers between foreign exchange accounts and convertible dirham accounts. Authorized banks may issue international credit cards to holders of these accounts. Overdrafts on these accounts are not permitted.
(2) Moroccan exporters of goods and services (including fishing companies) may open foreign exchange accounts and deposit up to 70% of the repatriated foreign exchange receipts from exports. The portion that Moroccan exporters of goods in the aeronautics and space industries may hold is 85% of export earnings in convertible dirham or foreign exchange accounts. The accounts may be credited in full or in part at the discretion of the exporter. In the case of a partial credit, the remaining amount may subsequently be credited to the account within a maximum period of one year from the date the foreign exchange was sold on the foreign exchange market.
Convertible dirham accounts may be credited with:
(a) amounts from other foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts belonging to the same holder;
(b) funds debited from foreign exchange accounts and sold on the foreign exchange market;
(c) funds withdrawn from convertible dirham accounts for payment of expenses in Morocco. These funds may be credited to exporters' accounts within a period of one year of the date on which they were withdrawn. The accounts may also be credited with foreign banknotes withdrawn for professional travel purposes and not used, provided the account is credited within 30 days of the date foreign currency was withdrawn for travel that did not take place or for travel that did take place within 30 days of entry into Morocco.

Exporters' foreign exchange accounts may be debited:
(a)for foreign exchange expenses related to the account holder's professional activity;
(b) to credit another foreign exchange or convertible dirham account in the name of the same account holder;
(c) to sell foreign exchange in the foreign exchange market;
(d) for cost of travel organized by travel agencies for residents. The costs of ground services abroad and transport costs payable in foreign currency may be deducted from the funds available in the account on presentation of the supporting documents required by the General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations.
Holders of these accounts may obtain international credit cards from authorized banks. Overdrafts are not permitted in foreign exchange accounts.
Authorized banks may open foreign exchange accounts for foreign placement operations for insurance and reinsurance companies, UCITS, and OPCCs, and make transfers related to foreign deposit, investment, and placement operations. Effective January 3, 2022, banks may open foreign exchange accounts for investment transactions abroad on behalf of OPCIs.
They may also open foreign exchange accounts to allow traders to improve their management of international trade operations while avoiding exchange rate fluctuations and commissions and fees related to sales and repurchases of foreign currency.
Authorized intermediary banks may open, on behalf of nonexporter individuals or firms, foreign exchange accounts to facilitate use of annual allowances in their favor under exchange regulations currently in force.
Banks are authorized to open, on behalf of companies that do not have a foreign currency account – micro-credit associations, associations recognized as being of public utility, cooperatives and professional federations as well as individuals engaged in professional activity – and who benefit from a business travel allowance, a foreign currency or convertible dirham account for "business travel allowance" for the purpose of receiving the allowance.
These accounts may record on the credit side up to 100% of the allowances related to business travel. Such accounts may also be freely debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet business travel needs; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases, in connection with the above-mentioned business travel (hotel bookings, transport costs abroad, etc.); (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler's checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards in accordance with the provisions of the exchange regulations.
"Tourism allowance" foreign exchange accounts were eliminated effective January 3, 2022. Previously, these accounts could be credited (1) with 100% of the tourism travel allowances and (2) with the tourism travel allowances for the individual's minor children or spouse. They could be debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet needs associated with tourism or business travel; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases in connection with tourism travel; (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler' checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards issued in accordance with the exchange regulations.

compensation for claims associated with foreign exchange policies signed in accordance with the insurance regulations in force. These accounts may be credited (1) with the amounts of the premium, which is to be settled in foreign exchange; (2) with the share of premiums accruing to the insurer under a coinsurance policy. In such cases, the transfer must be made by debiting the "foreign exchange insurance" account of the lead insurer; (3) with the payments of reinsurers and coinsurers to cover their liabilities; (4) with the payments in connection with recoveries (recours et sauvetage); (5) for foreign exchange purchases required to cover liabilities originating from insurance policies underwritten in foreign exchange if the balance on a foreign exchange insurance account is unable to cover liabilities borne by the insurer; and (6) for the refund of premiums paid to a reinsurer following termination of the policy. They may be debited (1) with compensation for claims as allowed by foreign exchange regulations; (2) with shares of premiums and other amounts owed to coinsurers; (3) with premiums and amounts owed to reinsurers under reinsurance agreements; (4) with commissions and charges payable in foreign exchange in favor of a nonresident insurance intermediary under an insurance policy denominated in foreign exchange; and (5) for the refund of premiums paid by an insurer following termination of an insurance policy denominated in foreign exchange. Insurance and reinsurance enterprises licensed in Morocco and required to accept on a reinsurance basis the risks envisaged by current exchange regulations as well as risks ceded from foreign insurers, may open on the books of authorized intermediaries accounts known as "reinsurance acceptances in foreign exchange–local business" and "reinsurance acceptances in foreign exchange–foreign business."

Insurance and reinsurance enterprises engaging in reinsurance acceptances for operations insured in foreign exchange under a policy underwritten with an insurance and reinsurance enterprise may open reinsurance acceptances in foreign exchange–local business accounts on the books of authorized intermediaries. Local business is defined as risk situated in Morocco covered by insurance policies denominated in foreign currencies and underwritten with Moroccan insurers and ceded to Moroccan reinsurers. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–local business account may be credited with (1) amounts paid by direct insurers, on the understanding that these payments must be made by debiting their insurance in foreign exchange–local business accounts and (2) with amounts owed by reinsurance reinsurers (rétrocessionnaires) in settlement of their liabilities on retroceded risks. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–local business account may be debited (1) with amounts owed to reinsurance reinsurers and (2) with reinsurance balances and shares in compensation for claims accruing to direct insurers.

settlement of their liabilities on retroceded risks. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–local business account may be debited (1) with amounts owed to reinsurance reinsurers and (2) with reinsurance balances and shares in compensation for claims accruing to direct insurers.

Insurance and reinsurance enterprises accepting on a reinsurance basis foreign business denominated in foreign exchange may open a reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–foreign business account with an authorized intermediary. Foreign business is defined as risk situated abroad covered by insurance policies underwritten with foreign insurers and ceded to Moroccan reinsurers. A reinsurance acceptance in foreign exchange–foreign business account may be credited (1) with shares of premiums accruing to the reinsurer in connection with business accepted and (2) with the balance in favor of the reinsurer. This account may be debited (1) with shares of compensation for claims borne by the reinsurer and (2) with the balance in favor of the ceding company.

Operators duly licensed under Moroccan insurance regulations to engage in reinsurance brokerage operations, which serve to place abroad risks entrusted by foreign insurance and reinsurance firms, may open a currency-specific account referred to as a "foreign exchange reinsurance brokerage" account on the books of authorized intermediaries. These accounts may be credited with funds received from foreign insurance and reinsurance firms in connection with premiums, compensation on claims, reinsurance balances, and brokerage commissions. These accounts may be debited with amounts paid to foreign insurance and reinsurance firms in connection with premiums, compensation on claims, and reinsurance balances. Brokerage commissions accruing to Moroccan brokers must be surrendered in the foreign exchange market immediately after encashment.

The categories of capital that may be freely managed by entities with Casablanca Finance City (CFC) status and that therefore may be deposited in their foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts at authorized intermediary banks were defined. Entities with CFC status may freely open foreign currency accounts in banks in Morocco to manage their foreign currency holdings in one of the following categories: (1) capital entrusted by nonresident investors to entities with CFC status for placement or investment purposes; (2) capital collected by entities with CFC status for their own account when issuing securities abroad or mobilizing external financing; (3) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened on the books of authorized intermediaries in the name of foreign individuals or legal entities or in the name of Moroccans residing abroad and made available to entities with CFC status by the holders of such accounts; (4) funds made available to entities with CFC status by Moroccan financial institutions licensed to engage in foreign placement operations; (5) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of entities with CFC status and engaging in services export operations; and (6) any other foreign-source foreign currency holdings.

Entities with CFC status engaging in services export transactions may open foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts on the books of authorized intermediary banks. Such accounts may be credited with 100% of proceeds from services rendered to nonresident entities by entities with CFC status.

For hedging operations against the risk of commodity price fluctuation on behalf of Moroccan legal entities, banks are required to open foreign currency accounts on their books. Foreign currency accounts, dedicated to customer hedging transactions, must record all related financial flows, including the security deposit, daily margin calls, and premiums received or paid, as well as the results of the unwinding of hedges. Service exporters bidding for foreign contracts have the option of opening foreign exchange accounts in Morocco dedicated to the settlement of expenditure in connection with such contracts. Resident individuals having revenue from foreign sources may place up to 70% of such revenue in an account in foreign exchange or in convertible dirhams to be opened with Moroccan banks. Banks may open foreign exchange accounts for Moroccan nationals who had resided abroad and declared their assets and cash held abroad.

Approval required	Yes.	Approval is not required for resident foreign exporters of goods and services; nonexporters who are beneficiaries of business travel allowances; insurance and reinsurance firms; operators authorized to engage in brokerage operations; entities with CFC status for needs associated with management of their foreign exchange assets; entities with CFC status engaging in services export operations; and Moroccan legal entities that have subscribed to hedging instruments against commodity price fluctuation risks (Circular No. 1699 of January 13, 2004). FEO authorization is also not required for "international trade" foreign exchange accounts; foreign exchange accounts in the name of resident foreign nationals (natural or legal persons); foreign exchange accounts in the name of corporations established in industrial acceleration zones or offshore financial centers located in Morocco; foreign exchange accounts for investment transactions abroad of OPCC, UCITS, and OPCI; foreign exchange accounts in the name of service exporters bidding for or holding contracts awarded as part of foreign tenders; foreign exchange accounts in the name of Moroccan resident individuals, not listed in the trade register, with foreign-source income; foreign exchange accounts in the name of Moroccan nationals who had resided abroad and have transferred their tax residence to Morocco.
Held abroad	Yes.	Authorized banks may transfer funds for investment purposes as deposits to, foreign banks on their own behalf and on behalf of (1) insurance and reinsurance companies for up to 5% of the total volume of their reserves, (2) retirement agencies for up to 5% of the total volume of their reserves, and (3) UCITS and OPCCs for up to 10% of their net assets for dirham-denominated subscriptions and 100% for subscriptions collected in foreign currency. Authorized banks may open foreign currency accounts related to management of hedging operations against the risk of fluctuation in the price of certain commodities. These accounts devoted exclusively to managing hedging operations must record all financial flows relating to hedging of the risk of price fluctuations of certain commodities, including the security deposit, margin calls, premiums received, etc.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign residents do not require approval to open these accounts. FEO approval is no longer required for the opening of foreign currency accounts in foreign banks for companies holding contracts abroad. These accounts may credit the amounts of advances transferred, revenue for services rendered abroad under contracts, and debit the amounts of expenditure incurred abroad in the execution of these contracts and transfers to Morocco.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Residents may not open dirham accounts abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Banks are authorized to open on their books: convertible dirham accounts in the name of exporters of goods and services; "business travel allowance" convertible dirham accounts; convertible dirham accounts in the name of resident foreign nationals (natural or legal persons); convertible dirham accounts in the name of corporations established in industrial acceleration zones or offshore financial centers located in Morocco; convertible dirham accounts in the name of Moroccan resident individuals, not listed in the trade register, without foreign-source income; convertible dirham accounts in the name of Moroccan nationals who had resided abroad and have transferred their tax residence to Morocco.

Resident foreign nationals may open accounts in convertible dirhams in Moroccan banks. The accounts may be credited with the proceeds of foreign exchange sales and amounts transferable from Morocco, in accordance with exchange regulations. The accounts may be debited to purchase foreign exchange or for any other domestic settlement. There are no restrictions on interest payments or on transfers between accounts abroad in convertible dirhams and between convertible dirham accounts and foreign exchange accounts. Authorized banks may issue international credit cards and checks to the holders of these accounts. Overdrafts on these accounts are not permitted. Exporters of goods and services (including fishing companies) may open accounts in convertible dirhams in Moroccan banks. These accounts may be credited with the dirham equivalent of 70% of foreign exchange that is repatriated and transferred to approved intermediary banks for exports of goods and services. The accounts may be credited in full or in part at the discretion of the exporter. In the case of a partial credit, the remaining amount may subsequently be credited to the account within a maximum period of one year from the date the foreign exchange was sold on the foreign exchange market. Convertible dirham accounts may be credited with (1) amounts from other foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts belonging to the same exporter; (2) foreign banknotes withdrawn and not used, provided the account is credited within 30 days of the date the foreign currency is withdrawn; (3) the amount of expenses for which funds have been debited from the account for operations that have been partially or fully cancelled; and (4) amounts withdrawn from foreign exchange accounts and sold in the foreign exchange market and those debited from a convertible dirham account to cover expenses in Morocco. These amounts may be credited to the exporter's account within a maximum of one year from the date of the debit. Funds in these accounts may be used to finance expenditures related to professional activities. The maximum amount of repatriated export earnings exporters may place in a foreign exchange or a convertible dirham account is 70% (85% for companies in the aeronautics and space sector). Holders of these accounts may obtain international credit cards and checks from authorized banks, but overdrafts are not permitted.

Effective January 3, 2022, the convertible dirham accounts opened to facilitate the use of tourist allowances were discontinued along with the discontinuance of travel allowances which were replaced by a personal travel allowance. Previously, these accounts could be credited (1) with 100% of the tourism travel allowances and (2) with the tourism travel allowances for the individual's minor children or spouse. They could be debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet needs associated with tourism or business travel; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases in connection with tourism travel; (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler' checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards issued in accordance with the exchange regulations.

Banks are authorized to open, on behalf of companies that do not have a foreign currency account – micro-credit associations, associations recognized as being of public utility, cooperatives and professional federations as well as individuals engaged in professional activity – and who benefit from a business travel allowance, a foreign currency or convertible dirham account for "business travel allowance" for the purpose of receiving the allowance.

The categories of capital that may be freely managed by entities with CFC status and that therefore may be deposited in their foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts opened at authorized intermediary banks were defined. Entities with CFC status may freely open convertible dirham accounts in banks in Morocco to manage their foreign currency holdings in one of the following categories: (1) capital entrusted by nonresident investors to entities with CFC status for placement or investment purposes; (2) capital collected by entities with CFC status for their own account when issuing securities abroad or mobilizing external financing; (3) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened on the books of authorized intermediaries in the name of foreign individuals or legal entities or in the name of Moroccans residing abroad and made available to entities with CFC status by the holders of such accounts; (4) funds made available to entities with CFC status by Moroccan financial institutions licensed to engage in foreign placement operations pursuant to exchange regulations; (5) holdings in foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of entities with CFC status and engaging in services export operations; and (6) any other foreign-source foreign currency holdings.
Entities with CFC status engaging in services export transactions may open foreign exchange accounts or convertible dirham accounts at authorized intermediary banks. Such accounts may be credited with 100% of proceeds from services rendered to nonresident entities by entities with CFC status.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted — Yes.

Two types of accounts may be opened: (1) Foreign exchange accounts in the names of foreign nationals may be maintained by nonresident individuals and legal entities of foreign nationality. These accounts may be credited with transfers from abroad; foreign banknotes, checks, and traveler's checks; any other means of payment denominated in foreign currency; and foreign currency withdrawn from domestic banks, in accordance with exchange regulations. Deposits of foreign banknotes by the account holder must be justified by an original signed import declaration from the border customs offices or any other supporting document. These accounts may be debited for transfers abroad or for the surrender of foreign currency for dirhams for all domestic settlements. (2) Foreign exchange accounts may be opened by Moroccan nationals residing abroad. These accounts may be credited with transfers from abroad; traveler's checks, foreign banknotes, or any other means of payment denominated in foreign currency; and foreign currency withdrawn from domestic banks in accordance with exchange regulations. They may be debited for transfers abroad and for the surrender of foreign currency for dirhams for all domestic settlements. There are no restrictions on interest payments on these accounts, transfers between foreign exchange accounts, or transfers between foreign exchange accounts and convertible dirham accounts. A set of conditions and modalities governing the opening and functioning of nonresident accounts denominated in foreign currency and in dirhams include the following: (1) specification of arrangements related to the crediting of foreign exchange accounts and foreign accounts in convertible dirhams with foreign banknotes and (2) distinction between foreign accounts in convertible dirhams held in the names of foreign correspondents of Moroccan banks and those held in the names of customers (individuals and legal entities other than foreign correspondents).

Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Nonresidents may open three types of dirham accounts as follows: (1) External convertible dirham accounts are restricted to nonresident individuals and legal entities of foreign nationality. (2) Convertible dirham accounts may be held in the name of Moroccans residing abroad. Both types of accounts may be credited with proceeds from the surrender of foreign currency and amounts freely transferable from Morocco in accordance with general or special authorization from the FEO. They may be debited for the purchase of foreign currency and all domestic settlements. There are no restrictions on transfers between foreign accounts in convertible dirhams or between these accounts and foreign exchange accounts. Holders of these accounts may obtain international credit cards from authorized banks. Overdrafts are not allowed, and there are no restrictions on the payment of interest on these accounts. (3) Nonresident foreigners whose funds are deemed nontransferable under the exchange regulations may deposit those funds in convertible term accounts at authorized intermediary banks. Funds from these accounts may be transferred within, effective January 3, 2022, a maximum period of three years at a rate of 25% a year, with the first 25% transferable immediately after crediting funds to the convertible term account. Previously, the transfer period was four years with a rate of 25% a year. Nonresident foreign currency and dirham accounts are subject to the following: (1) definition of modalities related to the crediting of foreign exchange accounts and foreign accounts in convertible dirhams with foreign banknotes; (2) distinction between foreign accounts in convertible dirhams in the name of foreign correspondents of Moroccan banks and those in the name of customers (individuals and legal entities other than foreign correspondents); and (3) extension of the authorization for nonresident foreigners to hold dirham-denominated accounts called “special accounts” to other entities – namely diplomatic representatives; international organizations headquartered or represented in Morocco; foreign staff of diplomatic missions and international organizations; businesses operating in EPZs and financial centers and those under contract to provide goods or services in Morocco; and nonresident foreign individuals who have outstanding dirham-denominated loans with Moroccan banks.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Funds in convertible dirham accounts held by foreign nonresident natural or juridical persons and Moroccans residing abroad are freely convertible.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Nonresident foreigners with funds deemed nontransferable under the exchange regulations may deposit them in convertible term accounts at authorized intermediary banks. Funds from these accounts may be transferred within a maximum of, effective January 3, 2022, three years (previously four years) at a rate of 25% a year with the first 25% tranche being available for transfer immediately after crediting funds to the convertible term account. Holders of convertible term accounts and those acquiring them, including Moroccans residing abroad, may use these funds freely for domestic expenditures in dirhams, including investment. Investments financed from the accounts are covered by the convertibility arrangements for a period of two years from the date of the investment.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Effective January 3, 2022, exporters who hold foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts may make installments for the import of goods and/or services up to the rate stipulated in the commercial contract where payment is made by debiting foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of the goods and/or services exporters. Importers may make advance payments of up to 30% of the total import value of goods (50% for companies operating in the aeronautical and space sector). Importers may make advance payments of up to 30% of the total value of the import of services (up to 50% of the price invoiced for the cost of repairs and technical overhauls abroad of Moroccan fishing vessels or ships). Effective January 3, 2022, when the transferred advance payment rate is exceeded by less than or equal to 5% of the total final invoice value, the bank domiciled in the location where the import document is based may settle the remainder of the value of the imported good. The ceiling for the advance payment of imports of goods was harmonized and the advance payment of the total amount of imports was authorized for categorized companies. Effective January 3, 2022, goods/services exporters may make advance payments (100% of the amount stipulated in the commercial contract) for goods and/or services imports. Importers of goods are authorized to pay in advance for the import of goods in the following cases: (1) up to the foreign currency equivalent of DH 200,000, regardless of the nature of the goods to be imported; (2) up to 100% of the amount invoiced for imports of goods to be carried out by companies that have been categorized by the FEO and the General Directorate of Tax or by the FEO and the Customs and Indirect Taxes Administration; (3) up to DH 1 million for companies in the aeronautics and space industries sector registered with the FEO; (4) up to the value of the second-hand equipment acquired at auctions, on presentation of an invoice or any document in lieu thereof, drawn up by the foreign company that organizes these sales and stipulating the obligation to pay before the equipment is collected; and (5) up to 100% of the invoiced amount when the commercial contract so states by debiting foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of goods and/or services exporters, when available funds in these accounts permit it. The importation of services was redefined to include all services rendered to a resident by a nonresident in Morocco. These services may be rendered in Morocco or abroad. The provision of training, expertise, and analysis services of all kinds may be provided abroad. The ceiling for advance payment by importers of services was increased. They may make advance payments before the delivery of the service when it is so stipulated in the commercial contract: (1) up to the foreign currency equivalent of DH 100,000 regardless of the imported service; (2) up to the amount invoiced, in the case of equipment repairs (including aircraft) or the processing of products temporarily exported abroad and related incidental costs; (3) up to 100% of the amount invoiced and within 12 months for subscriptions to foreign databases or computer applications and license fees; and (4) up to 100% of the amount invoiced where the commercial contract so stipulates by debiting foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of goods and/or services exporters, when available funds in these accounts permit it.

Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Entities and individuals duly listed in the trade register may engage in operations involving the import of goods and international trade, including services not related to commercial operations.
Domiciliation requirements	Yes.	For imports of goods, an import security must be obtained by the importer and domiciled at an authorized bank to cover payment for goods and related fees. This domiciliation is not required for imports that do not involve payments. The import security for the purchase of goods for noncommercial use such as books, periodicals, and technical and scientific documentation by residents for their own use is also waived if the purchase value does not exceed DH 20,000. Importers in the aeronautics and space industries may domicile a single import commitment for imports from various suppliers in one or several countries. Resident individuals may make Internet transactions involving imports of goods and services by using an international credit card. The electronic trade allowance for individuals is DH 15,000.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Except for goods imported by air or by post, insurance policies for imports must be taken out with insurance companies in Morocco. For certain groups of goods, however, insurance policies may be underwritten abroad. This group includes: (1) externally financed imports if the terms include foreign insurance; (2) capital goods and equipment under turnkey contracts; (3) crude oil, gas, heifers, and wood; (4) imports whose risk cannot be covered by insurance and reinsurance companies established in Morocco; and (5) imports under FTAs for risk that may or may not be covered by insurance and reinsurance companies established in Morocco. Importers may, as part of their import operations, contract insurance in foreign currency with insurance and reinsurance companies established in Morocco when these contracts are signed by or on behalf of nonresidents or when the regulations authorize the underwriting of insurance abroad. Payments for discrepancies arising from the ullage of petroleum products and derivatives and payments of imports by a third party in lieu of the initial importer have been liberalized. Liberalization measures have been implemented to allow free settlement of the following transactions: (1) settlements of differentials noted between the amounts on bills of lading and those imputed by the customs services for grains, mining products, and chemicals; (2) settlements related to variations in content for the liquidation of sugar, oil, and mineral imports; (3) settlements of general average contributions for ships transporting merchandise to Morocco; and (4) settlements for disputed claims related to imports. Payments for imports made in connection with sales exhibitions are subject to FEO authorization. Resident individuals may make Internet transactions involving imports of goods and services by using an international credit card, up to DH 10,000. The electronic trade allowance for individuals is DH 15,000.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	Yes.	Imports are not restricted, except for arms and explosives, secondhand clothing, chemical products that deplete the ozone layer, white weapons, drones, and used tires and wheels with used tires or retreads. These products require an import license issued by the Department of Foreign Trade (DFT).
Negative list	Yes.	Imports of products that pose a threat to public health, morals, order, or security are prohibited.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports may be restricted for limited periods to protect new industries or counteract dumping. Safeguard (tariff) measures may be established for periods of five years to protect new industries, and they may be extended to eight years. In the case of dumping, the product in question is subject to import declaration for up to nine months, and this measure is renewable once. During this period, investigations are carried out to determine whether dumping is taking place and, if it is, to determine the tariff measures that need to be introduced. Individuals may import merchandise valued at up to DH 20,000 a year that is not to be resold. Commercial activities of individuals not registered in the Commercial Registry and without a tax identification number must be authorized by the DFT.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Customs duties are levied on an ad valorem basis. A large number of goods are only subject to a 2.5% import duty. Imports of products to be used in the manufacture of goods for export are exempt from customs duties. Specific rates are applied to certain agricultural products.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	There is no obligation to sign an export declaration (titre d'exportation) for any freely exportable product or merchandise. Export proceeds must be repatriated within 150 days of customs declaration. The deadline for repatriating the export proceeds from goods sold on consignment was also set at 150 days. The repatriation requirement does not apply to exports of goods involving no payment, which includes (1) noncommercial goods with a value less than or equal to DH 10,000; (2) samples whose value is less than or equal to DH 20,000; (3) pharmaceuticals, documents, and promotional materials shipped in connection with free samples up to 3% of the value of medications to be exported with payment, provided they are shipped simultaneously with the pharmaceuticals to be exported with payment; (4) toxic waste for disposal abroad; (5) goods shipped temporarily under economic customs arrangements; (6) goods shipped to make up for missing items or replace defective merchandise; (7) goods returned to the Moroccan exporter for additional work; (8) goods previously imported, recognized as not conforming to the order or defective, on presentation to customs of a bank certificate stating that no payment has been or will be made under the pertinent import commitment; (9) products shipped for tests and analyses by foreign laboratories; and (10) books, reviews, periodicals, and journals imported and not sold. Proceeds from exports may be collected abroad and used directly to finance imports of goods and raw materials needed to manufacture goods for exportation. Exporters of goods may freely extend commercial credits to nonresidents for up to 150 days. Credits with longer terms may be granted FEO approval, if justified by commercial necessity. Exporters and authorized intermediary banks may extend supplier and buyer credits to foreign customers for up to 85% of the value of exported goods or works and of the provision of services abroad. These credits may be granted for effective January 3, 2022, a short term only. Previously, they could be short or medium term for all categories of goods and services and long term for capital goods (repayment up to eight years.

Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Foreign exchange must be surrendered within one month of payment by the foreign buyer. In principle, this date must not be more than 150 days from the date of the shipment of goods. This deadline may be extended if warranted by business conditions and approved by the FEO. Exporters of goods and services may hold up to 70% of their export earnings in convertible dirham or foreign exchange accounts. Exporters of goods and services in the aeronautics and space industries may hold up to 85% of export earnings in convertible dirham or foreign exchange accounts. Exporters of goods may grant their foreign clients a discount of up to 5% of the invoice price for reasons such as late delivery, contribution to packaging, rebates on turnover, missing or defective items, or payments in cash. Exporters of goods in the aeronautics and space industries may grant their foreign clients a discount of up to 10% of the invoice price for reasons such as late delivery, contribution to packaging, rebates on turnover, missing or defective items, or payments in cash.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.	There is no obligation to sign an export declaration (titre d'exportation) for operations involving the export of any freely exportable product or merchandise. No guarantee is required. The customs declaration provides proof of export.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.	Preshipment inspection is not required; however, exports of food products are subject to quality control.
Other	Yes.	Entities and individuals duly listed in the trade register may engage in international trade operations, including services not related to commercial operations. Exporters may make: (1) payment of factoring commissions, (2) payment of fees for exports up to 10% of the value of the good or service exported, (3) payment of miscellaneous expenses incurred abroad for the shipment of goods to Morocco, (4) payment of expenses related to seafood exports, and (5) price concessions on exports of goods (revision of prices following weight or content analysis and cancelation of orders).
Export licenses	Yes.

Without quotas	Yes.	Exports of grain flour, charcoal, archeological items, leather and hides, raw algae and agar–agar, and chemical products that deplete the ozone layer require export licenses issued by the DFT.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	A 1% quality control tax is levied on exports of foodstuffs.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	Authorized banks may make payments for: (1) fees relating to international trade transactions, transportation, services, technical assistance, income from capital (including interest and dividends), and wages; (2) transfers of amounts owed to foreign suppliers for international business transactions (purchases of goods and services abroad for direct sale to foreign customers) conducted by Moroccan corporations or individuals; and (3) transfers for services by nonresidents at call centers in Morocco, such as rental of specialized lines or satellite segments, use of telephone lines abroad, etc. The importation of services includes all services rendered to a resident by a nonresident in Morocco. These services may be rendered in Morocco or abroad. The provision of training, expertise, and analysis services of all kinds may be provided abroad. Entities with CFC status may transfer funds for foreign technical assistance expenses and services by foreign contractors and for the following: (1) subsidiaries' share of expenses incurred by their parent company, such as management and headquarters' expenses, royalties, and research and development expenses relating to the activity of entities with CFC status; (2) expenses billed by the parent company, including those relating to personnel; and (3) expenses relating to services shared by subsidiaries and parent companies, such as information technology-related expenses, human resource management costs, expenses relating to accounting/finance services, and training expenses. Authorized intermediaries may transfer to the account of entities with CFC status remuneration owed in connection with management fees. Clarification of provisions governing outlays associated with the transfer of personnel by a parent company specifies that these outlays refer to fees billed to entities with CFC status in connection with the transfer of foreign personnel or Moroccans residing abroad transferred to the Moroccan subsidiary. These outlays include wages, payroll taxes, expatriation allowances, and other incidental costs such as those for housing, airline tickets, travel, etc., paid abroad for the benefit or the account of such personnel. International courier services have been liberalized. International messaging services refer to services performed under an agreement between a Moroccan international messaging company and its nonresident partner, entailing (1) collection of mail and parcels delivered by customers established in Morocco and their shipment abroad through the nonresident partner's network and (2) receipt of mail and parcels originating abroad via the nonresident partner's network and their distribution to recipients in Morocco. Operators in the aeronautics and space industries may settle several types of services, including contributions to the research programs of their parent companies, access to information technology systems, and miscellaneous administrative and management services and transfer payments to parent companies for separation of foreign, expatriate, or transferred personnel.

Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments for freight, unloading, and storage are not restricted. Importers may pay for overweight freight charges in amounts not exceeding 10% of the amount initially stated in the commercial contract, as well as any penalty for late shipment or landing of the goods. Representation and brokerage charges of exports of goods and services may be settled for up to 10% of their value. Rental fees for stands and exhibitor fees for fairs and exhibitions abroad by residents without a foreign exchange or a convertible dirham account may be transferred by authorized intermediaries on presentation of an invoice or fee slip signed by the organizer of the fair or exhibition. Costs related to consignment sales may be settled directly by deduction from the selling price of the goods sold on consignment, including such costs as commissions, transit charges, handling charges, customs duty, packaging and repackaging costs, warehousing and storage fees, expert costs, analysis or sampling fees, destruction expenses in case of damage, costs for advertising and promotion incurred by foreign commission merchants and purchasing cooperatives, costs of transportation to or from Morocco, and costs incurred by foreign consignees for marketing goods sold on consignment (fresh fruit, and vegetables, citrus fruits, flowers, and fishing products). Authorized intermediaries may also freely transfer funds returned by the General Treasury for the VAT on bills of purchase in Morocco collected by diplomatic and consular representatives and representatives of international public organizations and their foreign staff. Insurance underwriting for commercial transactions is carried out in accordance with insurance regulations. The regulatory framework governing insurance and reinsurance operations lists the foreign currency operations eligible for insurance in Morocco and authorizes economic operators to contract insurance with insurance and reinsurance companies abroad. The foreign currency operations for which economic operators may contract insurance denominated in foreign currency with insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco are as follows: (1) imports and exports, when the related contracts are signed by or on behalf of nonresidents; (2) merchandise shipments from a foreign country or a free trade zone in Morocco to a foreign country within the framework of international business transactions initiated by resident operators; (3) exports not involving payments; (4) risk in free trade and offshore areas established in the national territory; (5) aviation risk (hull and civil liability); and (6) “contractor’s all risk” operations, when the insured party is a nonresident. The foreign currency operations for which insurance may be contracted with foreign insurance and reinsurance companies are as follows: (1) mandatory insurance for which coverage cannot be found with insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco; (2) aviation and maritime and transportation insurance, including international road transportation (hull and cargo), whether or not covered by insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco; (3) import insurance related to payment for certain goods (crude oil, gas, and diesel fuel; heifers; wood; goods imported by air or by post; externally financed imports if the terms include foreign insurance) whose import certificate is expressed in c.i.f. value and for which the importer is required to accept insurance abroad; and (4) premiums payable by Moroccan ship owners to foreign associations as coverage for certain risks related to the development of their shipping company that cannot be covered by insurance and reinsurance companies in Morocco. Moroccan businesses with construction contracts abroad may transfer up to 20% of the contract amount to defray their initial expenses and liberalized transfers for technical assistance required for the performance of contracts abroad. The regulatory framework for international transport is set out in the 2019 General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations. The regime applicable to international transport uses a single "international transport account" to record all transactions carried out with the same foreign partner.

Investment-related payments	Yes.	Since 1992, income generated by foreign investments in Morocco is freely transferable, without limitation in amount and duration, when the investments are financed in foreign currency. This income is freely transferable to nonresident foreigners, even in the absence of foreign currency financing.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	There are indicative limits on transfers of interest, which must be market based. The exchange regulation states that the applicable interest rates must correspond to the market rates but does not give a quantified limit.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Limits vary by the type of journey. Effective January 3, 2022, the FEO put in place a global allowance for personal travel in the amount of DH 100,000, plus an additional 30% income tax allowance, with an overall cap of DH 300,000 a person a calendar year. This allowance may be used for any type of personal travel abroad (for example, tourism, religious, medical, etc.) and also replaces the departure allowances (for example, education, medical care, etc.). Previously, the following were in place: (1) Tourism allowance: the ceiling on the tourism allowance was DH 200,000 and the indexation rate for the income tax supplement was 25%, with the option of carrying the unused portion forward once to the next year. As a result of the closing of air, sea, and land links to address the spread of COVID-19, the FEO decided to provide a DH 20,000 exceptional tourism allowance for Moroccan residents who had been stranded abroad and who had used all of their tourism allowance. This temporary measure ended when the borders reopened. The overall amount of the tourism allowance could not exceed DH 100,000 a person and a calendar year. (2) Religious travel allowance: DH 15,000 a person a calendar year for Umrah pilgrimage; DH 15,000 a person a calendar year for the Hajj pilgrimage; an additional DH 20,000 for the staff of the travel agency accompanying pilgrims, per accompanying person a trip. Business travel allowance: - 100% of the amount of corporate or income tax for companies subject to this tax or of the minimum contribution amount, paid in the past fiscal year by corporations, cooperatives subject to corporate tax, and branches registered with the FEO that do not hold foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts, up to DH 500,000 a calendar year; - 100% of the amount of income tax for individuals engaged in professional activity, as referred to in Article 105 of the 2022

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations, in the past fiscal year, up to DH 100,000 a calendar year; - DH 60,000 a calendar year for companies that paid corporate tax of less than DH 60,000, those exempt from corporate tax, newly established companies, companies with a tax credit, and Moroccan micro-credit associations or associations deemed to be in the public interest, cooperatives, and professional federations; - 100% of the tax for the past fiscal year charged against the tax credit, up to DH 500,000 a calendar year for companies with a tax credit; Cooperatives and professional federations also benefit from the DH 60,000 allowance for business travel. Larger allowances may be approved by the FEO on proof of need. The allowances for specific business travel may not be added to other allowances, except for the allowance for personal travel. Cooperatives subject to corporation tax have the option of benefiting from a business travel allowance of 100% of the amount of tax paid, with a ceiling of DH 500,000.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For a given trip, the allowance for personal travel, which replaced the various types of personal travel and departure allowances (for example, tourism, religious, medical, education, etc.) on January 3, 2022, may be combined, in whole or in part, with any other foreign exchange allowances granted under a general or special FEO authorization. The same allowance for tourism travel may also be granted to Moroccan nationals living abroad. Foreign residents who wish to travel abroad may be granted the foreign exchange equivalent of all their income savings. Allowances for personal travel may be delivered in whole or in part, by subrogation, to Moroccan travel agencies approved by the Ministry of Tourism for tourism, family, cultural, or private travel abroad by means of an individual or group check or by transfer to foreign service providers. With regard to tourism and religious travel, (1) pilgrims may make advance payment of living expenses if required by contractual provisions; (2) pilgrims may purchase foreign exchange for personal expenses; (3) travel agencies may, in case of overrun of their allowances, use funds in their convertible dirham and/or foreign-currency-denominated accounts to cover the expenses of pilgrims and their travel companions; and (4) intermediaries may issue securities guaranteeing the settlement of services to be provided to pilgrims and their travel companions on behalf of Saudi service providers, at the request and on behalf of travel agencies organizing Hajj trips. Business travel by exporters of goods and services may be financed without restriction by debiting foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts in Moroccan banks. For business travel other than by exporters of goods and services, a tax criterion is used to determine the maximum business travel allowance banks may provide to individuals and legal entities for companies without convertible dirham and foreign exchange accounts. The allowance is 100% of the amount of corporate or income tax (for companies subject to that tax) paid by such companies in the past fiscal year, up to DH 500,000 a calendar year; 100% of the amount of income tax for Moroccans engaged in professional activity, with an increased ceiling for such allowances to 100% of the income tax they paid in the past fiscal year, up to DH 100,000, and up to DH 60,000 for companies that paid corporate tax of less than DH 60,000, those exempt from corporate tax, and Moroccan micro-credit associations or associations deemed to be in the public interest.

Effective January 3, 2022, the FEO put in place a global allowance for personal travel in the amount of DH 100,000, plus an additional 30% income tax allowance, with an overall cap of DH 300,000 a person a calendar year. This allowance may be used for any type of personal travel abroad (for example, tourism, religious, medical, etc.) and also replaces the departure allowances (for example, education, medical care, etc.). Previously, there was an allowance for travel abroad for medical treatment up to the equivalent of DH 30,000 a trip, and an annual departure allowance equivalent to DH 25,000, paid in one or several installments for study abroad. Licensed banks are also authorized to transfer sums relating to the purchase of medicine, medical supplies, and medical tests by foreign laboratories. Banks may make transfers for study abroad as follows: (1) allowances for living expenses of up to, effective January 3, 2022, DH 12,000 a month (previously DH 10,000 a month). Transfers may be higher on presentation of supporting documents, with the possibility of making advance transfers for up to 12 months; (2) for the corresponding rents and charges (trustee fees, taxes, and fees related to the conclusion of the lease): up to the amount indicated in the required documents; (3) for tuition and fees: up to the amount indicated in the required documents. Students may benefit from additional transfers for living expenses and rent for the year following the end of their studies. Banks are authorized to transfer the repayment of student loans contracted with foreign banks and the costs of visits abroad for language-learning purposes. To cover the costs of internships and missions abroad, banks may sell foreign exchange to staff of public agencies, local governments, public institutions and enterprises, and foreign institutions or organizations up to the amount allocated by their employers, or up to DH 2,000 a day, within an overall limit of DH 20,000 a trip, if the mission order does not cover the costs of the mission or the internship. The allowance of DH 20,000 for the father, mother, or guardian of a minor student leaving Morocco for the first time and the allowance for acquisition of computer hardware among the facilities granted for study travel abroad were eliminated. Medical personnel in public agencies, local governments, and public institutions and enterprises wishing to attend professional events abroad may also purchase foreign exchange. If the costs of the mission or internship are borne in full by the traveler, banks may provide DH 2,000 a day up to DH 20,000 a trip. Requests for additional amounts require FEO approval, which is granted on presentation of supporting documents. Banks may transfer funds for family assistance up to DH 10,000 a year.
Foreign workers' wages	No.	Foreigners residing in Morocco and employed in either the private or public sector or engaged in industrial, commercial, agricultural, or certain other professions may transfer all their income. There are no quantitative limits on transfers of foreign workers' remuneration. Transfers of wages and retirement pensions may be made monthly, in arrears. When the payments are not executed at these intervals, the interested parties may arrange to settle arrears in connection with their income entitlements for the past 12 monthly payments that have already matured. They may also freely contribute to pension or social security funds in their countries of origin. These arrangements apply equally to Moroccans' foreign spouses. Commercial banks are authorized to transfer pensions paid by government or private organizations to retirees residing permanently abroad. In addition,

Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Approval is required.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Authorized intermediary banks may offer instruments to hedge against exchange, interest rate, and commodity price fluctuation risks only to resident operators.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Only Moroccan banks may offer instruments to hedge against exchange, interest rate, and commodity price fluctuation risks to operators.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Derivatives transactions must be based on real trade or financial transactions and may not be speculative. Economic agents may negotiate directly with international broker-dealers or through authorized banks to hedge against price fluctuation risk for certain commodities that are or may be traded on a secondary market. These transactions must take place through dedicated multicurrency accounts at Moroccan banks. Authorized banks may offer their customers options for exchanging dirhams and foreign currency and one foreign currency for another, to the exclusion of foreign instruments. To hedge against customer risk, authorized banks must have recourse to the local interbank market. If they are unable to find the appropriate hedging instrument in the local market, they may turn to the international market for foreign exchange hedging instruments. Hedging transactions must be backed by the foreign exchange options selected by customers. Authorized intermediary banks may also offer instruments to hedge against the risk of interest rate fluctuation to resident economic operators with foreign loans. Authorized banks may offer their customers forward cover for foreign exchange and may do so by borrowing or investing foreign exchange at the same maturities as the hedging operations. Authorized intermediaries may also sign, on their own behalf or on behalf of their customers (1) spot or forward contracts for foreign currency swaps, (2) swap contracts with their foreign correspondents, and (3) swap contracts for foreign exchange and dirhams, regardless of the maturity date, on behalf of Moroccan companies with concessional financing by foreign governments or public agencies or international development institutions. For hedging against any risk inherent in any asset or debt, banks may conclude these transactions only on a proprietary basis or on behalf of certain institutional entities – credit institutions and similar entities, insurance companies, and collective investment funds (organismes de placement collectif en titrisation). Institutional investors were also allowed to cover capital transactions, such as investments made abroad by UCITS or insurance companies.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	These operations are subject to FEO approval.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Exporters of goods may extend commercial credit to nonresidents for up to 150 days. Credit with longer terms may be extended with FEO approval, if justified on the basis of commercial necessity. Authorized intermediary banks may use funds from foreign exchange accounts opened in the names of exporters of goods and services, resident nationals, and resident and nonresident foreigners for their lines of credit to each other, especially for buyer credits to foreign customers of Moroccan exporters. Exporters and authorized intermediary banks may provide supplier credits or buyer credits to foreign customers for up to 85% of the value of exported goods or works and the provision of services abroad. These credits may be granted for a short or medium term for all categories of goods and services and for a long term for capital goods (repayment up to eight years).

To residents from nonresidents	No.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Local banks may extend loans in dirhams to foreign nonresident individuals for the purchase or development of Moroccan real estate, up to 70% of the value of the real estate to be purchased or developed. Moroccans residing abroad are also permitted such credits. These loans must be serviced with funds transferred from abroad or with debits from convertible dirham accounts. Banks may grant dirham-denominated consumer loans to foreign personnel working for diplomatic representations accredited in Morocco or international organizations based or represented in Morocco.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Resident enterprises may obtain loans abroad without limitation, provided they are backed by investment or foreign trade transactions. Repayment must be made from Morocco through the banking system.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Banks are authorized to issue bank guarantees and guarantees to residents to cover commitments made to nonresidents, when such commitments arise from current or capital transactions carried out in accordance with the provisions of the 2020 General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Banks are authorized to issue or to accept bank guarantees and guarantees to nonresidents to cover commitments made to residents, when such commitments arise from current or capital transactions carried out in accordance with the provisions of the 2020 General Instruction on Foreign Exchange Operations. Guarantees and sureties issued by Moroccan banks on behalf of a nonresident to a resident must be counter-secured by foreign banks.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Outward direct investment is subject to FEO approval, but resident firms in operation for at least three years whose accounts have been certified by an external auditor may invest without authorization up to an annual maximum of DH 100 million for investment in Africa and DH 50 million for other continents. This investment must be related to the usual activity of the firm and may take various forms – for example, the establishment of new enterprises, equity participation in existing enterprises, the opening of representative or liaison offices, branches, etc. Investors may freely reinvest the proceeds from the sale or liquidation of their investments abroad. Resident foreigners may invest abroad, provided the operations are financed from their own funds abroad or from their holdings in convertible dirhams or foreign exchange. Financial enterprises having CFC status were allowed to engage in their outward investment operations: (1) with no requirements on the minimum number of activities (however, legal entities are required to show at least three years of minimum number of activities) and (2) with no restriction on the amount for the share subscribed for by nonresidents or resident aliens in the capital of investment funds having CFC status (the ceilings of DH 100 million and DH 50 million apply only to shares subscribed for by residents).

Inward direct investment	No.
Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	There are no controls on transfers made directly through the banking system of the proceeds of the liquidation or sale of foreign investments, including capital gains, when such investment is financed by the sale of foreign exchange or by debit from a convertible dirham account in foreign currency.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.	These operations are subject to the investment regulations.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Purchases of real estate abroad by Moroccan residents require FEO authorization. Resident foreigners may purchase real estate abroad with funds from foreign exchange accounts.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Foreign nationals may purchase real estate, except farmland.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These operations are subject to FEO approval. However, Moroccan banks may grant loans in dirhams to nonresident foreigners and Moroccans residing abroad for the purchase or development of real estate in Morocco, up to 70% of the price of the real estate to be purchased or developed. They may also grant dirham-denominated consumer loans to foreign personnel working for diplomatic representations accredited in Morocco or international organizations based or represented in Morocco.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	These operations are subject to FEO approval.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Gifts and grants are subject to authorization. However, transfers of inheritances may be effected freely if the inherited property is covered by convertibility arrangements. In other cases, eligible parties may enjoy transfer rights if such rights have not been already exercised by the deceased.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	These operations are unrestricted, provided they are financed from the foreign funds of the parties concerned or from their funds in foreign exchange or in convertible dirhams.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	On departure from Morocco, foreigners may freely transfer assets not subject to the convertibility arrangement up to, effective January 3, 2022, DH 50,000 (previously DH 30,000) or the equivalent for each year of residence in Morocco, in addition to other transfer rights (for example, income or savings). Any remainder must be deposited in a convertible term account.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	No.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These earnings are transferable, provided the gambling was financed with foreign currency.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Commercial banks may borrow abroad only to finance foreign trade or investment operations on behalf of customers or as part of the introduction of forward cover for customers' foreign exchange swaps, with maturities equal to the duration of the hedging operations offered.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks may open and maintain accounts with their correspondents to effect outward payments and to manage hedging operations against price fluctuation risk for certain commodities. Authorized banks may deposit funds into accounts with banks in other countries.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Lending to nonresidents by Moroccan banks is subject to FEO approval. However, banks may grant loans to nonresident foreign individuals for the purchase or development of real estate in Morocco, up to 70% of the value of the real estate. Moroccans residing abroad are permitted such credits. Banks may use cash in foreign exchange accounts held by foreign nationals, Moroccan nationals resident abroad, and exporters for buyer credits to foreign customers to finance Moroccan exports. Banks are authorized to issue guarantees in favor of foreign banks that grant medium- and long-term loans in foreign exchange to individual nonresident foreign nationals or to Moroccan nationals residing abroad, for the purchase of homes in Morocco, within the limit of 100% of the value of the asset to be acquired. Authorized intermediary banks may use funds from foreign exchange accounts opened in the names of exporters of goods and services, resident nationals, and resident and nonresident foreigners for their lines of credit to each other, especially for buyer credits to foreign customers of Moroccan exporters. Exporters and authorized intermediary banks may provide supplier credits or buyer credits to foreign customers for up to 85% of the value of exported goods or works and the provision of services abroad. Changes during 2022 and 2023

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Held domestically	01/03/2022	"Tourism allowance" foreign exchange accounts were eliminated. Previously, these accounts could be credited (1) with 100% of the tourism travel allowances and (2) with the tourism travel allowances for the individual's minor children or spouse. They could be debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet needs associated with tourism or business travel; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases in connection with tourism travel; (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler' checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards issued in accordance with the exchange regulations.
	01/03/2022	Banks may open foreign exchange accounts for investment transactions abroad on behalf of Collective Real Estate Investment Funds (Organismes de Placement Collectif Immobilier).
	01/03/2022	Retirement pensions repatriated by foreigners residing in Morocco may be credited directly into ordinary dirham accounts opened in their names, for the past 12 months, on presentation to the bank of a copy of the corresponding pension form.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	01/03/2022	The convertible dirham accounts opened to facilitate the use of tourist allowances were discontinued along with the discontinuance of travel allowances which were replaced by a personal travel allowance. Previously, these accounts could be credited (1) with 100% of the tourism travel allowances and (2) with the tourism travel allowances for the individual's minor children or spouse. They could be debited (1) with foreign banknotes to meet needs associated with tourism or business travel; (2) with outward transfers or Internet purchases in connection with tourism travel; (3) for the issuance of bank checks and/or traveler' checks; and (4) for the issuance or charging of international bank cards issued in accordance with the exchange regulations.

Nonresident Accounts

Domestic currency accounts	01/03/2022	Funds from convertible term accounts opened by nonresident foreigners whose funds are deemed nontransferable under the exchange regulations may be transferred within a maximum period of three years with the first 25% transferable immediately after crediting funds to the convertible term account. Previously, the transfer period was four years with a rate of 25% a year.
Blocked accounts	01/03/2022	Funds in convertible term accounts may be transferred within a maximum of three years (previously four years) at a rate of 25% a year with the first 25% tranche being available for transfer immediately after crediting funds to the convertible term account.

Imports and Import Payments

Financing requirements for imports

Advance payment requirements	01/03/2022	Exporters who hold foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts may make installments for the import of goods and/or services up to the rate stipulated in the commercial contract where payment is made by debiting foreign exchange or convertible dirham accounts opened in the name of the goods and/or services exporters.
	01/03/2022	Goods/services exporters may make advance payments (100% of the amount stipulated in the commercial contract) for goods and/or services imports.
	01/03/2022	When the transferred advance payment rate is exceeded by less than or equal to 5% of the total final invoice value, the bank domiciled in the location where the import document is based may settle the remainder of the value of the imported good.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	01/03/2022	Supplier and buyer credits to foreign customers for up to 85% of the value of exported goods and services may be granted for a short term only. Previously, they could be short or medium term for all categories of goods and services and long term for capital goods (repayment up to eight years).

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Payments for travel

Quantitative limits	01/03/2022	The Foreign Exchange Office (FEO) put in place a global allowance for personal travel in the amount of DH 100,000, plus an additional 30% income tax allowance, with an overall cap of DH 300,000 a person a calendar year. This allowance may be used for any type of personal travel abroad (for example, tourism, religious, medical, etc.) and also replaces the departure allowances (for example, education, medical care, etc.). Previously, the following were in place: (1) Tourism allowance: the ceiling on the tourism allowance was DH 200,000 and the indexation rate for the income tax supplement was 25%, with the option of carrying the unused portion forward once to the next year. As a result of the closing of air, sea, and land links to address the spread of COVID-19, the FEO decided to provide a DH 20,000 exceptional tourism allowance for Moroccan residents who had been stranded abroad and who had used all of their tourism allowance. This temporary measure ended when the borders reopened. The overall amount of the tourism allowance could not exceed DH 100,000 a person and a calendar year. (2) Religious travel allowance: DH 15,000 a person a calendar year for Umrah pilgrimage; DH 15,000 a person a calendar year for the Hajj pilgrimage; an additional DH 20,000 for the staff of the travel agency accompanying pilgrims, per accompanying person a trip.

Personal payments

Indicative limits/bona fide test	01/03/2022	For study abroad, banks may transfer allowances for living expenses of up to DH 12,000 a month (previously DH 10,000 a month).

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating. As one of the main conduits for foreign aid inflows, the Bank of Mozambique (Banco de Moçambique—BM) is one of the main channels for foreign exchange to enter the market. The BM intervenes to address disorderly market conditions and to accumulate and maintain an adequate stock of international reserves, with data on such interventions being published on the same date as the operations are carried out. BM also publishes foreign exchange Intervention Policy summary, daily and monthly foreign exchange reference rates, daily intervention data, and daily foreign exchange market activity data on its website. BM operations in the interbank foreign exchange market (MCI) are carried out based on exchange rates freely quoted by commercial banks – commercial banks may also change their quotes at any time during MCI operating hours (from 08:00am until 03:30pm). As of December 2022, commercial banks are no longer required to quote exchange rates complying with a maximum spread of 2% between the exchange rates for buying and selling foreign currency. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The reference exchange rate of the foreign exchange market on each date is the average of commercial banks' quotations weighted by the monthly market shares for the immediately previous month. The reference exchange rate is calculated three times a day, namely at 9:30, 12:30, and 15:30. The last exchange rate calculated on each day is the reference exchange rate for that date, which also serves to value the assets and liabilities of commercial banks on each date. Government transactions with BM are conducted at the reference exchange rate (for government purchases, BM sells foreign currency at the offer reference exchange rate, and for government sales, BM purchases foreign currency at the bid reference exchange rate).

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The BM applies a monetary policy system based on the use of the policy interest rate, the interbank money market rate of Mozambique (MIMO), as the key instrument in pursuit of pre-established inflation targets for the government's economic policy time frame. The BM is building the basis for an inflation targeting framework. The Mozambican government sets the annual inflation target in its Social Economic Plan and State Budget (PESOE). The government established an average annual inflation target of 11.5% for 2023 (PESOE 2023). The target measure is the CPI. BM places emphasis on transparency in the communication of its monetary policy. The MPC decisions are announced through a Communiqué and/or a Press Conference led by the Governor of BM on the same day as the committee meeting, explaining the rationale behind decisions taken, the risks and uncertainties involved, as well as the intended outcomes. Additionally, BM communicates with the public through the Economic Outlook and Inflation Forecast Report (CEPI), the annual report, and social media.
Exchange tax	No.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, 13 banks and 6 exchange bureaus were authorized to transact foreign currency with their customers, at exchange rates freely negotiated between them. In addition to their operations with customers, banks may also transact among themselves and with the BM in the MCI. Exchange bureaus are only authorized to transact notes with their customers up to a limit of $10,000 per transaction, and they cannot conduct payment and transfer operations on behalf of their customers, nor participate in the MCI. Partial foreign exchange trading is considered the realization, on a professional basis, of purchase and sale operations of foreign currency, strictly related to the main activity of an entity, which is nonfinancial. Partial foreign exchange trading can be conducted by travel or tourism agencies, hotels and similar institutions, and other authorized entities. Effective December 30, 2022, commercial banks are no longer required to quote exchange rates complying with a maximum spread of 2% between the exchange rates for buying and selling foreign currency.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	Effective June 5, 2023, the BM no longer provides foreign currency to the market for fuel imports. Previously, it intervened on the market through bilateral operations to share up to 100% of the payment of invoices for imports of fuel, on request, and on the presentation of the documentation by the banks to avoid disorderly market conditions. Under the Foreign Exchange Intervention Policy, the BM only intervenes to address disorderly market conditions and to accumulate and maintain an adequate stock of international reserves, and these interventions may take place through auctions or allocation.
Auction	No.	Under the Foreign Exchange Intervention Policy, the BM only intervenes to address disorderly market conditions and to accumulate and maintain an adequate stock of international reserves, and these interventions may take place through auctions or allocation.
Fixing	Yes.	The BM conducts fixing sessions three times a day, namely at 9:30, 12:30, and 15:30. The result of the fixing sessions is the reference exchange rate of the foreign exchange market. Commercial banks quotes, inserted in the BM's system (Meticalnet), are used for the fixing sessions. Commercial banks use their quotes to transact with their clients, and they may change them at any time during MCI operating hours from 08:00 until 15:30.
Interbank market	Yes.	Commercial banks that participate in the MCI may conduct foreign exchange buying and selling operations between themselves at, effective May 20, 2022, freely negotiated rates (previously within the maximum spread between buying and selling prices set by the BM). As of December 31, 2022, there were 12 banks participating in the MCI.
Over the counter	Yes.	Commercial banks may engage in interbank transactions through the MCI. Exchange bureaus may not participate in the MCI.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Banks and their customers are allowed to trade financial derivatives.

Following these orders, the Central Bank of Myanmar (CBM) issued letters to banks and nonbank financial institutions (NBFIs) to comply with provisions under the Counter-Terrorism Law. After the enactment of the Counter-Terrorism Law, the CBM issued Instruction No. 6/2014 of October 3, 2014, Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/Htwe (42/2015) of January 20, 2015, Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/AML/CFT (7/2015) of March 13, 2015, Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/AML/CFT (14/2015) of November 27, 2015, and Letter No. MaBaBa/BRD/AML/CFT (7/2016) of January 29, 2016, to banks and NBFIs. According to the name list of persons involved in terrorism connected with Taliban or Al-Qaida designated as persons associated with terrorism by US Executive Order No. 13224, the UN 1267 Sanctions Committee forwarded by the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of Myanmar, US Embassy, and Australian Embassy and through the UN website, the CBM issued seven letters in 2006, seven letters in 2007, nine letters in 2008, six letters in 2009, one letter in 2011, and two letters in 2013, respectively, to all state-owned banks and private banks to comply with the CBM Directive No. 2/2002 issued March 7, 2002, which required banks to freeze funds and other assets of and prohibit transactions with persons suspected to be involved in terrorism and organizations associated with terrorism to report these accounts related to such persons to the CBM. With reference to the Anti-Money-Laundering Central Board's letter, the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism issued the Freezing Order No. 3/2016 of May 19, 2016, with respect to freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of those persons and organizations associated with terrorism including the ISIL, Taliban, and Al-Qaida groups and the groups associated with those groups connected with terrorism under the Sanctions list of the UNSC. Therefore, the CBM instructed state-owned banks, private banks, foreign bank branches, and finance companies to comply with the Order No. 3/2016 issued by the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism. According to the UNSC Resolution Nos. 2270 (2016), 2371 (2017), 2375 (2017), and 2397 (2017), the CBM issued four letters in 2017 to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers for freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of the related persons and organizations of Democratic People's Republic of Korea which are included in the freeze lists of the said resolutions. Moreover, the CBM has directed the aforesaid Institutions to take necessary due diligence on the information about the U.S. Department of the Treasury's "Treasury acts to Increase Economic Pressure on North Korea and Protect the US Financial System" in 2017. According to the UNSC Resolution Nos. 1267 (1999), 1989 (2011), 2253 (2015), and 2462 (2019), the CBM issued nine letters in 2019 to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers for freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of the related persons and organizations of ISIL (Da'esh) (Al-Qaida) which are included in the freeze lists of the said resolutions. Following the Standing Order Nos. 1/2017 and 1/2018 of the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism, Countering the Financing of Terrorism Working Committee, the CBM had released two letters in 2017 and 2018 to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers for freezing and prohibition of money, properties, and funds of Bengali Extremist Terrorists designated by the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism, Arakan Rohingya Salvation Army, and persons who are related to such persons and the name list of the Arakan Rohingya Salvation Army. According to the Standing Order No. 3/2017 of the Central Committee for Counter Terrorism, Countering the Financing of Terrorism Working Committee, all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers are instructed to regularly update the UNSC's list of persons and groups associated with terrorism and enhance customer due diligence to freeze and prohibit money, properties, and funds of the said persons involved in terrorism. In 2018, Myanmar FIU's Directives in relation to high-risk and noncooperative jurisdictions were circulated to all banks, NBFIs, and mobile financial services providers to apply Enhanced Due Diligence (EDD) measures to business relationship and transactions with natural and legal persons, and financial institutions, from countries called for by the FATF.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is a managed float. The CBM has no predetermined target for the level of the kyat exchange rate and expects the value to fluctuate with supply and demand in the market. The CBM reserves the right to intervene to moderate excessive exchange rate volatility in the foreign exchange market. Since November 2021, the exchange rate remained stable against the US dollar with two realignments, one in April 2022 and a second one in August 2022, each within a 6-month period. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate was reclassified retroactively to stabilized from other managed effective November 12, 2021. The CBM published its intervention data on its website timely whenever there is foreign exchange auction.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CBM computes and publishes the daily reference exchange rate based on transactions in the foreign exchange market in accordance with CBM Instruction No. 5/2019. The reference exchange rate is computed by assigning weights to the average rate between executed interbank foreign exchange transactions among AD banks, and the average rate of transactions between AD banks and their customers. This reference rate is an indicative rate, and participants in the foreign exchange market are not required to use it in their transactions. Indicative cross-rates for certain other currencies are based on Thomson Reuters and the IMF website. Since February 2021, reference rate determination has been paused several times with the CBM taking decision about the reference exchange rate. CBM auction rates had been used as the reference rate until end of March 2022. After that, the reference rate has been fixed with occasional revision. The reference rate was set at MMK1850/USD on April 4, 2022. Effective April 3, 2022, the CBM notified the inflows of foreign exchange of all Myanmar at banks must be exchanged into local currency within one working day. The exchange rate was fixed at MMK1850/USD and reset at MMK2100/USD effective August 5, 2022.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	The CBM has been exercising Reserve Money Targeting monetary policy framework. Under this framework, reserve money is the operational target and broad money is the intermediate target. Currently, the CBM is conducting deposit auction based on the moderate level of inflation. The CBM also stipulates the reserve requirement ratio for all banks to control the broader monetary conditions. The CBM has temporarily suspended the deposit auction as of March 26, 2020. As of May 3, 2023, the minimum reserve requirement ratio for banks is 3.5%.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The spot market consists of the retail money changer counters and wholesale AD market, including foreign exchange auctions organized by the CBM. As of August 15, 2023, 21 private banks and 324 nonbank companies were licensed to carry out the money changing business. Of these private banks, 19 are also licensed as ADs and may conduct wholesale noncash transactions. In addition, 3 state banks and 17 foreign bank branches and 3 foreign bank subsidiaries are licensed as ADs. Some state banks also have money changing counters. The Myanmar Foreign Trade Bank has three MC counters, the Myanmar Investment and Commercial Bank (MICB) maintains one MC counter, and the Myanmar Economic Bank (MEB) maintains three MC counters out of 22. The CBM reintroduced a trading band (reference rate ± 0.5%) on November 9, 2021, and again revised down (reference rate ± 0.3%) effective August 10, 2022. Customers may buy or sell in the retail market up to US$10,000 or its equivalent in Singapore dollars (SGD), euros (EUR), Thai baht, and Malaysian ringgit without documentation. For larger amounts, documentation may be required.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	The CBM conducts one-way foreign exchange auction rules. All AD license banks can participate in the auction. Banks will be notified for the foreign exchange auction at least 30 minutes before the auction. The foreign exchange auction notification includes time and date of the auction, foreign currency, auction type, (buying/selling), auction volume, minimum and maximum exchange rates, settlement date, and bidding time. Currently, the auctions are conducted only in US dollars (USD). Since March 2022, no auction has taken place.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Wholesale private banks authorized to deal in foreign exchange may settle foreign exchange transactions among themselves through foreign currency accounts abroad. ADs are allowed to offer larger noncash foreign exchange services to customers and to trade directly with each other in the AD market. Actual exchange rates quoted by wholesale foreign exchange interbank market are the prevailing market rates. Authorized private banks participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. Thus far, 34 banks have accessed the interbank market activities, and the turnover sees a prominent improvement. The CBM does not intervene with market participants in the interbank market.

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Settlements with member countries of the ACU are made in ACU dollar/ACU euro (ACUD/ACUE) through the ACU mechanism. 1 ACUD = 1 USD, 1 ACUE= 1 euro.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.
For capital transactions	Yes.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.
Credit operations	Yes.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	Residents may hold up to the equivalent of US$10,000 in foreign currency (euros and Singapore dollars) for six months after receipt. Foreign exchange account holders were able to transfer funds from their accounts to settle transactions between residents without approval until March 2022. Effective April 3, 2022, the CBM notified the inflows of foreign exchange of all Myanmar at banks must be exchanged into local currency within one working day. This was then relaxed to 30 days (except 65% of export earnings) effective August 16, 2022. Residents may deposit the foreign currency in AD banks. The CBM issued a letter to the union ministries and regional governments to use only kyat for domestic transactions and payments, instead of the use of foreign currencies (primarily USD) as it creates higher demand for foreign exchange and instability of the foreign exchange rates.

Payments arrears	Yes.
Official	Yes.	The Paris Club creditors, in January 2013, agreed to write off 50% of all arrears (US$10 billion) and reschedule the remainder over 15 years with a seven-year grace period. The write-off is being phased in, with 25% after approval of the IMF Staff-Monitored Program and the remaining 75% on its successful completion. In February 2014, the Staff-Monitored Program was successfully completed with the support of the IMF. Under the Staff-Monitored Program, quantitative targets and structural benchmarks were met. Therefore, the second tranche of debt reduction went into effect in March 2014 to fulfill the 50%cancelation.

Changes during 2022 and 2023

Exchange Arrangement

Classification
Stabilized arrangement	01/01/2022	Since November 2021, the exchange rate remained stable against the US dollar with two realignments, one in April 2022 and a second one in August 2022, each within a 6-month period. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate was reclassified retroactively to stabilized from other managed effective November 12, 2021. The change is reflected as of January 1, 2022, corresponding to the first day of the period covered in this year's Annual Report on Exchange Arrangements and Exchange Restrictions.
Official exchange rate	04/03/2022	The exchange rate was fixed at MMK1850/USD.
	08/05/2022	The exchange rate was fixed at MMK2100/USD.
Foreign exchange market
Spot exchange market	08/10/2022	The Central Bank of Myanmar revised down the trading band to reference rate ± 0.3% from ± 0.5%.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements
Use of foreign exchange among residents	04/03/2022	The Central Bank of Myanmar notified the inflows of foreign exchange of all Myanmar at banks must be exchanged into local currency within one working day.
	08/16/2022	Foreign exchange inflows must be exchanged into local currency within 30 days (except 65% of export earnings) (previously within one working day).
Administration of control	04/04/2022	The military government established the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee to scrutinize and approve the use of foreign exchange.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted
Held domestically	04/01/2022	Any foreign exchange transaction (either domestic or abroad) requires the approval of the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee which allocates foreign exchange based on priorities.
Approval required	04/01/2022	Any foreign exchange transaction (either domestic or abroad) requires the approval of the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee which allocates foreign exchange based on priorities.
Held abroad
Approval required	04/01/2022	Any foreign exchange transaction (either domestic or abroad) requires the approval of the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee which allocates foreign exchange based on priorities.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	04/01/2022	Transfer of funds between accounts is no longer permitted without the approval of the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee.

Imports and Import Payments

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	04/20/2022	All imports are required to apply for an import license. Previously, government economic enterprises required an import license from the Ministry of Commerce for their own external trade of certain items which are included in the negative list. Private importers also needed import permit or licenses for certain items included in the negative list.
	09/01/2022	Imports of agriculture-related machineries, appliances, and equipment are not required to apply for an import license.
	06/22/2023	All imports are required to apply for an import license. Previously, there were exceptions for agriculture-related machineries, appliances, and equipment.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements

Surrender requirements

Surrender to authorized dealers	04/04/2022	The Central Bank of Myanmar notified to surrender (both trade or non-trade) foreign exchange earnings to AD banks within one working day.
	08/05/2022	Only 65% of export proceeds was required to be converted to domestic currency within one day. The remaining 35% could be used by the exporter on approval by the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee. If not used by the exporter it would need to be converted to domestic currency within 30 days.
	07/13/2023	The amount to be surrendered was reduced to 50% from 65%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers

Trade-related payments

Prior approval	04/04/2022	AD banks must receive the prior approval of the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee for all foreign exchange transfer. Previously, AD banks were allowed to remit insurance premiums without Central Bank of Myanmar approval. Surplus income of foreign airlines and payment of air freight charges to foreign airlines were allowed to be transferred abroad freely.
Quantitative limits	04/04/2022	The Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee (FESC) established foreign exchange quotas based on the available foreign exchange amount to be allocated. Depending on foreign exchange inflows (such as export earnings, remittances) and the priority to spend, the FESC allocates these foreign exchange earnings for import and loan repayment.

Personal payments

Prior approval	04/04/2022	Compensation payments to foreigners for accidents (air crashes) and pension payments must be transferred abroad as per approval of the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee. Previously, these transfers were done freely.

Foreign workers' wages

Quantitative limits	04/04/2022	Salary and lawfully earned income must be transferred abroad through AD banks as per approval of the Foreign Exchange Supervisory Committee. Previously, these transactions were done without Central Bank of Myanmar approval after payment of taxes.

Credit card use abroad

Quantitative limits	04/07/2022	The Central Bank of Myanmar stimulated the monthly maximum credit limit to be kyat 2.5 million (previously kyat 5 million) for international credit cards and US$2,500 (previously US$5,000) for

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market in Namibia has developed as an extension of the foreign exchange market in South Africa. ADs are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Foreign exchange bureaus are allowed to operate in the spot foreign exchange market and are subject to licensing by the CB. As of December 31, 2022, there were six foreign exchange bureaus in Namibia. Foreign exchange bureaus may engage only in travel-related transactions and may not transact directly with the CB. They may not maintain accounts abroad, and their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BON buys and sells Namibian dollars for rand at par with no commission. The BON deals only with ADs and the government.
Allocation	No.	The BON does not verify the validity of transactions when dealing with banks.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks trade among themselves in foreign currency. As of December 31, 2022, there were six banks participating in the interbank market. All these banks are licensed by the CB.
Over the counter	Yes.	There are eight commercial banks in Namibia. The foreign exchange interbank market in Namibia is still closely linked to South Africa's as most banks are subsidiaries of South African Banks. Because of liquidity constraints in Namibia, banks would often enter into interbank deals with South African counterparties. Banks are allowed to determine freely their bid-ask spread and foreign exchange commissions with their clients.
Brokerage	Yes.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	ADs are permitted to conduct forward exchange operations, including providing forward cover, with residents in any foreign currency with respect to authorized trade and nontrade transactions. Forward exchange contracts may cover the entire period of the outstanding commitments and accruals. Forward cover is also provided to nonresidents, subject to certain conditions. Gold mining companies and houses may sell forward anticipated receipts of their future gold sales. Forward cover is provided in US dollars only and is available to ADs for maturities not exceeding 12 months at a time in the form of swap transactions involving Namibian dollars (rand) and US dollars, with a margin based on the interest rate differential between the two currencies. The CB does not participate in the forward foreign exchange market.

Official cover of forward operations	Yes.	Special forward cover at preferential rates is provided for import financing.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	All countries outside the CMA constitute the nonresident area. The rand is legal tender in Namibia. Settlements by or to residents of the CMA within the nonresident area may be made in rand to and from a nonresident account or in any foreign currency.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	No.	Settlement by or to residents of the CMA within the nonresident area may be made in Namibian dollars to and from a nonresident account or in any foreign currency. There are no controls on the use of the Namibia dollar for current transactions and payments.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Namibian dollars may not be used to settle interest and principal payments.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Namibian dollars may not be used to settle interest and principal payments.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	Yes.	Namibian dollars may not be used to settle interest and principal payments.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	In accordance with CMA arrangements, residents are not allowed to transact business in foreign currencies. Transactions may be invoiced in foreign currencies, but payments must be made in the local currency.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	Namibia is part of the CMA, and no restrictions are applied to payments within the CMA.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The BON has delegated some powers to ADs that assist the BON in administering exchange controls. If an AD is not authorized to approve a transaction under the terms of the Exchange Control Regulations, an application is filed with the BON. The norms applied by the BON in scrutinizing applications are subject to CMA policy guidelines.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.

Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	The Exchange Control Regulations 1961 prohibit the purchase and sale, both domestically and abroad, of unworked gold by Namibian residents without the specific authorization of the BON. All such requests are considered on their merits.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents are permitted to purchase, hold, and sell gold coins within the CMA for numismatic and investment purposes only.
On external trade	Yes.	Exports and imports of gold require approval of the monetary authority.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Individuals may export no more than N$25,000 in BON banknotes in addition to the basic travel allowance. A currency conversion agreement between the BON and the National Bank of Angola allowed business people and traders to export Namibian dollars to Angola and Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia and exchange them for local currency for trading purposes. The import of Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia was suspended from December 1, 2015. However, Namibian dollars are still exported to Angola under specific arrangements in terms of the Currency Conversion Agreement.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents and contract workers departing from Namibia to destinations outside the CMA may take out their travel allowance in foreign banknotes. Foreign visitors leaving Namibia may take with them the unspent portion of the proceeds of foreign currency imported and exchanged in Namibia.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	On entry from countries outside the CMA, residents and nonresidents may bring in no more than N$25,000 in Namibian banknotes or R 25,000 in South African banknotes. There are no limitations on the importation of domestic currency from Eswatini, Lesotho, and South Africa.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Importation of foreign currency by nonresidents of the CMA is unrestricted. However, Namibian residents are allowed to import into Namibia only the residual balance of foreign currency initially exported. A currency conversion agreement between the BON and the National Bank of Angola allowed businesspeople and traders to export Namibian dollars to Angola and Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia and exchange them for local currency for trading purposes. The import of Angolan Kwanzas to Namibia was suspended from December 1, 2015. However, Namibian dollars are still exported to Angola under specific arrangements in terms of the Currency Conversion Agreement.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Resident private individuals are allowed to hold foreign exchange accounts with local ADs, subject to approval. Exporters may retain export proceeds for 180 days after receipt in foreign exchange accounts with ADs. Up to the equivalent of N$6 million a year may be held in a domestic foreign exchange account. Balances may only be effected through the commercial banking system on condition that all the requirements are met.
Approval required	Yes.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Held abroad	Yes.	Approval is required and is granted to resident individuals on the merit of the application. Approval is not required for investments up to the equivalent of N$6 million a year or to retain abroad income earned overseas. Balances may be transferred to the home country freely.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign bank accounts for investment up to the equivalent of N$6 million a year do not require approval.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Payments in foreign currency may be effected from resident accounts, provided the transaction is covered under the Exchange Control Regulations 1961, or with approval.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	ADs are required to open separate accounts on behalf of nonresident clients to distinguish between normal clearing accounts and foreign exchange trading accounts. This requirement does not affect the transferability of funds.
Approval required	No.	Nonresidents may open foreign exchange accounts, and funds in these accounts are freely transferable.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	These accounts may be credited with all authorized payments by residents, with the proceeds of sales of foreign currency to ADs, and with payments from nonresidents' accounts. They may be debited for payments to CMA residents for any purpose (other than loans), payments to nonresidents for any purpose, transfer to a local nonresident account or remittance to any country outside the CMA, purchases of any foreign currency, and payments to account holders residing in Namibia for short periods.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	These accounts may be converted, and no approval is required.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	Residents who emigrated from Namibia on or before February 28, 2002, may transfer their blocked funds abroad freely through an authorized bank. The assets of residents who emigrated after that date are subject to normal emigration procedures. Emigrants may transfer up to the equivalent of N$10 million a family or N$6 million an individual, inclusive of any assets previously transferred abroad. Transfers in excess of these limits are subject to a transfer tax of 10% of the amount in excess of the limit. Emigrants may subsequently transfer annual income from their remaining blocked assets but may not dispose of the assets through sale to Namibian residents.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Foreign exchange may be provided for advance payment up to 100% of the ex-factory cost of capital goods to be imported up to N$20 million. For amount above N$20 million, only up to 50% advance payment may be made. ADs must, however, ascertain that an order would be refused without the advance payment and that such payment is typical in the trade concerned. There are no limits on advance payments for noncapital goods.
Advance import deposits	No.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Documentation confirming receipt of the imported articles into Namibia (for example, a bill of entry or local mail receipts) is required.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	Yes.	LCs may be established locally by ADs.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	No.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	There are no restrictions on imports originating in any country of the SACU. Imports from countries outside the SACU are usually licensed in conformity with South Africa's import regulations. These permits are valid for one year for imports and are expressed in terms of value. At present, about 90% of imports require a permit.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Namibia has the right to restrict certain imports (through customs duties or quantitative restrictions) from countries outside the SACU and, under certain conditions, from countries within the SACU.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	Yes.	A general sales tax of 10% is levied on all imports in addition to a sales duty between 0% and 15%, depending on the type of commodity.
State import monopoly	No.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Export proceeds must generally be repatriated within 180 days of receipt.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.	Effective October 31, 2022, exporters may retain export proceeds for an indefinite period (previously 180 days) after receipt in a customer foreign currency account with an AD.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.	Exports from Namibia over the amount of N$50,000 must be accompanied by an export declaration, and the inflow of foreign currency must be declared on receipt of export proceeds locally.
Letters of credit	Yes.
Guarantees	Yes.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Other	No.
Export licenses	Yes.	Exports, except to SACU member countries, require a license.
Without quotas	Yes.	Permits are required for export of goods in short supply to non-SACU countries.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	No.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	No.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	ADs may approve trade-related invisible payments without limitation and other invisible payments up to established limits. Larger amounts may be approved on presentation of documentary proof of need.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Trade-related payments are allowed on presentation of documentary evidence confirming the amount involved. ADs may transfer license fees, demurrage and survey fees, and payment for samples sent for analysis outside the CMA with documentary evidence confirming the amount involved.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	BON approval is required for loans contracted by local companies with local sources.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	No.	Remittance of profits and dividends is permitted, provided the funds were not obtained through excessive use of local borrowing facilities.
Payments for travel	Yes.	Payments for travel allowances do not require passports to be endorsed.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	A single discretionary allowance for private individuals of N$1 million a person a calendar year may be used for donations to missionaries, maintenance transfers, monetary gifts, loans, and travel expenses. Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		September 6, 1961.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: May 30, 1994.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2020 Article IV Consultation with Nepal states that as of February 27, 2020, the Industrial Enterprises Act places a 75% limit on the conversion and transfer to foreign currency of salaries of nonresidents from countries where convertible currency is in circulation. Because the limit applies to amounts that may be less than net salaries, it gives rise to an exchange restriction under Article VIII. (Country Report No. 20/96)
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.	There are no exchange measures imposed for security reasons. Security-related exchange measures are taken indirectly through other laws that control such activities.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The Nepalese rupee has been pegged to the Indian rupee at the rate of Nrs. 1.6 per Indian rupee since February 1993. The reference rate of the US dollar quoted by the NRB is based on the US dollar/Indian rupee (USD/INR) midrate in the Indian foreign exchange market at the stipulated time. Buying and selling rates are quoted daily for certain other currencies, with quotes based on the buying and selling rates for the US dollar in markets abroad. The official exchange rate is fixed by the NRB. The NRB deals directly with the government and other public entities at the official exchange rate. The official exchange rate is used for accounting and valuation for NRB and government transactions.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market in Nepal comprises the NRB, licensed banks and financial institutions, remittance companies, trekking tour and travel agents, money changers, exporters, importers, and hotels. Under Foreign Exchange (Regulation) Act, 2019 (1962), institutions must obtain licenses from the NRB to deal in foreign exchange. As of December 31, 2022, 27 Class A banks and 7 Class B financial institutions were licensed to deal in foreign exchange with the public. BFIs at the national level may engage in foreign exchange transactions with the NRB to maintain their foreign currency positions. Financial institutions with paid-up capital of Nrs. 2,500 million are included in Class B national-level financial institutions. They may purchase and sell foreign exchange, maintain nostro accounts abroad, and make foreign currency payments and transfers, except restricted and capital transactions, on behalf of their clients. Commissions charged by ADs are regulated.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Market participants are allowed to pursue spot exchange rate transactions under prevailing NRB rules and regulations under the Foreign Exchange (Regulation) Act, 2019 (1962). Banks may freely determine their exchange rates for transactions with their clients for convertible foreign currencies, except Indian rupees. Twenty-seven Class A banks and 7 Class B development banks are licensed to carry out such transactions.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The NRB has an unlimited foreign exchange standing facility for banks and BFIs. The purchase and sale of US dollars between BFIs and the NRB take place through the NRB purchase and sale window, open Monday through Friday. BFIs may purchase convertible currency banknotes against their accounts with the NRB if adequate

Allocation	Yes.	The NRB verifies underlying documentation when dealing with ADs.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	There is no broker system or market-making agreement. BFIs are the participants in the interbank market. They may enter into interbank transactions in foreign currency, including Indian rupees, under mutually agreed terms and conditions. As of December 31, 2022, 27 commercial banks, 7 B class (development) banks and 3,010 other institutions were licensed by the NRB foreign exchange department. Market participants may determine their bid-ask spreads, up to 60 paisa on the US dollar.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Commercial banks may contract forward exchange cover for current account transactions under mutually agreed terms and conditions with their clients. Proprietary forwards up to 15% of core capital (outstanding at any time) are permitted for banks. The NRB does not participate in forward transactions.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Convertibility between the Indian rupee and the Nepalese rupee is unrestricted in Nepal. Payments and transactions with Bhutan and India may also be settled in Indian rupees, except when approval is granted by the NRB.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for international current account transactions. Current transactions with ACU member countries other than India must take place through the ACU. Goods and services imported from India through global tender by organizations, the corporate sector, and projects may be settled in US dollars. Other imports and proceeds from exports to India must be settled in Indian rupees. Proceeds from exports to other countries must be received in convertible currency. Commercial banks may engage in renminbi transactions with Chinese tourists, Nepalese visitors to China, and Nepalese students studying in China. 182 items may be imported from India and settled in US dollars. Guardian parents and students may make payments in US dollars from their US dollar accounts to a university or college for tuition fees. Commercial banks may make payments in US dollars for imports from India by international organizations maintaining accounts in foreign currency for their own use.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of capital transactions.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of capital transactions.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Domestic currency may not be used for the settlement of capital transactions.

Free floating	Yes.	The exchange rate arrangement of the euro area is free floating. The Netherlands participates in a currency union (EMU) with 19 other members of the EU and has no separate legal tender. The ECB publishes information regarding its interventions; it last intervened in March 2011. When it intervenes, the ECB intervenes at the quotes of the market makers.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The ECB publishes a reference rate based on the daily concertation procedure between CBs within and outside the European System of Central Banks. The publication time of the euro foreign exchange reference rates is around 14:30 Central European Time to around 16:00 Central European Time. The reference rate against the euro is the average of the buying and selling rates.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	To maintain price stability is the primary objective of the Eurosystem and of the single monetary policy for which it is responsible. This is stated in the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU, Article 127(1). "Without prejudice to the objective of price stability," the Eurosystem will also "support the general economic policies in the Community with a view to contributing to the achievement of the objectives of the Community." These include a "high level of employment" and "sustainable and non-inflationary growth." Price stability is defined as a symmetric 2% inflation target over the medium term.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	No exchange controls apply to either the spot exchange market or the forward exchange market. ADs may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Money transfer offices fall under the regulatory framework for payment service providers (PSPs) in the Financial Supervision Act (Wet op het financieel toezicht (WFT)). Under Section 2:3a of the WFT, no one domiciled in the Netherlands may conduct business as a PSP without an authorization from De Nederlandsche Bank (DNB, Dutch Central Bank). This prohibition does not apply to credit institutions authorized by the DNB. As of December 31, 2022, there were 243 PSPs, of which 87 were credit institutions and 156 were other PSPs. In 2021, there were 224 PSPs, of which 81 were credit institutions and 143 were other PSPs.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement for large professional market participants, such as banks. Smaller participants usually use a broker. In theory, there are no limits on bid-ask spreads. Excessive spreads, however, would be deemed "off-market" and are, therefore, not allowed. Commissions must also be market based. Intervention, if any, must be coordinated within the Eurosystem and takes place directly via market makers at their quoted rates (best price). Banks licensed by the DNB may trade in the interbank foreign exchange market.
Over the counter	No.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	The interbank market operates on the basis of a market-making agreement, under which participants commit to a maximum spread and a minimum amount to trade. To the extent that the necessary contracts are in place, banks may participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads and commissions of market participants.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	The CB may engage in foreign exchange swaps or foreign exchange forwards in the global market for investment purposes.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	No.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	No.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purpose of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders.
On exports	No.
Domestic currency	No.	Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU.
Foreign currency	No.	Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU.

Retail	No.	In June 2023, the European Commission published a legislative proposal for establishing the legal framework for a possible digital euro. The ECB, together with the euro area national CBs, are currently in the investigation phase of the digital euro project.
Wholesale	No.	DNB participates in working groups about trials and experiments with "wholesale" central bank digital currency. There have been experiments within the EU countries in the past, where DNB was not involved. There is no launch of an actual " wholesale" central bank digital currency yet, also not in other jurisdictions.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Measures have been taken to prohibit dealing with assets of the Taliban or of other designated individuals and organizations associated with terrorism, in accordance with the relevant UNSC resolutions.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Dealing with assets of the former government of Iraq, except for transfers to the Development Fund for Iraq or as authorized by the minister of foreign affairs and trade, is prohibited. As a UN Member State, New Zealand is required to implement UN Sanctions against a range of individuals and entities. UN Sanctions can include a variety of measures, including asset freezes and financial services provisions. In New Zealand, UN sanctions are implemented by regulations made under the UN Act 1946 and, in some cases, through the Terrorism Suppression Act (TSA) 2002. New Zealand can also separately designate entities associated with terrorism under the TSA. Under the TSA, it is an offense to deal with property of a designated terrorist entity. Effective March 18, 2022, under the Russia Sanctions Act and Regulations 2022, New Zealand has enacted a number of measures on individuals and entities connected with Russia's illegal invasion of Ukraine that have impacts on international payments and transfers. This includes prohibitions on dealing with assets and securities of sanctioned persons (that is, asset freezes) and prohibitions on dealing with services in relation to sanctioned persons, including financial services. Individuals and entities sanctioned include President Putin, political, economic, and military elites, financial institutions including banks, state-owned enterprises, defense entities, and disinformation and malicious cyber actors. Under the Russia Sanctions Act, it is an offense to knowingly or recklessly breach a sanction without lawful justification or reasonable excuse.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The exchange rate is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The Reserve Bank of New Zealand (RBNZ) may intervene if the exchange rate is exceptionally high or low, if that rate is not justified by economic fundamentals, and if there is a material prospect that the intervention will influence the exchange rate. Interventions may not be used as an attempt to influence the long-term trend of the exchange rate. The RBNZ publishes information on its foreign currency assets and liabilities, including its foreign currency intervention capacity (stock of reserves available for intervention) and foreign exchange swap position, on its website but does not publish data on its direct intervention. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The RBNZ publishes a reference exchange rate for statistical purposes, sourced from the New Zealand Financial Markets Association. The New Zealand Financial Markets Association publishes reference rates for the New Zealand dollar at 2:00 p.m. (also known as the WM/Reuters New Zealand dollar 2:00 p.m. fixes), based on internationally accepted best practice calculation methods.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	Under the RBNZ Act 2021 (Sections 10(1)(a)(i) and 117), the RBNZ, acting through the MPC, has the function of formulating a monetary policy directed to the economic objectives of achieving and maintaining stability in the general level of prices over the medium term and supporting maximum sustainable employment. The operational objectives for monetary policy are set out in a remit that is issued by the Minister of Finance or in a remit made by a legislative instrument (Order in Council). On March 1, 2021, the RBNZ (Replacement of Remit for MPC) Order 2021 (Order) requires the MPC to assess the effect of its monetary policy decisions on the government's policy to support more sustainable house prices, in addition to its previous operational objectives. The Order will be revoked on February 13, 2024. The Minister of Finance issued the current remit for the Monetary Policy Committee, effective June 28, 2023. The remit specifies the MPC's operational objectives as follows: (1) achieve and maintain future annual inflation between 1% and 3% over the medium term, with a focus on keeping future inflation near the 2% mid-point, and (2) support maximum sustainable employment. The MPC operates under a charter that includes requirements to promote transparency and accountability in connection with the performance of the MPC's functions and the MPC's decision-making procedures. The current MPC Charter has been in place from June 28, 2023, and was agreed between the Minister of Finance and the Governor. All future charters will be agreements between the Minister of Finance and the MPC. The Minister and MPC can agree to review the charter at any time, and it must be reviewed whenever the remit is reviewed (every five years). The MPC consists of between 5 and 7 members, comprising the Governor, 2–3 other employees or officers of RBNZ, and 2–3 individuals external to the RBNZ. The Governor is Chair of the MPC. The MPC Charter states that the MPC is to aim to reach consensus on decisions, but that when consensus cannot be reached the decision will be by vote (simple majority).

Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The target is defined in terms of the All Groups CPI published by Statistics New Zealand. This records the change in the price of a weighted "basket" of goods and services purchased by an "average" New Zealand household. The percentage change of this index is typically referred to as "CPI inflation." The contents of the basket are defined by Statistics New Zealand, which periodically reviews and re-weights them, using data obtained from its annual Household Economic Survey.

Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Tariffs apply mainly to imported manufactured products that compete with domestic production. Most primary products that compete with domestic production are admitted duty-free. In 2009, all remaining tariff rates were reduced to either 10% or 5%. Import tariffs will remain at their current levels until at least June 2021. Tariffs on clothing, footwear, carpets, ambulances, and motor homes are set at 10%. There are multilateral, bilateral, and regional preferential tariffs. On December 30, 2018, the Comprehensive and Progressive Agreement for Trans-Pacific Partnership (CPTPP) entered into force among Australia, Canada, Japan, Mexico, New Zealand, and Singapore. Under reciprocal free trade agreements, tariffs on goods originating from the following countries or territories have either been removed or are being reduced for eventual elimination: Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Canada, Chile, China, Hong Kong SAR, Japan, Korea, Malaysia, Mexico, Singapore, Taiwan Province of China, Thailand, and ASEAN member countries. The ASEAN-Australia-New Zealand Free Trade Agreement (AANZFTA) is in effect between Australia, Brunei Darussalam, Cambodia, Indonesia, Lao P.D.R., Malaysia, Myanmar, New Zealand, Philippines, Singapore, Thailand, and Vietnam. Goods from least developed countries and Pacific island economies are duty-free under nonreciprocal free trade arrangements. Eligible imports from the UK and developing economies are also given tariff preference. In August 2017, the government decided to keep import tariffs unchanged until at least July 31, 2021, except where they are being reduced through trade agreements. The Tariff (Concessions) Amendment Order 2014 went into effect, introducing temporary tariff concessions on residential building materials to assist Canterbury earthquake rebuilding and Auckland housing demand. This tariff concession was reviewed in October 2018 and will remain in place. It is due for review in 2023. In 2020, the government temporarily removed tariffs on all medical and hygiene imports needed for the COVID-19 response, with a view to permanently eliminate customs duties on these products. Further work is under way to voluntarily eliminate duties on vaccine-related products as part of the Asia Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC) Statement on COVID-19 Vaccine Supply Chains. On September 9, 2021, the government removed tariffs on phials, vials, medical grade refrigerators/freezers, and ultra-violet irradiation equipment needed for the COVID-19 response, by making a concession under Section 8 of the Tariff Act 1988. Legislation (a Tariff Amendment Order under the Tariff Act 1988) is currently being prepared to permanently remove the tariffs on these products.

either a date appointed by the Governor-General by Order in Council, or, if not earlier brought into force, 2 years after the date on which the Act received Royal Assent (June 2, 2020).

On July 5, 2021, changes to inward direct investment introduced by the Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2021 (shown in Section 10 of the Overseas Investment Act 2005) replaced the old regime. The primary change to these sections is that they allow incremental investments between "ownership and control interest limits" (more than 25%, 50%, 75%, 100%) which no longer require consent.
On July 5, 2021, the reform also removes certain widely held bodies corporate that are both New Zealand-incorporated and New Zealand-listed from the definition of "overseas person," as reflected in Sections 7(2) and 7(3) of the Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2021.
On June 7, 2021, the permanent regime was brought into force by the Overseas Investment (Commencement of Permanent Call-in Regime) Amendment Regulations 2021.

Consent is required under Section 10 of the Overseas Investment Act 2005 for overseas investments in sensitive land. Section 12 sets out that:
An overseas investment in sensitive land is the acquisition by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of all or any of the following (a Section 12 interest):
an estate or interest in land if:
the land that the estate or interest relates to is sensitive land under Part 1 of Schedule 1; and the estate or interest acquired is:
a freehold estate; or if the land that the interest relates to is residential land, any interest in land (other than an exempted interest) for a total term (as calculated in accordance with Schedule 1A) of 3 years or more; or if the land that the interest relates to is sensitive (but not residential) land, any interest in land (other than an exempted interest) for a total term (as calculated in accordance with Schedule 1A) of 10 years or more:
rights or interests in securities of a person (A) if A owns or controls (directly or indirectly) an estate or interest in land described in paragraph (a) and, as a result of the acquisition:
the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) has a more than 25% ownership or control interest in A; or the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) has an increase in an existing more than 25% ownership or control interest in A that:
results in an ownership or control interest in A that equals or exceeds their ownership or control interest limit as set out in subsection (2); or is in securities of A of a different class to the class in which their existing interest is held; or gives the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) any or more disproportionate access to or control of a strategically important business; or
A becomes an overseas person in any of the following circumstances:
A is a body corporate that is a New Zealand listed issuer and meets the control test in Section 7(3) (b);
A is a managed investment scheme that is a New Zealand listed issuer and meets the control test in Section 7(4) (b);

A is not a New Zealand listed issuer.
The ownership or control interest limits are as follows:
if their existing ownership or control interest in A amounts to more than 25% but less than 50%, their ownership or control interest limit is 50%;
if their existing ownership or control interest in A amounts to 50% or more but less than 75%, their ownership or control interest limit is 75%;
if their existing ownership or control interest in A amounts to 75% or more, their ownership or control interest limit is 100%.

Consent is required under Section 10 of the Overseas Investment Act 2005 for overseas investments in significant business assets. Section 13 sets out that:

An overseas investment in significant business assets is:
the acquisition by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of rights or interests in securities of a person (A) if:
as a result of the acquisition, the overseas person or the associate (either alone or together with its associates) has a more than 25% ownership or control interest in A or an increase in an existing more than 25% ownership or control interest in A of a type referred to in Section 12(1) (b) (ii); and the value of the securities or consideration provided, or the value of the assets of A or A and its more than 25% subsidiaries, exceeds $100 million or an alternative monetary threshold that applies in accordance with regulations made under Section 61A; or the establishment by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of a business in New Zealand (either alone or with any other person) if:
the business is carried on for more than 90 days in any year (whether consecutively or in aggregate); and the total expenditure expected to be incurred, before commencing the business, in establishing that business exceeds $100 million or an alternative monetary threshold that applies in accordance with regulations made under Section 61A; or the acquisition by an overseas person, or an associate of an overseas person, of property (including goodwill and other intangible assets) in New Zealand used in carrying on business in New Zealand (whether by 1 transaction or a series of related or linked transactions) if the total value of consideration provided exceeds $100 million or an alternative monetary threshold that applies in accordance with regulations made under Section 61A.
However, an overseas person that was lawfully carrying on business in New Zealand on January 15, 1996 (which was when the Overseas Investment Regulations 1995 came into force), does not require consent for an overseas investment in significant business assets described in subsection (1) (b) if the investment requires consent only because it comes within that paragraph.

The Overseas Investment Amendment Regulations 2021 also introduced an applied for exemption from the definition of overseas person for domestically incorporated non-listed bodies corporate and managed investment schemes. This exemption generally lines up with the exemption from the definition of “overseas person” for listed issuers.

“Most investments, including those in significant business assets and sensitive land, require the investor to meet an investor test.”

Consent is required under Section 57B of the Fisheries Act 1996 for the acquisition by an overseas person or associate of (1) an interest-in-fishing quota or (2) rights or interests in securities of a person (A), if A owns (directly or indirectly) an interest-in-fishing quota and as a result of the acquisition the overseas person or associate has an ownership or control interest of more than 25% in A, or A becomes an overseas person. Fishing quota investments must meet an investor and a benefit to New Zealand test.

Only New Zealanders may acquire, without the consent of the Crown, 49.9% or more of the shares of Chorus Limited or an interest in equity securities that confers 10% or more of the total voting rights in Air New Zealand Limited. Under the Overseas Investment Regulations 2005, certain securitization and underwriting arrangements are exempt from the above requirements.

A number of New Zealand's free trade agreements, such as the Comprehensive and Progressive Trans Pacific Partnership and the New Zealand-Australia Closer Economic Relations Trade Agreement, establish higher monetary thresholds for screening of significant business assets for nongovernment investors.

On August 22, 2018, the Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2018 received Royal assent. As a result of these amendments, from October 22, 2018, "residential land" is a category of "sensitive land" in the Act. As such, overseas persons must generally obtain consent to acquire residential land. Consent may be granted in circumstances where the applicant is: committing to reside and become tax resident, in New Zealand (that is, spending at least 183 days of every year in New Zealand living in the residence for which consent to purchase was received); committing to increase the stock of residential housing on a piece of land (either by building a new, or expanding an existing, residential development or long-term accommodation facility); or to convert to a non-residential use (that is, establishing business operations on the site). Consistent with the Protocol on Investment to the New Zealand–Australia Closer Economic Relations Trade Agreement and the New Zealand–Singapore Closer Economic Partnership, Australian and Singaporean investors are not subject to screening of residential (but not otherwise sensitive) land. Consent may also be granted for overseas persons to acquire residential land subject to an exemption certificate; however, there are still restrictions on their use of the land under such circumstances – including a requirement that they cannot reside at the property. The Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2018 also narrows the existing exemptions for profits à prendre. In particular, from October 22, 2018, consent is required for an overseas person to obtain an interest in forestry-related profits à prendre of 1000 hectares or greater a year and other regulated profits à prendre of five hectares or more. At the same time as the range of land interests for which consent is required to conduct forestry activities was expanded, the pathways to obtain consent to acquire forestry assets (whether freehold, leasehold, profits à prendre, or through a forest registration right) were streamlined through the introduction of "the special benefits test relating to forestry activities." Under this test, investors may obtain consent to acquire forestry assets if they satisfy the criteria specified in the Overseas Investment Regulations 2005. The Overseas Investment (Forestry) Amendment Act came into force effective August 16, 2022. The Amendment Act strengthens the rules relating to overseas investment that result in the conversion of land to production forestry. The key change is the removal of forestry conversions from the Overseas Investment Act 2005's "special forestry test" and to instead apply the "benefit to New Zealand" test to these investments.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	On July 5, 2021, the latest reforms (Overseas Investment Amendment Act 2021) have generally liberalized the regime, seeking to decrease the amount of low-risk investments being screened under the regime. New Zealand Treasury officials have estimated that the reforms have reduced the number of transactions that are subject to screening by approximately 30%. Foreign investment in certain types of land must meet an investor test and generally must benefit New Zealand or a group of New Zealanders. If sensitive land is farm land, the benefit must be substantial and identifiable. Consent is required for acquisitions of the following: nonurban land exceeding five hectares; land adjoining a marine and coastal area, lakebed, conservation land and reserves, regional parks, national parks, and some land significant to Māori. As a result of these amendments, from October 22, 2018, "residential land" is a category of "sensitive land" in the Act. As such, overseas persons must generally obtain consent to acquire residential land. Consent may be granted in circumstances where the applicant is: committing to reside, and become tax resident, in New Zealand (that is, spending at least 183 days of every year in New Zealand living in the residence for which consent to purchase was received); committing to increase the stock of residential housing on a piece of land (either by building a new, or expanding an existing, residential development or long-term accommodation facility); or to convert to a non-residential use (that is, establishing business operations on the site). Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	No.	On March 31, 2021, the Reserve Bank eased dividend restrictions to allow banks to pay up to 50% of their earnings as dividends to shareholders, and the restriction on redeeming non-CET1 capital instruments was removed. The dividend restrictions were fully lifted effective July 1, 2022. On April 2, 2020, the minimum requirement for the core funding ratio was reduced from 75% to 50% to support banks' lending during COVID. Effective January 1, 2022, the limit was returned to 75%. Effective October 1, 2023, the Reserve Bank amended existing rules to adjust credit risk weights that apply to exposures of regulated banks to "connected persons." Effective October 1, 2023, the Reserve Bank also introduced rules that provide for mutually structured regulated banks and nonbank deposit takers (credit unions, building societies, and cooperatives) to issue capital instruments that meet capital definitions for regulatory capital recognition.

		The requirement for consent does not apply to the extent that giving effect to a transaction has the effect of the acquisition of property by or on behalf of an overseas person that is the supervisor or manager of a retirement scheme (RS) (within the meaning of Section 6(1) of the Financial Markets Conduct Act 2013) from the investment of all or part of the assets of the scheme for the benefit of members at least 75% of whom are New Zealand citizens or persons ordinarily resident in New Zealand. This is pursuant to Regulation 44, introduced by the Overseas Investment Amendment Regulations 2018, which effectively exempts RSs from the definition of an overseas person. The difference between the new position and the old position is that investments (a New Zealand company, for instance) downstream from the RS are no longer required to count the RS's holdings when determining whether they are an overseas person, as the RS is exempt from the definition of overseas person.

The Overseas Investment Act of 2005 governs investments by investment firms and funds if the investment firm or fund is an "overseas person" and the investment is in "sensitive land or significant business assets," as defined in the law. Portfolio investors may apply for an exemption that results in their interest in a target entity not contributing to that entity being deemed to be an overseas person. To qualify for this exemption, the investment by the portfolio investor must generally be less than 10% and not grant control over the target entity.

Other security restrictions	03/18/2022	Under the Russia Sanctions Act and Regulations 2022, New Zealand has enacted a number of measures on individuals and entities connected with Russia's illegal invasion of Ukraine that have impacts on international payments and transfers. This includes prohibitions on dealing with assets and securities of sanctioned persons (that is, asset freezes) and prohibitions on dealing with services in relation to sanctioned persons, including financial services. Individuals and entities sanctioned include President Putin, political, economic, and military elites, financial institutions including banks, state-owned enterprises, defense entities and disinformation and malicious cyber actors. Under the Russia Sanctions Act, it is an offense to knowingly or recklessly breach a sanction without lawful justification or reasonable excuse.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF Staff Report for the 2019 Article IV Consultation with Nicaragua states that, as of January 30, 2020, staff identified an exchange restriction arising from Nicaragua's participation in the SUCRE (Sistema Unitario de Compensación Regional de Pagos) regional payments arrangement. SUCRE gives rise to an exchange restriction because the period for settlement under this regional payment arrangement exceeds three months. See Decision No. 10749 -(94/67). Under the SUCRE, Nicaragua made four commercial transactions between 2013 and 2015, and since 2015 no transactions have been made. (Country Report No. 20/59).

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate of the córdoba is determined and preannounced by the BCN. The official exchange rate is calculated daily using the formula, effective February 1, 2023, (1 + 0.01)^1/365. Previously it was (1 + 0.02)^1/365. The official exchange rate is used for BCN purchases of US dollars from the banks and the government and is used to calculate the exchange rate for BCN US dollar sales to these agents. The official exchange rate is used as a reference for the settlement of foreign exchange contracts payable in local currency, such as BCN bonds, and as an anchor for fixing market exchange rates.
Monetary policy framework
Exchange rate anchor	Yes.
U.S. dollar	Yes.	The monetary policy framework is an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the US dollar. Monetary operations are aimed at maintaining an adequate level of international reserves to support the crawling peg regime. Open market operations are the CB's primary monetary policy tool and are conducted to absorb a target volume of liquidity consistent with the desired level of reserve accumulation. In addition, the BCN buys and sells foreign exchange in accordance with banking system demand.

Exchange tax	No.	There is no tax, but the BCN applies, a commission of 2% to the sale of foreign exchange: the official exchange rate plus a commission of 2%.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	In the foreign exchange market, the observed difference between the selling exchange rate and the official exchange rate is usually less than 2% of the commission charged by the BCN for the sale of foreign exchange, given the current exchange arrangement. Agents may freely determine their foreign exchange commissions with their clients. The Exchange Desk Module continues to be operational. It is available to banks, financial institutions, and the government (through the Ministry of Finance and Public Credit) for online purchases and sales of foreign exchange (US dollars and euros) against córdobas. The Microsoft Management Console makes it possible to buy and sell US dollar against córdobas in real time and to buy and sell euros against córdobas with a delay (in deferred mode, in the sense that it is not automatic, but it is carried out in a few minutes within the same day) because they require BCN authorization.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Participants in the foreign exchange market are the BCN, the government, banks, financial institutions, exchange bureaus, individuals, and legal entities that usually buy and sell foreign exchange. As of December 31, 2022, there were 29 institutions registered with the BCN as participants in the foreign exchange market: 8 commercial banks, 2 financial institutions, 9 microfinance entities, and 10 legal entities.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCN exchanges US dollars and euros for córdobas at the official rate only for the government, banks, and financial corporations registered with the BCN. There are no restrictions on the amount, and the origin and destination of the foreign currency do not have to be declared. Transactions between the BCN and the government and financial institutions are effected directly.
Allocation	No.

Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are allowed to trade among themselves at freely determined rates. As of December 31, 2022, 8 banks and 2 financial institutions participated in the interbank market. The BCN does not intervene in the interbank market. Article 60 of the BCN Financial Rules indicates that the interbank market operates independently of the BCN. The difference between the purchasing price and the selling price and the commissions for market participants are not subject to limits.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank foreign exchange market operates over the counter and through repurchase operations in the Stock Market of Nicaragua.

Payments arrangements	Yes.	Public sector external debt contracts with bilateral and multilateral creditors include a payments arrangement specifying payment modalities and currency. There are no payments arrangements for private sector transactions.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	The Treaty on Payments and Securities Settlement Systems in Central America and the Dominican Republic remains in effect between the Dominican Republic, El Salvador, Guatemala, Honduras, and Nicaragua. Under the Payments Treaty, the Payments System Interconnection between Central America and the Dominican Republic is also in effect. In January 2013, the Treaty Establishing the Single Regional Payments Clearing System (SUCRE) went into effect in Nicaragua. Payments may take place through this system for trade operations with the other treaty signatories (Bolivia, Cuba, Ecuador, and Venezuela).
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	Exchange operations between private agents are not restricted. Banks, financial enterprises, exchange bureaus, individuals, and legal entities may freely buy and sell to the public US dollars or any other freely convertible foreign currency for any amount or purpose. However, banks, financial enterprises, and exchange bureaus are subject to prior registration with the BCN as participants in the foreign exchange market for statistical purposes.
Payments arrears	Yes.
Official	Yes.	Government and public sector arrears (most of which are attributable to the BCN) to bilateral creditors (non-Paris Club members) relate to debt subject to relief under the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative.
Private	Yes.	Negotiations continue on one pending claim (for about US$27.4 million) with a creditor that did not participate in the external commercial debt buyback operation (about US$1.4 billion) launched in October 2007 and concluded in December 2008. This claim is also subject to relief under the Heavily Indebted Poor Countries Initiative.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	The Ministry of Development, Industry, and Commerce (MIFIC) and the National Administration of Geological Resources coordinate, manage, and supervise the mining, production, and exportation of gold. Individuals and legal entities may trade gold coins only for numismatic purposes.
On external trade	Yes.	A permit from the MIFIC is required to export gold.

On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Imports equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a customs declaration. Imports of domestic currency are carried out by the BCN.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Imports equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a customs declaration. The BCN is the only entity authorized to import nonredeemable currencies.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Checking, savings, and term deposit accounts are available both in US dollars and in euros. There are no restrictions on transferring balances abroad, although a fee may be charged.
Approval required	No.	The opening of foreign exchange accounts in the national financial system must comply with SIBOIF standards.
Held abroad	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts must comply with the standards for the prevention of laundering of money and other assets and commodities and the financing of terrorism and with other SIBOIF, BCN, and Financial Analysis Unit standards.
Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Most accounts denominated in córdobas are indexed to the US dollar, except for current account deposits. Conversion may be effected through foreign exchange operations with financial institutions and exchange bureaus at buying and selling market rates.

Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.	LC requirements are regulated in contracts between importers and nonresident suppliers. Some import payments are made through certified drafts, but almost all are made through LCs.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	All importers must register with the unified taxpayers' register. They may obtain foreign currency in the foreign exchange market (financial institutions and exchange bureaus) without restriction. All purchases and sales equivalent to US$10,000 or more require a declaration indicating the origin and destination of the funds.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports of some medications for human and veterinary use and of agrochemicals require a license. Canned food products require a permit from the Nicaragua Ministry of Health (MINSA).
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Certain categories of imports are banned.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Import quotas under CAFTA-DR (Central America–Dominican Republic–United States Free Trade Agreement), for the Dominican Republic, Panama, and WTO countries, and tariff quotas for supplies (yellow corn, chicken, corn syrup, milled rice, and rice) are in effect. Under Decree A.N. No. 8784, every trade agreement with Taiwan is repealed.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Measures apply to certain imports, including those related to public health, national security, the environment, and national emergencies.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	The import tariff regime is harmonized with that of the CACM. The maximum tariff rate, which applies to chicken legs and thighs, is 164%. There is a tariff elimination schedule under the CAFTA-DR framework. A selective consumption tax is imposed on imports of sugar, alcoholic and nonalcoholic beverages, and tobacco cigarettes. Imports are subject to a VAT of 15%, with a few exceptions.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	A regional framework was created within the WAEMU to fight transnational financial crime. It comprises the Uniform Law on the Fight against Money Laundering, based on Directive No. 07/2002/CM/UEMOA, and the Uniform Law on the Fight against the Financing of Terrorism in WAEMU member countries, based on Directive No. 04/2007/CM/UEMOA. The overarching instrument facilitates the implementation of UNSC resolutions based on a list of people and entities prepared by the Committee. Directive No. 02/2015/CM/UEMOA of July 2, 2015, of the WAEMU Council of Ministers on the fight against money laundering and the financing of terrorism in WAEMU member countries is in effect. Effective March 31, 2023, the regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions (DNFBPs), and Virtual Asset Service Providers (VASPs); (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons (PEPs).

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The CFA franc is officially pegged to the euro, the anchor currency, at the fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. Exchange rates for other currencies are derived from the rates for the currency concerned in the Paris foreign exchange market vis-à-vis the euro. The official rate is used for accounting and valuation. The Conference of Heads of State and Government may decide to amend the Monetary Cooperation Agreement between the WAMU member countries and France. Effective September 2, 2022, Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.

Exchange tax	Yes.	A 0.6% commission rate is charged by registered intermediaries on transfers outside the WAEMU on behalf of their customers. This commission reverts to the National Treasury as tax revenue.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Authorized intermediaries (banks and nonelectronic exchange dealers) freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which must be traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The commission on foreign exchange transactions may not exceed 2%. Instruction No. 013-11-2015 on the terms and conditions for conducting rapid money transfers as a subagent within the WAEMU applies.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Nonelectronic foreign currency transactions can be conducted by authorized intermediary banks and individuals or companies specifically authorized by decision of the minister of finance, with the consent of the BCEAO. Authorized intermediaries must comply with the provisions in effect on the financial conditions for engaging in nonelectronic foreign exchange transactions that involve foreign currencies and must issue a transaction slip for all transactions with a client. Moreover, to provide satisfactory information to clients, they are required to (1) permanently post at their windows the rates actually charged for the different currencies and (2) post notification that a transaction slip must be issued for all foreign exchange transactions on presentation of the requestor's identity document. In their operations with customers, authorized banks and OTC dealers freely determine the buying and selling rates of foreign currencies, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 and may be subject to a maximum commission of 2.0%. As of December 31, 2022, there were 14 active banks and 6 bank-like financial institutions, which are also subject to the Banking Law. There were 115 authorized OTC exchange dealers, including 52 legal entities subject to regulatory provisions (specifically, Regulation No. R09/2010/CM/UEOA on the external financial relations of the WAEMU Member States and the law governing the fight against money laundering and the financing of terrorism), and 12 intermediary banks in Niger, 55 of which are legal persons, including 52 exchange bureaus. Authorized foreign exchange agents may purchase foreign currency from the BCEAO, which exchanges foreign currencies for CFA francs based on the euro exchange rate on international markets. These transactions are subject to a commission charge of 0.5%. Furthermore, only banks are authorized to hold accounts abroad and to carry out payments and transfers in foreign currency on behalf of their clients. Authorized OTC entities may only conduct sales and purchases of means of payment denominated in foreign currency.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The BCEAO exchanges foreign currency for CFA francs at the rates published on the international markets, with the exception of the euro, which is traded at the official fixed rate of CFAF 655.957 per euro. The nonelectronic currency exchange windows are open to owners of accounts on the BCEAO books and to the general public. A commission of 0.5% is charged on all transactions with the public (purchases and sales) and all withdrawals by banks and financial institutions (including euro withdrawals). However, commissions are not charged on cash foreign exchange transactions conducted by governments, officials of Member States of the WAMU on missions abroad, officials of the CB and their beneficiaries, and on payments made by banks and financial institutions.

Allocation	No.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	Transactions in CFA francs between authorized intermediaries are allowed. As of December 31, 2022, 12 out of 14 banks participated in the domestic currency interbank market. There is no regulated foreign currency interbank market in the WAEMU.
Over the counter	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, there were 115 authorized OTC exchange dealers, including 52 legal entities subject to regulatory provisions, specifically Regulation No. R09/2010/CM/UEOA on the external financial relations of the WAEMU member States and the law governing the fight against money laundering and the financing of terrorism
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to conduct the following transactions on the foreign exchange derivatives market with authorized intermediary banks established in the WAMU or with foreign banks: outright forward foreign exchange contracts (over the counter), foreign exchange options, foreign exchange swaps, and cross-currency swaps. Transactions in foreign exchange options are limited to the following two types of transactions: options to buy or sell foreign currency, available to residents of the WAEMU zone to purchase from an authorized intermediary bank in the WAEMU or from a foreign bank. Authorized intermediary banks are required to simultaneously cover the exchange risk they incur with respect to derivative instruments traded with their customers. The underlying commercial and financial operations must relate to imports and exports of goods and services by a resident, foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments), or direct foreign investment in a resident company. All legitimate foreign currency needs are ultimately met by the BCEAO. BCEAO forward exchange transactions are centralized at its headquarters.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Payments with countries outside the WAEMU are made in foreign currencies. Trade with other WAEMU countries is settled in CFA francs.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions and capital transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used as payment for current international transactions with countries outside the WAEMU.
For capital transactions	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the settlement of international capital transactions with non-WAEMU countries. Investments by residents of the WAEMU zone outside the WAEMU are subject to prior authorization by the minister of finance, and at least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing.

Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	The CFA franc may not be used for the settlement of transactions in capital and money market instruments with non-WAEMU countries. Foreign investment by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to authorization by the MOF. At least 75% of the investment must be financed through foreign borrowing. The interested party must request authorization through a letter designating the authorized intermediary to settle the payment. Purchases of foreign negotiable securities authorized by the regional capital markets authority to be issued or sold in WAEMU members do not require authorization by the MOF.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of WAEMU member countries may engage in the following operations on derivatives and other instruments with accredited banks established in the WAEMU or foreign banks: (1) forward contract, (2) foreign exchange swaps, and (3) options. Operations on derivatives with foreign banks outside the WAEMU can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone.
Credit operations	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted by authorized intermediaries to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to prior authorization by the Directorate of External Financial Relations of the MOF, after BCEAO approval.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	The CFA franc is the only legal tender, and residents of the WAEMU zone may not use foreign exchange for domestic transactions. Regulatory provisions require residents of the WAEMU zone to surrender to an intermediary bank all income or proceeds in foreign currency received abroad or paid by a nonresident.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	No.
Operative	No.
Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	Yes.	A monetary cooperation agreement between the WAEMU member states and France was concluded on December 21, 2019, replacing the previous agreement dated December 4, 1973. This monetary cooperation agreement is based on three pillars: (1) a common bank of issue; (2) a fixed exchange rate parity with the euro; and (3) an unlimited convertibility guarantee.
Clearing agreements	Yes.	There is a multilateral clearing agreement between the WAEMU countries and the other ECOWAS member countries (Cabo Verde, the Gambia, Ghana, Guinea, Liberia, Nigeria, and Sierra Leone) as part of the WAMA. All payments for current transactions between countries whose CBs are WAMA members may be made under the clearing agreement. However, this excludes transactions specified by the committee of governors of the CBs of ECOWAS members and payments for exports from one member country to another member country of finished products originating in countries whose CB or monetary authority is not a WAMA member.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The institutional reform of the WAMU and the BCEAO establishes the following new basic instruments: (1) the WAMU Treaty, (2) the BCEAO Charter, (3) the Bank Regulation Act, and (4) the Convention governing the WAMU Banking Commission. All WAEMU residents are treated as residents of Niger for the purposes of preparing the external position of banks, domiciliation and repatriation of export revenue, issuance and sales of securities, gold imports and exports, investment and lending transactions, and physical exports of means of payment and securities by postal package or ordinary mail. However, for statistical purposes with regard to the balance of payments, all countries other than Niger are considered foreign countries. Moreover, all transfers with other countries must be made through registered intermediary banks, the postal service, or the BCEAO.

Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Gold imports and exports require MOF authorization, except (1) imports and exports by the Public Treasury and the BCEAO; (2) imports and exports of items with a low gold content (lined or plated objects); and (3) imports and exports, by travelers, of objects made of gold limited to a total weight of 500 grams. Imports and exports of gold within the WAEMU area are not subject to any restrictions.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Travelers may freely export CFA franc banknotes from one WAEMU member country to another. Resident individuals (that is, from any WAEMU member country) and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from sending and receiving CFA franc banknotes issued by the BCEAO.
Foreign currency	Yes.	The reexportation of foreign banknotes by nonresident travelers is permitted up to the equivalent of CFAF 500,000; the reexportation of foreign banknotes above this ceiling requires documentation demonstrating either the importation of the foreign banknotes or their purchase against other means of payment registered in the name of the traveler or through the use of nonresident deposit accounts in local banks. Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling to countries that are not WAEMU members are required to declare foreign currency on their person in excess the equivalent of CFAF 1 million. They are allowed to carry up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person in banknotes not issued by the BCEAO. Larger amounts may be exported in the form of traveler's checks, prepaid debit and payment cards, conventional debit and payment cards, or other means of payment. Foreign exchange allowances issued by authorized intermediaries in the form of traveler's checks or prepaid debit and payment cards must be based on the need to cover customary, personal travel expenses, if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person. The issuance of foreign currency to resident travelers is subject to the presentation of travel documents and a valid passport or national identification card.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import domestic currency (CFA franc – XOF) banknotes. However, individuals and legal entities other than the BCEAO and its banking and commercial correspondents outside the WAEMU are prohibited from receiving banknotes in domestic currency (CFA franc – XOF). The redemption by the BCEAO of banknotes exported outside its area of issuance was suspended. Pursuant to this measure, registered intermediary banks are not authorized to receive shipments of CFA franc (XOF) banknotes from their correspondents located outside the WAEMU area.

Foreign currency	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone may freely import CFA area banknotes denominated in foreign currencies. Such means of payment in excess of the equivalent of CFAF 5 million must be declared to customs. Nonresident travelers must declare to customs foreign currency exceeding the equivalent of CFAF 5 million on entry and exit. Regulatory provisions require residents to surrender to an authorized intermediary bank all revenue or proceeds in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Foreign exchange accounts in currencies other than the euro may be opened domestically with MOF authorization after non-objection from the BCEAO. The authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on each such an account. These accounts are valid for a renewable term of up to one year. They cannot be credited with deposits of CFA banknotes or by debiting a CFA franc account. On expiration of the term set in the authorization, accounts are closed unless a new authorization is obtained.
Held abroad	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	Individuals who are residents of the WAEMU temporarily staying or traveling outside of WAEMU may open bank accounts outside the WAEMU to deposit foreign currency legally exported and any income acquired outside of the WAEMU during their travel or temporary stay outside of the WAEMU. These individuals are required to repatriate balances on such accounts within 30 days of return to the WAEMU. In any circumstance other than the foregoing, opening of foreign accounts by WAEMU residents is subject to MOF authorization by after non-objection from the BCEAO. The MOF authorization specifies the operations that may be credited or debited on such accounts. In the event of a failure to obtain a new MOF authorization, the accredited intermediary must request that the account be closed by the end of the term authorized and that any balance be repatriated to a WAEMU member country within eight days.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	No.

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.

		solidarity levy. Moreover, a cyclical import tax (taxe conjoncturelle à l'importation) and a degressive protection tax (taxe dégressive de protection) may at certain times be charged on some products. Neither of these two taxes had been applied as at end-2018. Imports from non-ECOWAS members are subject to a 0.5% community levy (CL/ECOWAS).
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.	No taxes are collected through the exchange system at the BCEAO. However, a VAT of 19% applies to commissions charged by authorized intermediaries for purchases or sales of foreign currency.
State import monopoly	Yes.	The government, through the Société Nigérienne des Produits Pétroliers, has a monopoly on hydrocarbon imports.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Resident economic operators are required to collect and repatriate within one month of the payment due date the entire amount of sales of goods abroad in the country of origin with the bank with which the transaction is domiciled. The payment due date is specified in the trade agreement and normally falls within a period of 120 days after the goods are dispatched.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Export proceeds must be surrendered by ADs to the BCEAO within 30 days of the payment due date, which may not exceed 120 days after shipment of the goods. To cover its current foreign exchange needs, the domiciling bank may hold up to 20% of its export proceeds as own foreign exchange resources. However, it must ensure that its total foreign exchange resources to cover its requirements do not exceed 5% of total customer demand deposits; otherwise, the surplus must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Proceeds must be surrendered to authorized banks within 30 days of the payment due date. Authorized intermediaries must then surrender the foreign exchange to the BCEAO by transfer through the issuing bank. Export revenue may be surrendered to intermediaries other than banks with which the transaction is domiciled if authorized by the BCEAO. Sales of foreign exchange by exporters to ADs other than the domiciling bank are permitted, provided they furnish the domiciling bank with the documents required for the domiciliation file to be closed.
Financing requirements	No.
Documentation requirements	Yes.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	Yes.	Export transactions of more than CFAF 10 million, except those between WAEMU countries, must be domiciled with an authorized intermediary bank.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	A customs declaration is required.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Authorization is required for exports of gold.
With quotas	No.

Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Taxes on exports and reexports are collected through customs. These include a statistical fee of 3% on exports and a special reexport tax of 10%, except for tobacco products, which are taxed at 5% for Nigeria-bound exports and 15% for exports to the rest of the world.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Payments and transfers for current transactions with WAEMU and non-WAEMU countries may be made freely through authorized intermediaries. Transfers exceeding CFAF 500,000 are subject to documentary requirements. Payments and receipts of foreign ships on stopovers in WAEMU countries or by WAEMU ships abroad are considered current transactions.
Trade-related payments	Yes.	Payments and receipts made by foreign ships on stopovers in WAEMU countries or by WAEMU ships abroad are considered current transactions.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Payments abroad relating to freight and insurance (including transfers of insurance not related to commercial transactions), unloading and warehousing costs, administrative costs, commissions, and customs duties and fees are permitted in general, subject to the presentation of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	Yes.	Payments for depreciation of direct investments require MOF authorization, because this type of depreciation is not specifically mentioned in the regulations.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Outward transfers of interest payments and proceeds from the liquidation of investments may be made by authorized banks, subject to presentation of supporting documents.
Payments for travel	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone traveling for tourism or business purposes to non-WAEMU countries may take out banknotes other than CFA franc notes up to the equivalent of CFAF 2 million a person a trip; larger amounts may be taken out in the form of traveler's checks, certified checks, or other means of payment and with supporting documentation for customary travel expenses.

Credit card use abroad	Yes.	The use of credit cards is allowed when issued by specialized institutions which, where applicable, must report such transactions on a quarterly basis to the BCEAO.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	For travelers, allocations of foreign currency in the form of debit and payment card must be justified by requirements related to travel and personal expenses if they exceed the equivalent of CFAF 2 million.
Other payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	As a general rule, payments abroad in amounts greater than CFAF 500,000 are subject to the presentation of supporting documentation.

Proceeds from Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be repatriated. Residents of the WAEMU zone are required to surrender to an authorized intermediary all revenues and income in foreign currency collected abroad or received from a nonresident. Such operations must be conducted within no more than one month after the payment due date.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	All proceeds from invisible transactions with non-WAEMU countries must be surrendered to an AD within one month of the payment due date. Resident travelers must surrender to an authorized intermediary, within eight days of their arrival in Niger, foreign banknotes and other means of payment denominated in foreign currency worth more than the equivalent of CFAF 500,000.
Restrictions on use of funds	No.

Capital Transactions

Controls on capital transactions	Yes.	Capital transactions between WAEMU countries are unrestricted. Outward capital transfers require MOF authorization, except (1) amortization of debts and repayment of short-term loans to finance industrial and commercial operations, (2) payments required on foreign exchange derivatives transactions or raw material or commodity derivatives transactions, and (3) transfers of the proceeds of liquidated investments or the sale of foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. Capital receipts from non-WAEMU countries are generally permitted.
Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Proceeds from the sale or liquidation of residents of the WAEMU zone's investments abroad must be repatriated within one month through a registered intermediary, if the resident does not have a reinvestment authorization.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	Yes.	Holdings exceeding the current needs of the credit institution must be surrendered to the BCEAO immediately. Credit institutions may hold net claims in foreign exchange with their banking correspondents outside the WAEMU to cover their current foreign exchange requirements in connection with customer transactions. In addition, ADs must surrender to the BCEAO, at its request, all BCEAO-issued currency and all or part of their assets in euros and in other foreign currencies.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Reinvestment of the proceeds from liquidation operations is subject to authorization by the minister of finance. In the absence of such authorization, these proceeds should be repatriated and surrendered within one month through an authorized intermediary. The surrender requirement applies to proceeds from all capital transactions.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	RCPSFM authorization is required for the following operations: (1) issuance or marketing of securities and real assets of foreign entities, (2) solicitation of investment, and (3) publicity or advertising for investment abroad. Securities and mutual funds issued outside the WAEMU by a private or public entity that is not a resident of a member country may not be listed on a regional securities exchange. The provisions are identical to those pertaining to shares and other securities of a participating nature. Soliciting the public of the WAEMU by nonresident entities is subject to authorization by the BCEAO in its capacity as the authority responsible for regulating the external financial relations of WAEMU countries. The Code of the Inter-African Conference on Insurance Markets (CIMA Code) requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
On capital market securities	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases in the country by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are unrestricted. However, these purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to authorization from RCPSFM, with the authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.

Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a prior declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities to liquidate an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue securities abroad, except for those constituting a loan, provided all issues are declared to the Directorate of External Finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from the divestiture of investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. There is no minimum holding period.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries is authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of resident entities, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.

On money market instruments	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance and sale of money market instruments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization, with the authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of money market instruments resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of money market instrument transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation (Article 8, Rule No. 09/10/CM/UEMOA).
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign money market instruments by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign money market instruments whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local money market instruments abroad. The sale of money market instruments to liquidate an investment abroad is subject to declaration to the Ministry of Economy and Finance (MEF) for statistical purposes. Residents of the WAEMU zone may also issue money market instruments abroad, unless they constitute a loan.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	The regulations governing shares or other securities of a participating nature apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	These purchases are subject to declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance of securities and the sale of corporate or foreign securities by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to RCPSFM authorization with the authorization of the BCEAO acting in its capacity as the authority in charge of regulating external financial relations. There are no controls on the sale of securities resulting from divestiture of an investment in the form of a transfer between a nonresident and a resident, but such sales are subject to the regulations governing the financial settlement of the operation. Settlement of securities transactions by transfer abroad or by credit to a nonresident account requires submission of an exchange authorization to the MOF for approval, accompanied by supporting documentation.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The purchase of foreign securities by residents of the WAEMU zone and the transfer abroad of funds for this purpose are subject to MOF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM. The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.

Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may sell local corporate securities abroad. If these operations result in foreign control of domestic establishments, foreign investors are required to make a declaration to the MOF. The sale of securities for liquidation of an investment abroad must be declared to the MOF for statistical purposes. Issuance of securities constituting a loan by residents of the WAEMU zone to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through an authorized bank and must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using derivatives. They must be backed by the residents of the WAEMU zone's imports or exports of raw materials and commodities. Residents of the WAEMU zone are not authorized to purchase raw materials or commodities on foreign markets for delivery within the framework of a derivatives transaction in raw materials or commodities.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Residents of the WAEMU zone may hedge risk using foreign exchange derivatives for the following commercial and financial operations: (1) imports and exports of goods and services; (2) foreign borrowing operations by a resident (drawings and repayments); and (3) negotiation of FDI in a resident enterprise. Foreign exchange derivatives can only relate to the purchase or sale, by a resident, of foreign exchange other than the euro or another currency from the Franc Zone. The use of exchange risk hedging derivatives on the domestic market is reserved exclusively for Union residents. Purchase of derivatives locally by nonresidents is not permitted.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Residents are authorized to carry out transactions on approved foreign exchange derivative instruments on foreign exchange derivatives markets with nonresident banks.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These instruments are subject to general regulations that apply to securities and investments. Residents of the WAEMU zone may freely purchase abroad or from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone call or put options on primary commodities or securities transactions. Residents of the WAEMU zone may not purchase commodities or securities in foreign markets to be delivered in complying with a put option contract. Put options must be placed on assets that can be acquired locally by the resident seller for delivery abroad in execution of the contract. Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency purchase options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign credit institution.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents of the WAEMU zone are permitted to purchase foreign currency sell options on the foreign exchange derivatives market from an authorized intermediary bank established in the WAMU or from a foreign (that is, nonresident of WAEMU) credit institution.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	Borrowing by residents of the WAEMU zone from nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be conducted through authorized intermediaries (whenever borrowed funds are made available for use in the country), unless otherwise indicated by the MOF.
Commercial credits	Yes.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The date on which payment falls due is specified in the contract and should in principle be no later than 120 days after the date of shipment.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls, and repayments of commercial credits are generally conducted without prior authorization, subject to the presentation of documents attesting to the validity of the commercial operation or of the services rendered, as well as the payment due date, to the licensed intermediary bank responsible for handling the repayment.
Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These credits require MOF approval. Outward transfers to service such facilities require an exchange authorization, subject to the approval of the MOF and substantiated by documentation.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	There are no controls on these credits, but they must be reported for statistical purposes to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance. The necessary funds must be transferred from abroad through an authorized agent. There are no controls on repayment of loans, provided the authorized agent handling the settlement is furnished with documentation attesting to the validity of the transaction. Borrowing abroad is unrestricted.
Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The granting of guarantees and sureties is subject to MOF approval. Transfers abroad of funds to service these facilities require the issuance of an exchange authorization, subject to MOF approval, and the submission of supporting documents.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These facilities may be granted freely, although the funds required for servicing them must be transferred abroad by an authorized bank. If, however, these transactions take place between a resident direct investment company and its parent company located abroad, they are considered to be direct investments and therefore require prior declaration to the MEF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.	Direct investment implies control of a company or enterprise in excess of 10% of the capital of the company (such as shares listed on a stock exchange). All investment outside of WAEMU by residents of the WAEMU, including investment through foreign companies under the direct or indirect control of residents of the WAEMU and investment by foreign branches or subsidiaries of companies established in a WAEMU member country, requires MOF authorization.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for purchases of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	FDI, including by resident companies that are directly or indirectly under foreign control and by branches or subsidiaries of foreign companies, must be reported to the MOF for statistical purposes. An investment is not considered a direct investment, unless it exceeds 10% of the capital of the company.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	The liquidation of investments abroad must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes. Reinvestment of the proceeds of the liquidation is subject to MOF authorization. If reinvestment is not authorized, the liquidation proceeds must be repatriated within one month through an authorized intermediary. The sale of foreign investments by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone is unrestricted, but must be reported to the MOF and the CB for statistical purposes.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Purchases for purposes other than direct investment in a business, branch, or company are allowed. They require a declaration to the MOF for statistical purposes.
Sale locally by nonresidents	No.	Sales by nonresidents of the WAEMU zone to residents of the WAEMU zone require the submission of supporting documentation to the authorized intermediary that handles the settlement and must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.	Personal capital transactions between residents of the WAEMU zone and nonresidents of the WAEMU zone must be made through the BCEAO, the postal administration, or an authorized intermediary bank, unless authorization is obtained from the MOF.
Loans	Yes.	The regulations governing securities and investments apply.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions require MOF authorization. The individuals concerned may not engage in such operations as a professional occupation without first being licensed and included on the list of approved financial institutions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions may be made freely but are subject to declaration to the MOF and the BCEAO for statistical purposes when disbursed and when repaid.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Inheritances and dowries are generally allowed. Gifts and endowments, however, are subject to MOF and BCEAO authorization. These transactions must be conducted through an authorized intermediary and comply with the relevant AML and terrorism financing provisions.
To residents from nonresidents	No.	These transactions do not require authorization but are subject to declaration to the minister of finance and the BCEAO for statistical purposes.
Settlement of debts abroad by immigrants	Yes.	Immigrants with resident status must obtain MOF authorization to settle debts contracted abroad, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone.
Transfer of assets	Yes.
Transfer abroad by emigrants	Yes.	These transactions are subject to MOF authorization if the value exceeds CFAF 500,000 a person. There are no restrictions on transfers of amounts below this threshold.
Transfer into the country by immigrants	Yes.	Foreign accounts (in foreign currency or CFA francs) of nonresidents of the WAEMU zone who become residents of the WAEMU zone must be closed. However, these residents of the WAEMU zone may maintain abroad bank accounts opened and financial assets acquired, while they were nonresidents of the WAEMU zone. New transfers to these accounts require MOF approval.
Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	These transfers are conducted free through authorized intermediaries, subject to the presentation of supporting documents and compliance with the relevant provisions on combating money laundering and financing of terrorism.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The Uniform Law on the Treatment of Dormant Accounts on the Books of Financial Agencies of the Member States of the WAMU by the Council of Ministers of the Union took effect September 28, 2012. Decision No. CM/UMOA/023/2012 sets the deadline (December 31, 2013) for including this law in the domestic legislation of the WAMU members. These procedures were included in Niger's legislation by law on October 17, 2014, and adopted by the National Assembly on October 23, 2014.
Borrowing abroad	No.	Borrowing abroad is unrestricted. For statistical purposes, these transactions must be declared to the MOF and the BCEAO when granted and when repaid, except for the following credits: (1) mail overdrafts: CFA franc overdrafts for durations not to exceed the normal mail delivery times; (2) LCs available by acceptance, issued to exporters at the request of the authorized intermediaries' foreign correspondent banks; and (3) credit provided pursuant to a financial agreement between a WAEMU member country and a foreign government or pursuant to an interbank arrangement approved by the Directorate of External Finance.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Banks and financial institutions are authorized to open accounts with their correspondent banks for settling transactions for their account or the accounts of their customers. However, banks are not authorized to hold in these accounts amounts that exceed their current requirements. In accordance with Regulation No. 09/2010/CM/UEMOA on the External Financial Relations of the WAEMU Member States, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold the following in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount on their books of import payments domiciled by clients, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency. The total amount of these assets may not exceed 5% of the clients' outstanding demand deposits. Assets in excess of foreign currency requirements must be surrendered to the BCEAO.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Commercial lending is allowed. Financial credits are subject to MOF authorization following BCEAO approval.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	No explicit regulations exist regarding these transactions, but MOF authorization is required with BCEAO approval.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	These purchases require MOF authorization if their issuance was not approved by the RCPSFM.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.	A reserve requirement of 3% has been applicable to banks in the WAEMU zone since March 16, 2017. Demand deposits, other debit deposit accounts, and loan accounts are included in the calculation of required reserves. The following four elements are taken into account in calculating the required reserves to be established in the CB: (i) demand deposits; (ii) short-term loans; (iii) gross claims abroad, including customer deposits in foreign currency; (iv) medium- and long-term loans. Required reserves are therefore established on a standard, settlement, or securities account based on eligibility for calculation of reserves allocated by the MPC.

Liquid asset requirements	No.	In accordance with the prudential framework applicable to banks and financial institutions carrying out banking operations in the WAEMU, the minimum liquid asset requirement is 75%. A 50% transformation ratio is also required to ensure that banks continually have more stable financing sources to finance their long-term uses.
Interest rate controls	Yes.	The wear rate in WAEMU member countries is set at 15% for banks and at 24% for decentralized financial systems.
Credit controls	Yes.	Loans of any kind, CFA franc overdrafts, and, in general, any advances granted to nonresidents of the WAEMU zone are subject to MOF authorization, after BCEAO approval. These claims are included in the external position of banks and financial institutions, which is subject to special monitoring.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.	Banking regulations make no distinction among resident deposit accounts, nonresident deposit accounts, and foreign deposit accounts.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	Yes.	Any overdraft or advance granted to a nonresident requires MOF authorization with BCEAO approval.
Investment regulations	Yes.	The regulations governing direct investment apply.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	All investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MOF authorization. At least 75% of such investment must be financed by foreign loans. Authorization is not required for the purchase of foreign securities whose issuance or offering for sale in the WAEMU countries has been authorized by the RCPSFM.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may, depending on their volume, be subject to authorization by the minister of finance. The banking law stipulates that investment by any person in a bank that would have the effect of changing the minority and/or majority voting rights requires authorization by the minister of finance.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments, up to the equivalent of 5% of total customer demand deposits. However, to cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold in non-WAEMU zone banks assets allocated to the execution of current customer operations, listed as follows: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount on their books of import payments domiciled by clients, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold deposits in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries as follows: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount on their books of import payments domiciled by clients, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.

On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No prudential ratios apply. Because of the surrender requirement, banks may not maintain open foreign exchange positions. However, the BCEAO grants individual dispensations that allow banks to keep working balances in their correspondent accounts to assist in the smooth completion of international payments. To cover their foreign currency requirements, banks are authorized to hold deposits in banking institutions located in non-WAEMU countries as follows: (1) demand deposits not exceeding the total amount on their books of import payments domiciled by clients, payable within a period of eight days, and (2) demand deposits not exceeding the balance of their open foreign accounts in foreign currencies other than euros and their open resident accounts in foreign currency.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Controls are imposed by the CIMA Code.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	The CIMA Code requires insurance companies of each CIMA member country to invest domestically a minimum of 50% of resources collected locally, with the remainder to be invested only in other CIMA member countries.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	The CIMA Code specifies that liabilities in a given currency must be covered by assets denominated in the same currency.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind by foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to authorization by the RCPSFM.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold with RCPSFM authorization in WAEMU member countries, all investment abroad by residents of the WAEMU zone is subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	The issuance, presentation, and floating of securities of any kind from foreign governments, local authorities, foreign companies, or international institutions are subject to RCPSFM authorization.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the exception of foreign securities issued or sold in WAEMU member countries with RCPSFM authorization, all investment abroad by WAEMU residents is subject to MEF authorization and must be at least 75% financed with foreign borrowing.

security reasons
Other security restrictions	03/31/2023	The regional framework was revised, and a draft law was adopted by the Council of Ministers of the Union. The law contains new provisions on preventive measures applicable to all reporting entities. These cover mainly the following points: (1) the redefinition of the scope of application of the law by reducing the number of reporting entities to three categories established by the FATF, namely financial institutions, Designated Non-Financial Businesses and Professions, and Virtual Asset Service Providers; (2) the strengthening of the States' role in implementing targeted financial penalties by designating a national body responsible for managing frozen, seized, or confiscated criminal assets and their recovery; (3) the strengthening of preventive measures; (4) the strengthening of responsibilities that fall to the competent authorities in regulating and supervising financial institutions; (5) review of the definitions of politically exposed persons.

Exchange Arrangement

Official exchange rate	09/02/2022	Executive Order No. 2022-21 of September 2, 2022, authorizing the ratification of the Cooperation Agreement, signed on December 21, 2019, in Abidjan (Republic of Côte d'Ivoire) between the Governments of the Member States of the West African Monetary Union and the Government of the French Republic was adopted. Under the monetary reform, the obligation to centralize foreign exchange reserves with the French Treasury has ended, and France has withdrawn from the Governance Bodies of the Central Bank.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2021 Article IV Consultation with Nigeria states that, as of December 14, 2021, Nigeria maintained the following exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement: (1) an exchange restriction arising from the prohibition to access foreign exchange at the Nigerian foreign exchange markets for the payment of imports of 42 categories of items; (2) an exchange restriction arising from the rationing of foreign exchange by the Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) in different foreign exchange windows, and its allocation based on the CBN's determination of priority categories of transactions; and (3) an exchange restriction arising from existing limits on the amounts of foreign exchange available when traveling abroad (business travel allowance/personal travel allowances, which cannot be exceeded even on verification of the bona fide nature of the transaction. In addition, Nigeria maintains the following MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3 of the IMF's Articles of Agreement: (1) an MCP arising from the practice of the CBN that results in the establishment of an exchange rate for use in official (government) transactions and some other transactions, which may differ by more than 2% from the rate used by commercial banks in other CBN foreign exchange windows (Secondary Market Intervention Sale (SMIS), small and medium enterprise (SME), Investors' and Exporters' Foreign Exchange (IEFX), and Invisibles); (2) an MCP arising from the large spread between exchange rates used by the CBN in its foreign exchange windows and the rates in the parallel market, caused by the CBN's limitation on the availability of foreign exchange which channels current international transactions to such market; and (3) an MCP arising from the potential spread of more than 2% in the exchange rates at which the CBN sells foreign exchange to successful auction bidders in the SMIS window. Crawl-like arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The CBN explicitly aims to maintain an exchange rate principally driven by market forces but intervenes to reduce volatility and to counteract speculative attacks on the national currency. The CBN publishes its intervention data, and this is also reported weekly by various news agents across the nation. Since July 2022, the exchange rate followed a depreciating trend within a 2% band against the US dollar. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified to crawl-like from stabilized, effective July 25, 2022. While the exchange rate has stabilized since February 2023, more observations are necessary to determine its new trend. Until then, the de facto exchange rate arrangement remains classified as a crawl-like arrangement.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	Monetary policy targets broad money (M3) as the Bank's intermediate target via a policy interest rate corridor. However, the Bank uses the monetary policy rate (MPR) to influence the overnight interest rate. The MPR was raised by 475 basis points between July 2022 and July 2023. Effective July 25, 2023, the MPR was at 18.75% from the previous 14.0% on July 19, 2022. The MPC set the asymmetric corridor for the CBN's lending and deposit facilities at +100 basis points and −300 basis points around the MPR effective July 25, 2023 (previously +100 basis points and −700 basis points around the MPR). The liquidity ratio (LR) was left unchanged at 30.0% over the period, while the cash reserve requirement (CRR) was increased by 500 basis points effective September 27, 2022, to 32.5% (previously 27.5%).

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	AD are not allowed to have a bid-ask spread exceeding N1.00. The commission charged by the ADs is guided by the provisions of the Guide to Bank Charges, which is reviewed periodically by the CBN. Unused Portions of foreign exchange purchased from the CBN must be returned to the CBN within 72 hours. According to the revised CBN's Guide to Charges by Banks, Other Financial and Nonbank Financial Institutions (revised) (January 1, 2020), the commissions are (1) 1% of the value involved—flat (or as determined from time to time by the CBN) for purchases from the CBN and (2) negotiable subject to a maximum spread of 50 kobo per US dollar for interbank purchases.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	The CBN established a single market structure through the NAFEX market, with the CBN participating in the foreign exchange market through interventions directly in the market and/or through the Refinitiv trading platform. It is used by banks to transact among themselves for proceeds from export and personal transfers. The NAFEX market is used to provide liquidity to investors and exporters, in a bid to boost liquidity in the system and reduce volatility in the market. The market participants in the foreign exchange market are as follows: banks (commercial, merchant, and non-interest banks) and bureau de change (BDCs) licensed by the CBN. As of December 31, 2022, there were 29 deposit money banks (DMBs), 34 primary mortgage banks, 882 licensed microfinance banks, and 5,392 eligible BDCs. BDC operators may only deal in banknotes and coins, buying and selling traveler's checks, and other business as approved by the CBN. They may not engage in foreign business or foreign correspondence relationships, or directly or indirectly in any form of outward or inward foreign currency transfers or credit card services. BDCs are not allowed to maintain accounts abroad. International Money Transfer Operators are only licensed to conduct international money transfers. Their customers include individuals and businesses.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	As at June 14, 2023, the CBN discontinued sales at the Retail, SME and invisible windows, hence all eligible foreign exchange transactions are now done via the NAFEX market and on the Refinitiv Trading platform. The CBN no longer operates window segmentation (priority sectors etc.)-based foreign exchange transactions. Previously, the CBN sold foreign exchange through SMIS, IFEX, SME, Invisible, and BDC windows.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.	Effective June 14, 2023, the CBN discontinued sales at the Retail, SME, and Invisible windows; hence all eligible foreign exchange transactions are now done via the NAFEX market and on the Refinitiv Trading platform. The CBN does not allocate foreign exchange to banks. The CBN conducts needs-based market-based interventions on a two-way quote basis principally to enhance supply and economic activities. All eligible foreign exchange transactions are conducted and operated via the NAFEX market. Previously, the CBN sold foreign exchange to the banks according to the availability and demand of foreign exchange and documented needs of customers of the participating banks. Windows through which the CBN sold foreign exchange through allocation were Invisible, SME, IEFX, and BDCs.
Auction	Yes.	The CBN on a needs basis intervenes by auction to the market principally to enhance supply and economic activities.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The Inter-bank foreign exchange market exists where banks can conduct trade in foreign exchange among themselves via the NAFEX market.
Over the counter	Yes.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward exchange transactions in the foreign exchange market are permitted among ADs and between dealers and their customers, provided the transactions relate to trade in goods and services. The CBN engages in foreign exchange forward transactions with the aim of transforming and deepening the Nigerian financial markets. These transactions take place with ADs in the market for the benefit of foreign exchange users in the economy.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	Yes.	Foreign exchange may not be sold in the foreign exchange market for imports of goods on the negative list, which is issued by the FMF. As at June 30, 2023, foreign exchange may not be acquired in the foreign exchange market for imports of goods on the list of items not valid for foreign exchange published by the CBN (CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/010). Imports of goods on this list are not prohibited, provided the importer uses their own funds without recourse to the Nigerian foreign exchange markets.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	Down payments on imports not exceeding 15% of free on board (f.o.b.) value of transaction are allowed. Advance payments are allowed subject to presentation of performance bond by the supplier from reputable bank in his home country.
Advance import deposits	Yes.	Advance import deposits are treated like advance payments. Advance import deposits not exceeding 15% of f.o.b. value of transaction are allowed. Advance import deposits are allowed subject to presentation of performance bond by the supplier from reputable bank in his home country.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Foreign exchange for imports may be released after submission of the required documents which include shipping and commercial documents.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	Yes.	Imports are subject to destination inspection instead of pre-shipment inspection, regardless of their value. Certain categories of imports, including used vehicles, vaccines, and explosives, are not included in the destination inspection program.
Letters of credit	No.	Importers may use LCs or their preferred payment mode for import payments. It is not mandatory to use LCs. Under the destination inspection program, the combined certificate of value and origin, packing list, and bill of lading are the key payment documents.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	The documents required for foreign exchange settlements for imports are: (1) bill of lading; (2) certificate of origin (formerly combined certificate of value and origin); (3) commercial invoice; (4) exit note (formerly exit gate); (5) form “M”; (6) packing list; (7) single goods declaration; and (8) product certificate. Transactions involving the use of bills for collection are permitted. Transactions executed by the private sector do not, however, carry any government guarantee or obligation. Remittances must be made through the official foreign exchange market or with autonomous funds, and the relevant shipping documents for the transactions must be handled by an AD. Single goods declaration is required for making payments and should be submitted not later than 90 days from the bill of lading date.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.

Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	As at June 30, 2023, imports of the following items are prohibited: live or dead birds including frozen poultry, bird eggs, pork, beef, cassava, refined vegetable oil, cocoa butter, powder and cakes, spaghetti/noodles, fruit juice in retail packs, water including mineral and carbonated water containing added sugar or sweetening or flavored, ice snow, other non-alcoholic beverages (excluding energy and health drinks), beer and stout, bagged cement, medications, waste pharmaceuticals, soaps and detergents, mosquito repellent coils, sanitary wares of plastic, domestic articles and wares of plastic (excluding baby feeding bottles and flushing cisterns and waterless toilets), toothpicks, retreaded and used pneumatic tires but excluding used tires for retreading of size, corrugated paper and cardboard items excluding baby diapers, incontinence pads for adult use and exercise books, telephone recharge cards and vouchers, textile fabrics, carpet and rugs of all types, garments and other textiles, footwear, bags, and suitcases (excluding safety shoes), hollow glass bottles of a capacity exceeding 150 ml (0.15 liter) of all kinds used for packaging of beverages, used compressors, used air conditioners and used refrigerators, used motor vehicles more than 10 years old, furniture excluding baby walkers, laboratory cabinets, stadium chairs, and skeletal parts of furniture such as blanks, and ballpoint pens and parts, including refills. There is a ban on the importation of fertilizer and other variants. Also, processing of Form M for the importation of maize/corn has been discontinued.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Products such as petroleum products and fish have import licenses with quota attached to it. According to Section 4 (1) of the Petroleum Act, no person must import, store, sell, or distribute any petroleum products in Nigeria without a license granted by the Minister. Fish Quota was introduced by the Ministry of Agriculture in 2013.
Other nontariff measures	Yes.	Imports require an appropriate insurance certificate issued by a registered insurance company in Nigeria. As at June 30, 2023, the list of items importation of which is not banned but is classified as not valid for foreign exchange on the Nigerian foreign exchange market is also part of non-tariff measures.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	In line with the 2008–2012 Tariff Book, in a second attempt to harmonize Nigeria's tariff regime with the ECOWAS CET, there are five categories of customs duties: (1) category 0 (0%): necessities such as most educational materials; (2) category 1 (5%): primary raw materials; (3) category 2 (10%): intermediate products—for example, refrigerators and televisions; (4) category 3 (20%): finished goods not produced locally and that do not require protection—for example, televisions, refrigerators, generators, etc.; and (5) category 4 (35%): finished goods that are manufactured locally and therefore require some protection in the interest of promoting local industries. Tariff protection is high for finished goods. In addition, the following import surcharges apply: a 5% port development surcharge, a 1% raw materials and development council surcharge, a 0.02% freight rate stabilization surcharge earmarked for the Nigeria Shippers' Council, and an ECOWAS levy of 0.5%. Certain categories of imports are exempt from import taxes. Imports that were duty-free in the past are now subject to a duty of at least 2.5%. Imports of sugar confectionery are prohibited. Imports of sugar are subject to a 50% duty.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.

		interbank (Nigerian banks) borrowing should not exceed 125% of its shareholders' funds unimpaired by losses.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Documentation is required.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	The CBN regulations do not preclude banks from extending credit facilities to nonresident individuals or companies. Each bank is expected to carry out appropriate due diligence and ensure that such credits are in line with its risk management policy and practices. Lending to nonresidents, including overdraft facilities, is given the same treatment as lending to residents, as provided in the CBN Prudential Guidelines. Licensed banks in Nigeria may grant loans and permit overdrafts for periods of up to 14 days and may increase the amount of any advance or overdraft by the amount of loan interest or bank charges payable thereon. Documentation is required. There are no credit restrictions for nonresident individuals or companies (other than banks) registered in Nigeria that are controlled directly or indirectly from outside Nigeria. Lending is subject to the single obligor limit of 20% of shareholders' funds unimpaired by losses. The CBN introduced some policy measures in response to the COVID-19 outbreak and its spillover effects. This included granting a forbearance to banks to allow them to provide temporary and time-restricted restructuring of the tenor and loan terms of facilities (to residents or nonresidents) granted to sectors impacted by the pandemic.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	The aggregate foreign currency borrowing of a bank excluding intergroup and interbank (Nigerian banks) borrowing should not exceed 125% of its shareholders' funds unimpaired by losses. The 125% limit supersedes the 200% specified in Section 6 of the 2001 Guidelines for Foreign Borrowing for On-Lending by Nigerian Banks. Banks should borrow and lend in the same currency (natural hedging) to avoid currency mismatch associated with foreign currency risk. The basis of the interest rate for borrowing should be the same as that of lending; that is, there should be no mismatch in floating and fixed interest rates, to mitigate basis risk associated with foreign borrowing interest rate risk.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Foreign exchange may not be acquired in the foreign exchange market for purchases of Eurobonds, foreign currency bonds, or foreign currency share purchases (2015 CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/010). Purchases of such securities are not prohibited, provided the purchaser uses their own funds without recourse to the Nigerian foreign exchange markets.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	No.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Liquid asset requirements are not applied to foreign exchange deposits. Banks are expected to meet a minimum LR requirement (ratio of specified liquid assets to current liabilities), which is currently set at 30%. Foreign exchange deposits are not included in the computation of the LR. The liquidity requirements are specified in BSD/DO/CIR/GEN/VOL.02/044 of January 29, 2009.
Interest rate controls	No.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	For prudential purposes, the CBN approval is required for banks prior to the acquisition of equity interests in financial, commercial, or other banks (domestic or foreign). The type of banking license/authorization issued to the bank is also a determining factor. Only commercial banks with international authorization may obtain the CBN approval to open/invest in foreign branches or subsidiaries.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	The inflow of funds is subject to the provisions of the Money-Laundering (Prohibition) Act and the CBN AML/CFT Regulations for Banks.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Net open position and foreign currency trading position limit the banks' ability to hold foreign currencies. The exposure limit applies to DMBs only. There are two types of exposures: (1) a daily foreign exchange trading exposure limit for long positions in foreign currency of 0.5% and for short positions in foreign currency −10.0% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses (CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/002) and (2) a net open position of foreign assets and liabilities of 10% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The exposure limit applies to DMBs only. There are two types of exposures: (1) a daily foreign exchange trading exposure limit for long positions in foreign currency of 0.5% and for short positions in foreign currency −10.0% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses (CBN Circular TED/FEM/FPC/GEN/01/002) and (2) a net open position of foreign assets and liabilities of 10% of shareholder funds unimpaired by losses.

Monetary aggregate target	07/19/2022	The monetary policy rate was set at 14% (previously, effective September 22, 2020 – at 11.5%).
	09/27/2022	The cash reserve requirement was increased by 500 basis points to 32.5% (previously 27.5%).
	07/25/2023	The monetary policy rate (MPR) was at 18.75% from the previous 14.0% on July 19, 2022. The MPC set the asymmetric corridor for the Central Bank of Nigeria lending and deposit facilities at +100 basis points and −300 basis points around the MPR (previously +100 basis points and −700 basis points around the MPR).

Allocation	06/14/2023	The Central Bank of Nigeria (CBN) discontinued sales at the Retail, small and medium enterprise (SME), and Invisible windows; hence all eligible foreign exchange transactions are now done via the NAFEX market and on the Refinitiv Trading platform. The CBN does not allocate foreign exchange to banks. The CBN conducts needs-based market-based interventions on a two-way quote basis principally to enhance supply and economic activities. All eligible foreign exchange transactions are conducted and operated via the NAFEX market. Previously, the CBN sold foreign exchange to the banks according to the availability and demand of foreign exchange and documented needs of customers of the participating banks. Windows through which the CBN sold foreign exchange through allocation were Invisible, SME, Investors' and Exporters' Foreign Exchange, and bureau de change.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. Under the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations (Article 33), the denar exchange rate is freely determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. This arrangement is still in place under the current legislation. However, the National Bank of the Republic of North Macedonia (NBRNM) participates in the foreign exchange market (Article 34), to achieve the goals determined with the monetary and the foreign exchange policies. The NBRNM is implementing the monetary strategy of targeting the nominal exchange rate against the euro, the intermediary objective of the monetary policy being the maintenance of the denar exchange rate stability. Thus, the NBRNM maintains a stable exchange rate within a narrow fluctuation band of bid-ask exchange rates determined by the Committee for Operational Monetary Policy. Size and direction of the interventions are published on a regular quarterly basis, in the Quarterly Report of the NBRNM (Balance of Payments section, Financial Account subsection, in the part commenting on the developments of the foreign exchange reserves). The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as a stabilized arrangement.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	On the basis of the daily quotes of the market makers, the NBRNM determines the nominal denar exchange rate against the euro. This rate is determined at the end of each business day as the average of the daily bid-ask quotes for euros among the market makers in the interbank foreign exchange market. According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, the official exchange rate is used for accounting and balance of payments statistics. The denar exchange rate is published daily on the NBRNM website.

Euro	Yes.	Beginning October 1995, the NBRNM implemented a monetary policy strategy of targeting the denar exchange rate against the German mark until 2002 and thereafter against the euro. This monetary policy strategy stems from the importance of the exchange rate of the domestic currency for a small open economy as a transparent nominal anchor for credible monetary policy. Accordingly, the monetary policy framework is using an exchange rate anchor vis-à-vis the euro.

Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	According to the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, foreign exchange sales and purchases must take place in the foreign exchange market. The exchange market operates at two levels: wholesale (companies, commercial banks, and NBRNM) and retail (transactions of natural persons with foreign exchange bureaus and commercial banks). The wholesale market is also divided into two segments: (1) transactions between clients and banks and (2) interbank market transactions. Banks freely set the exchange rate in transactions with their clients, in accordance with supply and demand in the foreign exchange market.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Banks buy and sell foreign exchange on their own account and on behalf of third-party accounts. Savings houses buy and sell foreign exchange only with a NBRNM license for foreign exchange operation. They may buy and sell foreign exchange on their own behalf only with banks licensed by the NBRNM to deal in the foreign exchange market. Other entities may purchase and sell foreign exchange on their own behalf only with entities (banks and foreign exchange bureaus) approved by the NBRNM. Foreign exchange bureaus have accounts with domestic banks and may engage in transactions, as legal entities, with those banks. Residents other than banks and foreign exchange bureaus, may purchase foreign exchange for payments abroad and sell foreign exchange collected from abroad in the foreign exchange market. Resident natural persons may purchase and sell foreign exchange in the market for other purposes as well. Residents other than natural persons, may not purchase or sell foreign exchange through foreign exchange bureaus. As of December 31, 2022, 241 entities were licensed for foreign exchange operations (12 banks, 1 saving house, and 227 foreign exchange bureaus). As of June 30, 2023, 246 entities were licensed for foreign exchange operations (12 banks, 1 saving house, and 233 foreign exchange bureaus).The foreign exchange bureaus cannot deal directly with the NBRNM. They may purchase foreign currency cash and checks from foreign and domestic natural persons and sell foreign currency cash to domestic and foreign natural persons. Effective March 18, 2022, NBRNM adopted changes to the Decision on currency exchange operations (Official Gazette of the Republic of North Macedonia No. 70/22), allowing foreign exchange bureaus to purchase cash foreign currency in euros from an authorized bank, but only because of lack of cash foreign currency in euros, for which it must conclude an agreement with the authorized bank regulating the conditions for purchasing cash foreign currency. Foreign exchange bureaus are not allowed to open and maintain accounts abroad. Their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes, where they may sell foreign currency cash to foreign natural persons in the same way as they sell it to domestic natural persons. Automated teller machines (ATMs) with a function for foreign exchange operations are available to banks. Effective October 18, 2023, the National Bank adopted new Decision on currency exchange operations, mainly strengthening the licensing criteria for owners and managers of foreign exchange bureaus. The NBRNM participates in the foreign exchange market to maintain a stable exchange rate. The frequency of intervention depends on the conditions in the market. The NBRNM intervenes only through banks (market makers). The NBRNM intervenes through market makers on its own initiative or on that of the market makers. The NBRNM bid-ask quotes are published daily on the market makers' segment of the electronic trading platform. When the NBRNM intervenes on its own initiative, it does so at the quotes of the market makers. When the NBRNM intervenes on the market makers' initiative, the NBRNM bid-ask quotes are used. In case there are larger imbalances between supply and demand in the foreign exchange market, the NBRNM may buy and sell foreign currency with all banks.

Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	An electronic trading platform is used for quotes and interbank trading. As of December 31, 2022, all 13 banks licensed to deal in the foreign exchange market participate in the interbank market. The bid-ask spread is limited to MKD 0.25 in the interbank market.
Over the counter	Yes.	The foreign exchange market, both among banks and between banks and their clients, operates over the counter.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	Yes.	As of December 31, 2022, five banks are market makers in the interbank market. The NBRNM introduced market makers to decrease its presence in the foreign exchange market and to enable banks to satisfy foreign exchange liquidity needs among themselves when demand and supply are in broad equilibrium. The Market Makers' Agreement as amended in 2014 is in effect. Market makers have the exclusive right to trade with the NBRNM; they must also continuously quote bid-ask rates with a predefined spread. The maximum bid-ask spread on quotes with each other is MKD 0.05 per euro, and the minimum transaction between a market maker and the NBRNM in the foreign exchange market maker segment is €0.5 million. Market makers must quote a bid-ask spread of MKD 0.25 with other banks. No commission is charged on foreign exchange transactions apart from the bid-ask spread.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Outright forward and foreign exchange swap transactions are allowed in the foreign exchange market, but this segment of the market is in the early phase of development, with sporadic transactions.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	The Macedonian Interbank Payment System offers cross-border payments in euros through Trans-European Automated Real-time Gross settlement Express Transfer system (TARGET2) for domestic banks payments (only bank-to-bank payments, excluding commercial payments initiated by the banks' clients). Furthermore, correspondent banking arrangements of domestic banks with foreign banks are used for commercial payments, and correspondent arrangements of the NBRNM with foreign CBs or commercial banks are used for payments of government agencies and budget entities.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	No.
For current transactions and payments	No.
For capital transactions	No.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	No.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	No.
Credit operations	No.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	All settlements must be in denars, except (1) purchases and sales of foreign exchange by natural persons from authorized foreign exchange bureaus, (2) principal and interest earnings on resident based on foreign exchange deposit accounts, (3) denomination of contractual obligations among residents, and (4) granting and

Inoperative	No.
Regional arrangements	No.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The NBRNM controls foreign exchange operations of banks, savings institutions, foreign exchange bureaus, and entities providing fast money transfer services. The MOF (Foreign Exchange Inspectorate) controls foreign exchange and trade operations and credit operations of natural and other legal persons abroad (for transactions not controlled by the NBRNM). The customs authorities control cross-border transfers of goods, banknotes, securities, and gold.
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	Only the NBRNM may export or import monetary gold. Exports and imports of other types of gold require the Ministry of Economy (MOE) approval. Other types of gold, such as investment gold, may be traded with certain restrictions. Residents may not invest and trade in investment gold abroad. Nonresidents may invest and trade in investment gold in the RNM in accordance with a special law.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Up to MKD 120,000 may be exported in the form of banknotes or checks by residents and nonresidents. Nonresidents may export larger amounts of domestic currency in cash only with proof of the purchase of denars from bank or withdrawal from a bank account. Domestic banks may export denars in cash sold to a foreign bank based on a written contract, without limitation.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Residents may export up to the equivalent of €2,000 without document or up to €10,000 with document from an exchange bureau or bank (exports exceeding €10,000 are prohibited for residents). Nonresidents may export up to €10,000 without document; larger amounts require a certificate from the customs authorities. The amount exported by nonresidents may not exceed the amount reported on entering North Macedonia.
On imports	Yes.

Domestic currency	Yes.	Up to MKD 120,000 may be imported in the form of banknotes or checks by residents and nonresidents. Nonresidents may import larger amounts of domestic currency in cash only with proof of the purchase of denars from domestic or foreign banks or withdrawal from domestic or foreign bank accounts. Domestic banks may import denars in cash sold to a foreign bank based on a written contract, without limitation.
Foreign currency	No.	Residents and nonresidents may import up to the equivalent of €10,000 without document. Larger amounts of cash foreign currency require a "cash and checks declaration form," in accordance with the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations and the Decision on the Terms and Amount of Cash Foreign Currency and Checks That May Be Imported or Exported from North Macedonia. This form is provided on entrance or exit from North Macedonia, and a copy is given as a receipt for the imported cash foreign currency.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents, on proof of identity, may open foreign exchange accounts without restriction. Residents (legal entities) may open foreign exchange accounts on presentation of registration with the Central Registry (CR). Funds from these accounts may not be transferred abroad, but payments can be made abroad on the basis of appropriate documentation (invoice, contract, etc.) showing international payment liability. The bank identifies the resident natural person on the basis of a valid ID card or passport showing the permanent place of residence in the RNM. The bank identifies foreign natural persons temporarily residing in the RNM on the basis of a residential or working permit valid for at least six months. These provisions are prescribed in the NBRNM Decision on the manner of opening resident foreign currency accounts. Pursuant to amendments to Article 4, Paragraph 3 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, residents which are authorized banks are allowed to hold foreign means of payment on foreign exchange account with the NBRNM for the purposes of conducting payment operations through foreign payment systems, such as the TARGET2, and the NBRNM may approve intraday credit and overnight credit facilities in foreign currency to authorized banks for the smooth performance of payment through such foreign payment systems (Official Gazette Issue 97/15). Pursuant to Article 4, Paragraph 2 of the Law on Foreign Exchange Operations, the domestic banks may keep foreign means of payment on foreign exchange accounts or foreign currency deposits with the banks in the RNM, authorized under the Banking Law.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	The following residents may freely open and maintain accounts abroad: (1) Diplomatic, consular, and other representative offices of North Macedonia abroad, financed by the budget of the RNM. (2) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who temporarily reside abroad for three months or more during their residence abroad. (3) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, residing temporarily abroad for six months or more during their residence abroad. (4) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who temporarily reside abroad during their residence abroad, and have a valid work permit.

(5) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who temporarily reside abroad as employees of a diplomatic representative office abroad and members of their immediate families, during their residence abroad, and have a valid permit to work in a diplomatic representative office abroad.
(6) Foreign natural persons who temporarily reside in North Macedonia who have valid residence or work permit valid for a period of at least six months.
(7) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia who in the foreign country acquired the right to personal retirement, pension of a deceased spouse, welfare, child support, tuition for a child whose parent is deceased, and premium/indemnification of life insurance. The acquired right must be proved by appropriate documentation issued by a competent authority abroad.
(8) Natural persons with permanent residence in North Macedonia, who at the same time have a valid foreign passport containing the address of the residence abroad.
The following are also allowed to freely open and maintain accounts abroad without approval: (1) Residents who have sold real property abroad, for collection of claims based on the sale of the property. The acquisition of the property abroad must be confirmed by evidence of the registration in the Registry of the investments in real estate of residents abroad at the CR of the RNM. The sale of the property must be evidenced with a sales agreement. The account in a foreign bank on this basis may be opened only in the country where the property, subject to the sales agreement, is acquired and may only be used for transfer of funds from abroad up to the amount of the sales agreement. (2) Residents who rent out real property abroad, for recovery of claims based on lease of the property. The acquisition of the property abroad must be confirmed by evidence of the registration in the registry of investments in real estate at the CR of the RNM. Renting out the property under lease must be evidenced by a lease agreement. The account in a foreign bank on this basis may be opened only in the country where the property, subject to the lease agreement, is located and may only be used for transfer of funds from abroad up to the lease amount indicated in the lease agreement.
(3) Residents who have acquired real property abroad, for payment of costs for the property abroad. The acquisition of the property abroad must be confirmed by evidence of the registration in the registry of investments in real estate at the CR of the RNM. Costs for the property abroad must be evidenced by a relevant document that requires their payment. The account in a foreign bank on this basis may be opened only in the country where the property is located and may only be used for transfer of funds abroad up to the amount of the costs. (4) Residents who have an obligation to pay on the basis of purchase of securities abroad and residents who have securities abroad, for the purposes of recovery of claims based on sale of securities abroad, dividends, interests, or other proceeds based on securities.
The obligation to pay when purchasing securities and the collection from the sale of securities abroad must be proved by a transaction execution order, or a transaction report, or an agreement or other document that can confirm the transaction or a relevant document that can confirm the establishment of a business relation between the resident and the authorized participant on a foreign stock exchange or on an organized securities market. The claims based on dividends, interests, or other proceeds based on securities must be proved by a notification/document for paid dividend, interest, or other proceeds from securities, as well as a certificate from securities account issued by a relevant foreign depositary. The order for the inflow should clearly state the basis of the transaction (sale of securities, return of unused funds, payment of dividend, interest, or other proceeds). The account with the foreign bank or with the authorized participant on a foreign stock exchange or on an organized securities market of this sub-item may only be used for transfer of funds from and to abroad, which are related to the transactions with securities abroad.

The following are allowed to freely open and maintain accounts without approval: residents who have an obligation to make a payment to a competent authority or legal entity abroad (notary fee, court fees, bank fees, or enforcement costs). The obligation is substantiated by submitting a document in original or a notarized photocopy.

Account in a foreign bank on this basis may only be used for transfer of funds from abroad up to the amount of the obligation for payment. The resident may also transfer the balance of the account opened abroad to the RNM even after the expiration of the validity of the document on the basis of which the account was opened.

Natural persons with permanent residence in the RNM may open and maintain an account abroad to remit a certain amount for obtaining a document for temporary residence abroad for educational needs. This obligation must be substantiated with a document issued by a competent foreign educational institution, foreign competent authority, diplomatic-consular representative office of a foreign country in the RNM which confirms that for the issuance of a document for regulated residence in that country for education, the resident needs to first open an account in a foreign bank and remit the exact amount of funds. The account opened on this basis may be opened only in the country that issued the document from the competent foreign educational institution, the foreign competent authority, the diplomatic-consular representative office of the foreign country in the RNM, and may be used for transfer of funds to and from abroad.

Effective April 6, 2022, the following residents may freely open and hold a bank account aboard: Resident legal entities that have an obligation to make a payment based on a trade in goods or services to a legal entity from Russia, for which the regulations of this country require from the resident to open an account with a foreign bank for payment of these goods or services. These obligations must be substantiated by submitting an original document or a copy certified by a public notary attesting to the resident's obligation to make a payment to a legal entity from Russia. The account with the foreign bank opened for such obligations may only be used for transfer of funds abroad up to the amount of the obligation to the legal entity and only for the period of effectiveness of the aforementioned regulation.

Accounts in countries that are part of the Single Euro Payments Area (SEPA) are considered to be in a single country.

Resident legal entities and natural persons may freely open and hold accounts with payment institutions or e-money institutions abroad only for commercial purposes, that is, for purchasing/selling goods and services electronically. Funds transfers to accounts with payment institutions or e-money institutions abroad on the basis of purchasing goods and services electronically may not exceed Euro 2,500 a person a month.

On capital market securities	Yes.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents are allowed to purchase securities issued locally only through an authorized participant. All foreign investments registered with the CR are protected from nationalization. The transfer of profits and other proceeds is permitted freely after all tax obligations in North Macedonia are met. Nonresidents may not invest in certain sectors (such as arms production, trade in narcotics, and protection of historical and cultural heritage). There are no other controls on the purchase of shares and securities locally by nonresidents.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may issue or sell locally shares or other securities of a participating nature with permission from the SEC.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents may access international financial markets, taking their own investment risk. The requirement for submission of reports to the NBRNM on all residents' portfolio investments in securities abroad, as well as the modifications in these investments, including their sale, still stands. Direct investments are not restricted, but residents must report the investment and subsequent modifications to the CR within 60 days of the capital transaction—the legal basis for acquisition of a direct investment abroad. Insurance companies and pension funds may purchase securities abroad in accordance with their appropriate laws. For insurance companies, a maximum of 20% of the total assets covering technical provisions may be invested in securities issued by nonresidents. Pension funds may invest in securities issued outside the RNM up to 50% of total investments, subject to sub-limits.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Permission from the SEC is required for residents to issue securities abroad.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Nonresidents may purchase debt securities issued locally without any restrictions on their duration. For statistical reporting, purchases of bonds in private placements must be reported on the same forms as

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The NBRNM Credit Register contains a historical database for banks' and savings houses' credit exposure (consisting of claims on loans: regular, past due, nonperforming, interest, fees, investments, off-balance-sheet items, etc.) to residents and nonresidents. The database is updated by banks and savings houses monthly.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	The total exposure to one entity (including connected parties) may not exceed 25% of a bank's own funds. If the entity is a qualified shareholder (owning more than 5% of the voting shares of a bank), the total exposure to that entity, including its affiliated parties, may not exceed 10% of the bank's own funds. The bank's exposure to its subsidiary including connected persons is limited to 10% of the bank's own funds.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Commercial banks asses the credit risk, both for residents and nonresidents. They may lend in foreign currency to residents for payments abroad. If legal entities intend to use the loan proceeds domestically, the proceeds must be in denars. Credit exposure to one person, including connected parties, may not exceed 25% of a bank's own funds. The NBRNM determines the conditions for extending loans in foreign exchange.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	Total credit exposure (loans, securities, etc.) to the issuer (and connected parties) may not exceed 25% of a bank's own funds. If the entity is a qualified shareholder (owns more than 5% of the voting shares of a bank), the total exposure to that entity, including its affiliated parties, may not exceed 10% of the bank's own funds. The bank's exposure to a subsidiary including connected parties is limited to 10% of its own funds. A bank's investment in shares of a nonfinancial institution may not exceed 15% of its own funds.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	The reserve requirement (RR) ratio on foreign currency liabilities was increased gradually from 15% to 18% (effective August 10, 2022), to 19% (effective January 18, 2023), to 20% (effective November 1, 2023), to 21% (effective December 20, 2023); for domestic currency liabilities with a foreign exchange clause, effective November 1, 2023, it is 100% (previously 50%); and for domestic currency liabilities, it is, effective August 10, 2022, 5% (previously 8%). For banks' short-term liabilities to nonresident financial companies with contractual maturity up to one year, the RR is 13%. In addition, the RR ratio of 0% is applied to the following categories: (1) liabilities to natural persons in domestic currency with contractual maturity of over one year as well as to all liabilities to natural persons (in domestic currency with foreign exchange clause and in foreign currency), with contractual maturity of over two years; (2) liabilities based on repo transactions in domestic currency; (3) liabilities based on issued debt securities in domestic currency and original maturity of at least two years, in the amount of the nominal value; (4) liabilities to nonresidents—financial institutions in domestic currency, in domestic currency with foreign exchange clause and in foreign currency, with contractual maturity of over one year and liabilities to nonresidents in domestic currency, in domestic currency with foreign exchange clause and in foreign currency, with contractual maturity of over two years. RR in domestic currency is fulfilled with funds on the accounts with the NBRNM, as well as the bank's balance on the account for the reserve guarantee funds of the clearing house Clearing Interbank Systems, on average basis during the RR period. For the RR in euro (EUR), the amount fulfilled in domestic currency after applying the RR rate on foreign currency liabilities was decreased gradually from 30% to 25% (effective August 10, 2022), to 23% (effective January 18, 2023), to 20% (effective November 1, 2023) to 19% (effective December 20, 2023). The rest of the amount of RR in euro is fulfilled on fix level, by placing funds on the NBRNM accounts abroad up to, effective August 10, 2022, 90% (previously 95%) of the RR on the first day of period, while, effective August 10, 2022, 10% (previously 5%) of RR in EUR is fulfilled with funds on bank foreign exchange accounts in the domestic payment system. The RR for domestic currency liabilities with a foreign exchange clause is fulfilled in euro, effective November 1, 2023. The NBRNM charges remuneration on RR in euro at a rate equal to, effective August 10, 2022, the lower rate of 0% and the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period (previously, it was the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period). If the average daily outstanding amount of bank's funds allocated to the foreign exchange account in euro in the domestic payment system exceeds 5% of the calculated RR in euro for the entire reserve maintenance period, remuneration is charged on the excess allocated funds at a rate equal to, effective August 10, 2022, the lower rate of 0% and the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period less 0.15 percentage points (previously, it was the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period less 0.15 percentage points).

Liquid asset requirements	No.	The following minimum liquidity requirements apply: (1) a liquidity ratio of up to 30 days equal to 1, as a ratio of assets and liabilities maturing in the following 30 days; and (2) a liquidity ratio of up to 180 days equal to 1, as a ratio of assets and liabilities maturing in the following 180 days.

Exchange Arrangement

Foreign exchange market

Spot exchange market	03/18/2022	The National Bank of the Republic of North Macedonia adopted changes to the Decision on currency exchange operations (Official Gazette of the Republic of North Macedonia No. 70/22), allowing foreign exchange bureaus to purchase cash foreign currency in euros from an authorized bank, but only because of lack of cash foreign currency in euros, for which it must conclude an agreement with the authorized bank regulating the conditions for purchasing cash foreign currency.
	10/18/2023	The National Bank adopted new Decision on currency exchange operations, mainly strengthening the licensing criteria for owners and managers of foreign exchange bureaus.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted

Held abroad	04/06/2022	The following residents may freely open and hold a bank account aboard: Resident legal entities that have an obligation to make a payment based on a trade in goods or services to a legal entity from Russia, for which the regulations of this country require from the resident to open an account with a foreign bank for payment of these goods or services. These obligations must be substantiated by submitting an original document or a copy certified by a public notary attesting to the resident's obligation to make a payment to a legal entity from Russia. The account with the foreign bank opened for such obligations may only be used for transfer of funds abroad up to the amount of the obligation to the legal entity and only for the period of effectiveness of the aforementioned regulation.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange Reserve requirements	08/10/2022	The National Bank of the Republic of North Macedonia charges remuneration on reserve requirement (RR) in euro at a rate equal to the lower rate of 0% and the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period (previously, it was the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period). If the average daily outstanding amount of bank's funds allocated to the foreign exchange account in euro in the domestic payment system exceeds 5% of the calculated RR in euro for the entire reserve maintenance period, remuneration is charged on the excess allocated funds at a rate equal to the lower rate of 0% and the interest rate on the ECB's overnight deposit facility applicable as of the last day of the reserve maintenance period less 0.15 percentage points.
	08/10/2022	For the reserve requirement (RR) in euro (EUR), 25% (previously 30%) of the amount calculated by applying the RR rate on foreign currency liabilities is fulfilled in domestic currency. The rest of the amount of RR in euro is fulfilled on fix level, by placing funds on the National Bank of the Republic of North Macedonia accounts abroad up to 90% (previously 95%) of the RR on the first day of period, while 10% (previously 5%) of RR in EUR is fulfilled with funds on bank foreign exchange accounts in the domestic payment system.
	08/10/2022	The reserve requirement ratio for domestic currency liabilities is 5% (previously 8%).
	08/10/2022	The reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities is 18% (previously 15%).
	01/18/2023	The reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities is 19% (previously 18%).
	01/18/2023	For the reserve requirement (RR) in euro (EUR), the amount fulfilled in domestic currency after applying the RR rate on foreign currency liabilities is 23% (previously 25%).
	11/01/2023	For the reserve requirement (RR) in euro (EUR), the amount fulfilled in domestic currency after applying the RR rate on foreign currency liabilities is 20% (previously 23%).
	11/01/2023	The reserve requirement for domestic currency liabilities with a foreign exchange clause is fulfilled in euro.
	11/01/2023	The reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities is 20% (previously 19%).
	11/01/2023	The reserve requirement ratio for domestic currency liabilities with a foreign exchange clause is 100% (previously 50%).
	12/20/2023	The reserve requirement ratio on foreign currency liabilities is 21% (previously 20%).
	12/20/2023	For the reserve requirement (RR) in euro (EUR), the amount fulfilled in domestic currency after applying the RR rate on foreign currency liabilities is 19% (previously 20%).

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	In accordance with binding UNSC resolutions and with certain EC decisions and regulations, there are restrictions involving the freezing of funds and other financial assets and economic resources and a prohibition against making funds, financial assets, or economic resources available to specific persons and entities. These restrictions apply to certain individuals and entities under the following Norwegian regulation on sanctions and restrictive measures: Al-Qaida and ISIL (Da'esh); Taliban; Belarus, Burundi, the Central African Republic; the Democratic Republic of the Congo; the Darfur region in Sudan; Republic of Guinea; Guinea-Bissau; the Islamic Republic of Iran; the former government of Iraq; the Democratic People's Republic of Korea; Libya; Mali; Myanmar; Nicaragua; Somalia; South Sudan; Syria; Tunisia; Ukraine/Russia; Venezuela; Yemen; Zimbabwe; Haiti (effective April 3, 2023); and the Republic of Moldova (effective June 20, 2023). Council Regulation (EU) 2021/445 repealed Regulation (EU) No. 270/2011 concerning restrictive measures directed against certain persons, entities, and bodies in view of the situation in Egypt.
Other security restrictions	No.

Floating
Free floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are classified as free floating; the krone floats freely and independently against other currencies. The exchange rate is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market. The Norges Bank (NB) does not normally intervene to influence the exchange rate of the krone; however, it may intervene in the foreign exchange market on short notice if the krone deviates substantially from the level the NB considers reasonable in relation to fundamentals and if exchange rate developments weaken the prospect of achieving the inflation target. The NB may also intervene in response to pronounced short-term fluctuations in the krone when liquidity in the foreign exchange market falls to a very low level. Foreign exchange purchases or sales on behalf of the Government are publicly preannounced on the CB website. In terms of interventions, the aggregated transacted volumes are published in the NB liquidity statistics on a weekly basis. In extraordinary circumstances, the NB may provide foreign exchange liquidity via collateralized operations. This was done between September 2008 and July 2009. Data on interventions are made publicly available by the publication of statistics for bank liquidity in Norway on every Monday and Thursday. The data have a two-day lag, and therefore, data on interventions are made publicly available with a two- to four-day lag.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The NB's exchange rates are middle rates (that is, the midpoint between buying and selling rates in the interbank market at a given time). Rates are usually determined at 2:15 p.m. local time. On July 1, 2016, the NB changed the publication time of the daily exchange rate to around 4:00 p.m. local time. The change was made as a result of the change in publication time by the ECB of the euro foreign exchange reference rates. The exchange rates are intended to serve only as an indication and are not binding on the NB or other banks, but they are often used as a reference and for historical comparisons.

Target setting body	Yes.
Government	Yes.	The objective of monetary policy has been laid down by the government and submitted to the Storting (parliament). The responsibility for the conduct of monetary policy is delegated to the NB pursuant to the NB Act and appurtenant regulation. NB's most important monetary policy instrument is the key policy rate, which is the interest rate on banks' deposits up to a quota in the NB. NB's Monetary Policy and Financial Stability Committee is responsible for NBs' role as the executive and advisory monetary policy authority and for the use of policy instruments to attain the monetary policy objectives. The Committee is appointed by the King in Council and consists of the Governor, the two Deputy Governors, and two external members. The Committee functions as a unified group and the members are collectively responsible for the Bank's decisions. NBs' Monetary policy assessment includes voting records of monetary policy meetings.

Inflation target	Yes.
Target number	Yes.
Point target	Yes.	The point target is set as the annual consumer price inflation of close to 2% over time. It was revised to 2% through Royal Decree, on March 2, 2018, pursuant to Section 2, third paragraph, of Act No. 28 of May 24, 1985, on NB and the Monetary System, etc. (NB Act).
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	Monetary policy must maintain monetary stability by keeping inflation low and stable. The operational target of monetary policy must be annual consumer price inflation of close to 2% over time. Inflation targeting must be forward-looking and flexible so that it can contribute to high and stable output and employment and to countering a build-up of financial imbalances.
CPI	Yes.	The operational target of monetary policy is annual consumer price inflation of close to 2% over time. The NB uses the CPI defined and published by Statistics Norway.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	NB sets the interest rate with the aim of stabilizing inflation around the target in the medium term. The horizon will depend on disturbances to which the economy is exposed and the effects on the outlook for inflation and the real economy. In its conduct of monetary policy, NB takes into account indicators of underlying consumer price inflation.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	NB's most important monetary policy instrument is the key policy rate, which is the interest rate on banks' deposits up to a quota in NB.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		This interest rate is also called the sight deposit rate.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The key policy rate is the midpoint in an interest rate corridor with a width of 200 basis points. The lower limit is equal to the reserve rate. Each bank with an account at the NB is assigned an individual quota for reserves (in nominal Norwegian krone (NOK) terms). Reserves within the quota are remunerated at the key policy rate. Reserves in excess of the quota are remunerated at the reserve rate, which is equal to the sight deposit rate minus 100 basis points. The upper limit in the interest rate corridor is equal to the D-loan rate, which is the interest rate on NB's standing lending facility. The D-loan rate is equal to the sight deposit rate plus 100 basis points.

Publication of votes	Yes.	The Monetary policy assessment following the Monetary Policy and Financial Stability Committee's meeting includes the committee's voting record.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	On May 3, 2017, NB's Executive Board decided to publish the minutes of monetary policy meetings. The content of the minutes was included in the Executive Board's assessment, which was published at the same time as the interest rate decision is announced. The content of the minutes is included in the Monetary Policy assessment in the Monetary Policy Report.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The Monetary Policy Report with financial stability assessment is published four times a year, in connection with four of the monetary policy meetings. The Report presents the assessments on which the interest rate setting is based and includes projections of developments in the Norwegian economy.

Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	NB may use foreign exchange swaps to supply krone liquidity to Norwegian and foreign banks. Foreign exchange swaps may also be used to supply liquidity in foreign currency (generally US dollars) to Norwegian banks. Extraordinary liquidity supplied in foreign currency is reserved for very special situations and is based on an assessment of the stability of Norwegian financial markets and the Norwegian payment system. Maturities for foreign exchange swaps vary and depend on the liquidity situation in the banking system.

Inward direct investment	Yes.	Controls apply to (1) establishment of branches of foreign financial enterprises; (2) establishment of third-country branches of credit institutions, insurance undertakings, securities brokerage firms, and collective investment fund management companies; (3) airlines, which may be granted an operating license only within the EEA, provided EEA member states and/or nationals of EEA member states own more than 50% of the enterprise and effectively control it, directly or indirectly, through one or more intermediate enterprises, except as indicated in an agreement with a third country in which the EU and Norway participate; (4) nonresident investment in the accounting sector exceeding 49% and in the legal sector; (5) ownership of Norwegian flag vessels, except (a) through a partnership or joint-stock company with at least 60% of the share capital owned by EEA nationals and (b) by registering the vessel in the Norwegian International Ship Register under the applicable conditions; and (6) investment in a registered fishing vessel bringing foreign ownership above 40%; (7) nonresident investors seeking to acquire control of Norwegian businesses that have crucial role in supporting or delivering critical national services. The National Security Act entered into force on January 1, 2019, and states that anyone who wants to acquire a qualified ownership in a business that is subject to the Act is obliged to notify the relevant ministry. When the business is not covered by any ministry's area of responsibility, the notification must be addressed to the Norwegian National Security Authority. A qualified ownership means that the acquisition directly or indirectly will result in the acquirer achieving: (1) at least one-third of the share capital, shares, or votes in the business; (2) the right to become the owner of at least one-third of the share capital or shares; or (3) significant influence over the management of the company in other ways. Within 60 working days, as a general rule, the relevant ministry or the National Security Authority must inform the notifier of whether the acquisition has been approved, or whether the case must be dealt with by the King in Council. If the King in Council considers that an acquisition under Section 10-1 may entail a not insignificant threat to national security interests, the King in Council may deny the execution of the acquisition, or determine criteria for the execution.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The Royal Decree No. 12/2006 allowed resident or nonresident non-Omanis to purchase and hold properties in Integrated Tourism Complexes (ITCs). Meanwhile, Royal Decree No. 29/2018 prohibits non-Omanis from purchasing and holding properties in ITCs that are located in Dhofar governorate except Salalah, Musandam governorate, Al Buraimi governorate, Al Dhahirah governorate, and Al Wusta governorate. In addition, non-Omanis are not allowed to purchase and hold properties in Wilayats (Provinces) of Liwa, Shinas, and Masirah. Furthermore, there are no transactions with non-Omanis in strategic Mountains that designated by the government, are places near Royal Palaces and Military bases, and Traditional Villages. Other than the above restrictions, nationals of GCC countries can freely purchase properties in Oman, while nationals of non-GCC countries can buy property only in the designated ITCs. Expatriates who have stayed in Oman for at least two years are allowed to own flats and offices in certain areas in and around Muscat according to a ministerial resolution (2020/357). The contract can last for up to 50 years and then be subsequently renewed, such that the total term of this period, after its extension, lasts for a maximum of 99 years.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the Seventh, and Eighth Reviews of the Extended Arrangement under the Extended Fund Facility, Requests for Waivers of Nonobservance of Performance Criteria, and for Extension, Augmentation, and Rephasing of Access with Pakistan states that as of August 16, 2022, Pakistan introduced new exchange restriction and import restriction for BOP purposes; and modified one existing exchange restriction and the MCP. Specifically, in early April 2022, the authorities extended the set of items subject to a 100% cash margin requirement (CMR) on imports by 177 items, bringing the share of items covered by CMRs to about 20% of total import values and missing the relevant performance criteria on non-intensification of exchange restrictions and on non-modification of MCPs. In addition, the authorities imposed a requirement to seek payment authorization from the State Bank of Pakistan (SBP) before initiating transactions for importing certain goods, with approval granted in a discretionary manner, thereby violating the PC on the non-imposition of exchange restrictions. The authorities have partially repealed the import ban in August 2022 (leaving in place the ban on cars, mobile phones, and household appliances), and are committed to eliminate the requirement for import payment authorization at end-August 2022, depending on market conditions. Meanwhile, in early August 2022, CMRs were reduced on terms of payment above 90 days and CMRs introduced in April are set to lapse in December 2022. Finally, Pakistan also continues to maintain an exchange restriction resulting from the limitation on advance payments for imports against LCs and advance payments up to the certain amount per invoice (without LCs) for the import of eligible items (imposed in 2018). (Country Report No. 22/288).

Other managed arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate is determined by market forces, that is, demand and supply of foreign exchange (FE). The SBP does not explicitly or implicitly commit to an exchange rate target or path. The SBP intervenes in the market to curb speculative pressures for ensuring smooth functioning of the markets. Banks are free to quote and trade at any exchange rate. Pakistan adopted a market based flexible exchange rate system where interventions are limited to safeguarding financial stability and preventing disorderly market conditions (DMCs). From May 2021, the exchange rate has been marked by periods of stability, with shorter periods of fluctuations. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement has been reclassified retroactively to other managed from floating, effective May 6, 2021.

Other monetary framework	Yes.	The SBP is still in transition toward flexible inflation targeting (FIT). SBP has incorporated many key features of a FIT regime over the years such as: The SBP adopted an interest rate corridor framework in August 2009. Over time, the framework has undergone many changes and in May 2015, the SBP introduced a policy target rate for effectively signaling its monetary policy stance. The SBP Act 1956 was amended in January 2022 to lay ground for this transition through which the primary objective of the bank shall be to achieve and maintain domestic price stability. In addition to this the amended Act also prohibits government borrowing from SBP. Institutional commitment to the medium term inflation target of 5-

		7% is being communicated consistently in Monetary Policy Statements since September 2019. An independent MPC includes three independent economists and three SBP board members representing various sectors of the economy who are not employees of the bank. Transparency and clear communication through publication of MPC minutes including voting patterns with a lag of 1 month, a post MPC analysts briefing, two semi-annual press conferences and podcasts for better outreach to the public. An accountability framework under Section 39(1) of the SBP Act under which the Governor submits an annual report regularly before parliament regarding "achievements of banks' objectives, conduct of monetary policy, state of Pakistan economy and financial system." This first report was published in December 2022. Some of the key features of FIT are to be formally adopted by taking on board the fiscal authorities through requisite legislation and then this transition will be completed. SBP in its Strategic Plan for 2023–2028 envisages to complete this transition. The SBP's monetary policy framework is characterized by an emphasis on anchoring inflation expectations to the medium-term inflation target range announced by the government. An independent MPC examines various indicators from the real, external, financial, and fiscal sectors, along with their model-based forecasts and stakeholder surveys, to assess the inflation outlook as well as the state of the output gap and financial stability. On the basis of this information, the MPC decides on the policy rate that would be appropriate to manage inflation expectations, while safeguarding financial stability and promoting growth. Responding to post pandemic inflationary pressures and to anchor inflation expectations, the SBP started to tighten the monetary policy stance in September 2021 raising the policy rate from 7% to 9.75% (previously 8.75%) effective January 23, 2022, to 12.25% effective April 7, 2022, to 13.75% effective May 23, 2022, to 15% effective July 7, 2022, to 22% effective October 30, 2022, to 16% effective November 25, 2022, to 17% effective January 23, 2023, to 20% effective March 2, 2023, to 21% effective April 4, 2023, to 22% effective June 26, 2023. As of July 31, 2023, the policy target rate is set at 22.00%, SBP's reverse repo rate (that is, ceiling rate) is currently at 23.00%, and SBP's repo rate (that is, floor rate) is at 21.00%.
Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks may determine their own rates of exchange, both for ready and forward transactions for the public, subject to the condition that the margin between the buying and selling rates should not exceed 50 paisa per US dollar or its equivalent in other currencies. There are no SBP restrictions on bid-ask spreads of interbank transactions. For exchange companies (ECs) and Exchange Companies of "B" category (ECBs), the spread between the buying and selling rates of US dollar, pound sterling, euro, Saudi Arabian riyal, and U.A.E. dirham may not exceed 1% of their buying rate. For all other foreign currencies, the ECs/ECBs need to ensure maintenance of a competitive spread.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	SBP issues licenses to banks to operate as ADs to deal in FE. Notably, not all of the banks have the status of ADs. As of August

		31, 2022, the number of ADs was 29. SBP also issues licenses to ECs to deal in foreign currency notes, coins, postal notes, money orders, bank drafts, traveler's checks, and remittance transfers and licenses to ECBs under the prescribed criteria. ECBs may purchase and sell foreign currency notes and coins only. ECs/ECBs deal with individuals only. Hotels with a three-star rating or higher may also buy foreign currency from their customers. As of December 31, 2022, 27 full-fledged ECs, 21 ECBs, and 29 (restricted authorized) hotels were operational. ECs may make outward remittances in accordance with the regulations. Importers, exporters, and businesses may shop around with ADs for the best rates without recourse to SBP. Individuals may purchase FE from or sell it to ECs/ECBs at freely negotiated rates in accordance with the regulations. Banks are limited to a spread of 50 paisa in all foreign currency quotes to customers. For ECs/ECBs, the spread between the buying and selling rates of US dollar, pound sterling, euro, Saudi Arabian riyal, and U.A.E. dirham may not exceed 1% of their buying rate. For all other foreign currencies, the ECs/ECBs need to ensure to maintain a competitive spread (FE Circular No. 06 of May 12, 2015). ECs/ECBs may not make trade-related remittances on behalf of their customers. To focus ECs on their primary function of promoting home remittances, ECs may make outward remittances on behalf of bona fide customers for permissible transactions for up to 75% of the home remittances they handled in the preceding month. ECs must report remittances in the prescribed format by the fifth day of every month (FE Circular No. 04 of 2008). Some government FE transactions (for example, debt-service payments) are conducted directly by the SBP, at interbank market rates. ECs may sell foreign currency to individuals only up to a daily/annual limit of US$10,000/100,000. Effective February 3, 2022, ECs are required to surrender 100% of foreign currency received on account of inward home remittances, in the interbank market on the same day.

Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Banks that are authorized derivatives dealers may take positions in financial derivatives transactions, including foreign currency options, forward rate agreements, and interest rate swaps, according to the Financial Derivatives Business Regulations (FDBR); for all other structured derivatives, SBP approval is required. It is further clarified that local currency is not allowed for settlement of offshore transactions. Currently, single stock futures contracts (deliverable and cash settled) stock/sectoral index futures contracts and index options are available for trading on Pakistan Stock Exchange (PSX) regulated by the Securities and Exchange Commission of Pakistan (SECP). Commodity futures contracts were also introduced from the platform of the Pakistan Mercantile Exchange Limited (PMEX). Currently, the PMEX trades in gold, silver, rice, palm oil, crude oil, sugar, wheat, international cotton, and three-month Karachi interbank offered rate futures contracts. Special convertible rupee accounts (SCRAs) are specifically maintained for investment in derivatives, and investors can freely use SCRAs for derivatives transactions. Regulation R-2 of Prudential Regulations for Corporate/Commercial Banking restricts the banks' (ADs) maximum exposure in derivatives up to 5 times of their equity.

Domestic currency	Yes.	An individual may take out up to PRs. 3,000 to India and PRs. 10,000 to other countries. The regulations are applicable on both residents and nonresidents; Although Section d of the cash currency declaration format given by Pakistan Customs in 2019 can be used for such declaration, separate declaration, specifically mentioning PKR, is not available in the declaration form.
Foreign currency	Yes.	Any person (resident or nonresident) is allowed to take out of Pakistan, US dollars or its equivalent in other foreign currencies, subject to the following limits (a person a visit, effective November 8, 2022, and a person a year, effective November 8, 2023, respectively): (1) 5,000 (previously 10,000) and 30,000 (previously 60,000) for individuals aged 18 years and above; and (2) 2,500 (previously 5,000) and 15,000 (previously 30,000) for individuals below 18 years old. The per person limits for taking cash in FE from Pakistan for travel to Afghanistan are US$1,000/6,000 a visit/annually. Non-governmental organizations (NGOs) and other UN (welfare) organizations working in Afghanistan may take to Afghanistan more than PRs. 10,000. Exports of foreign currency by banks are not restricted. Banks and ECs may export foreign currencies following the prescribed procedures including declaration at designated international airports. Moreover, as per the notification issued by the Pakistan Customs, all the arriving/departing passengers (residents/nonresidents) are required to file customs declaration.
On imports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Any person may bring into Pakistan up to Rs. 3,000 from India and Rs. 10,000 from other countries. The regulations are applicable to both residents and nonresidents. Though the current declaration required by Pakistan Customs may be used for providing declaration of PKR for inbound travelers, the declaration specifically does not mention PKR in the form.
Foreign currency	No.	Any person may bring into Pakistan from any country any foreign currency notes or banknotes without limit. However, declaration has to be submitted to Customs authorities at arrival if the amount is exceeding US$10,000.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Banks may offer FE accounts to residents. Holders of frozen (old) FE accounts may purchase special US dollar bonds of the Government of Pakistan (GOP) against outstanding balances or convert the foreign currency to rupees at the prevailing exchange rate.
Held domestically	Yes.	Foreign currency accounts may be credited with remittances received from abroad, traveler's checks issued outside Pakistan (whether in the name of account holder or in the name of any other person), and FE generated by encashment of securities issued by the GOP. A foreign currency account of a citizen of Pakistan resident in Pakistan may also be credited with cash foreign currency, but only if the account holder is a filer as defined in the Income Tax Ordinance of 2001. However, a foreign currency account cannot be credited with (1) any FE borrowed under any general or specific permission given by SBP, unless otherwise permitted; (2) any proceeds from goods exported from Pakistan; (3) proceeds of securities issued or sold to nonresidents; (4) any payment received for services rendered in or from Pakistan; (5) earnings or profits of the overseas offices or branches of Pakistani firms and companies including banks, or investment of resident Pakistanis abroad; and (6) any FE purchased from an AD in Pakistan for any purpose. FE accounts of resident corporations and legal entities may not be credited with foreign currency purchased from the open market. These accounts may be permanently retained, and operations and remittances from FE accounts are not restricted. ADs may keep or invest their deposits abroad or in Pakistan. ADs that lend these funds to borrowers in Pakistan for trade-related activities must observe SBP prudential regulations. ADs may decide the rate of return they offer to depositors. ADs may open foreign currency accounts and extend trade loans under the FE-25 program in US dollars, pounds sterling, euros, Japanese yen, Canadian dollars, U.A.E. dirhams, Saudi Arabian riyals, Chinese renminbi, Swiss francs, and Turkish liras.

Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	ECs are not allowed to maintain nostro accounts abroad. ECs' remittance transactions must be routed through their foreign currency accounts at banks in Pakistan. Current regulations do not specifically allow or restrict opening of foreign currency accounts abroad by the residents. The operations of such accounts are subject to the applicable laws of the jurisdiction in which these have been opened. There is no restriction on inward remittances from abroad. However, such remittances are subject to due diligence of the underlying transaction as per applicable regulations including the AML, CFT, and Countering Proliferation Financing (CPF).
Approval required	Yes.

		unless restricted for some specific purpose. However, personal foreign currency accounts of any nature should not be used for commercial and business purposes. ADs are free to decide the rate of return they offer to depositors. Deposit holders to make payments in Pakistan in rupees must first convert the FE drawn from their accounts to rupees. If Pakistan nationals holding such accounts return to Pakistan, they may retain the accounts permanently. Funds mobilized under the FE account program need not be surrendered to the SBP, nor does the SBP provide forward cover for such accounts. Foreign Currency Value Account (FCVA): NRPs and Pakistan Origin Card (POC) holders can open account remotely/digitally, while ensuring that the relevant AML/CFT regulatory standards are complied with. The account provides all operational facilities like any other account through digital means/alternate delivery channels. The account can be funded primarily with remittances from abroad. The funds available in the account can be repatriated without any prior approval; however, banks may ask for any additional information for due diligence of the transaction.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	The accounts of individuals, firms, or companies residing abroad are designated nonresident accounts. Different rules apply to the nonresident rupee accounts of individuals, firms, and companies, on the one hand, and to the nonresident rupee accounts of banks, on the other hand. Banks may open and maintain two categories of nonresident rupee accounts for individuals and entities without prior approval of the State Bank. (1) Nonresident Rupee Account-Repatriable (NRAR): Debits and credits of such accounts are subject to applicable regulations. An automated teller machine (ATM)/debit card to the account holder and supplementary ATM/debit cards in the name of family members of the account holder resident in Pakistan may be issued. These cards may be used for transactions in and outside Pakistan. (2) Nonresident Rupee Account-Non-repatriable (NRAN): All legitimate debit and credit transactions in these accounts as those permissible for resident Pakistani rupee (PKR) accounts are allowed. However, the funds available in these accounts may not be used abroad through ATM/debit cards or other delivery channels. Foreign shipping companies and airlines with offices or agents in Pakistan can open and operate interest-bearing rupee accounts, provided the interest is used only to meet local expenses. Banks could issue bank cards as well as supplementary bank cards to individual nonresident rupee account holders. Withdrawals were allowed only in Pakistan (3) NRP Rupee Value Account (NRVA): NRPs and POC holders can open account remotely/digitally, while ensuring that the relevant AML/CFT regulatory standards are complied with. The account provides all operational facilities like any other account through digital means/alternate delivery channels. The account can be funded primarily with remittances from abroad. The funds available in the account can be repatriated without any prior approval; however, banks may ask for any additional information for due diligence of the transaction.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Domestic currency accounts are convertible to foreign currency when opened as convertible rupee accounts with funds received from abroad or credited with funds otherwise accepted for remittance abroad.

Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	Yes.	A blocked account refers to an account opened as a blocked account at any branch or office in Pakistan of a bank authorized in this behalf by the State Bank or an account blocked by the order of the State Bank. Holders of frozen (old) FE accounts are permitted to purchase US dollar bonds of the GOP against outstanding balances in their FE accounts. The State Bank may not approve certain remittances in settlement of liabilities to a particular person resident outside Pakistan. Payments in discharge of such liabilities to such person may be allowed to be made to a blocked account, subject to such terms and conditions as may be specified by the State Bank. The State Bank may issue special instructions regarding operations on blocked accounts. In the absence of any such special instructions, no payments into or withdrawal from blocked accounts may be made, unless prior approval of the State Bank has been obtained.

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.	Imports may be made against all modes of payment, subject to the procedures prescribed by the SBP. However, the importer may require advance payment guarantee/performance bond to secure the advance payment. On January 30, 2024, the above instructions have been amended and now Advance Payment up to 100% is allowed without SBP approval against irrevocable LCs or invoices.
Advance import deposits	No.	There was a 100% CMR on the import of items as listed in the SBP circulars. Effective April 7, 2022, CMR was introduced on additional 177 items, taking the total number of items subject to CMR to 703. The April 7 announcement clarified that cash margins on all items are non-remunerative. CMR on items introduced on April 7 was initially set to lapse on December 31, 2022, but was extended to lapse on March 31, 2023 effective December 31, 2022. Effective August 5, 2022, the requirement of obtaining 100% cash margin was relaxed for cases where the credit terms of import are more than 90 days, that is, for cases where the term of payment for import is 91–180 days, CMR must be 25%. Similarly, for cases where the term of payment for import is 181 days and above, CMR must be 0%. Effective March 31, 2023, CMR on import items was withdrawn.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.	Clean-on-board shipped bills of lading and other documentation as stipulated by contracts or LCs are required. To strengthen the monitoring of import payments from Pakistan, All trade-related transactions are performed through PSW. It is an automated platform that provides a facility to all importers to electronically submit an integrated declaration at the time of imports of goods. Import-related transactions are executed through FIs issued by the ADs. With the introduction of PSW, a FI is required for payment to be made against the import of goods.
Domiciliation requirements	No.

		permission from Foreign Exchange Operations Department (FEOD) relating to payments before initiating transactions for import of items listed in Chapters 84, 85, and certain items of Chapter 87 of Harmonized System (HS) Codes. Effective January 2, 2023, the previous instruction was withdrawn. Further, effective June 23, 2023, all restrictions on import have been withdrawn vide Exchange Policy Division (EPD) Circular Letter No. 10 dated June 23, 2023. All trade-related transactions are performed through PSW. PSW is an automated platform that provides a facility to all importers to electronically submit an integrated declaration at the time of imports of goods. Import-related transactions are executed through FIs issued by the ADs.
Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.	Generally, there is no positive list for trade. As per the scheme of IPO, things can be divided into three categories, that is, prohibited, restricted, and/or freely importable. The items listed on Appendices A and C of IPO are banned/prohibited for import. Items on Appendices B and N are restricted, that is, importable subject to the conditions specified therein. Things not specifically provided in either of the Appendices of the IPO are freely importable.
Negative list	Yes.	A total of 45 goods/class of goods under various HS codes are on the negative list (Appendix-A), which is compiled on the basis of products banned for religious and health reasons and products banned as a result of Pakistan's commitment to international agreements Effective April 22, 2022, some 52 classes of goods (which includes the previous 45 items prohibited under IPO 2020) under various HS codes are placed on the negative list of IPO 2022. These items are prohibited for import into Pakistan and are listed under Appendix-A of IPO. This list is compiled on religious and health grounds and/or as a result of Pakistan's commitment to international agreements. Effective May 19, 2022, as a temporary measure, 33 goods/class of goods under various HS codes were added to the negative list on the basis of being deemed luxury and non-essential, to curtail rising current account deficit. However, these restrictions were lifted effective August 19, 2022.

The tax withheld on import from a commercial importer is a minimum tax. The policy for income and tax changed from a "final tax regime" to a "minimum tax regime" to improve the realization of the tax potential and reduce domestic and international transfer pricing for tax purposes. Persons involved in certain transactions were not required to pay tax on actual profit, maintain books of accounts, or undergo audit. Instead, the tax deducted or collected on these transactions was treated as final tax. The said provision became effective from the date of issuance of the SRO 1407(i)/2021 dated October 29, 2021.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	No.	The Trading Corporation of Pakistan imports basic commodities, that is, wheat, sugar, and urea, to meet the demand and supply gap as and when directed by the federal government.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Effective January 5, 2022, proceeds against all exports (including hand knotted carpets) must be repatriated through an AD by the due date or within 120 days (previously six months) of the date of shipment, whichever is earlier. Exporters may retain export proceeds, including advance payments in foreign currency, with an AD for three working days and sell them to ADs, who keep the retained proceeds in special exporters' accounts. In cases where export proceeds (fully or partially) are realized after the prescribed period the AD must mark a lien on the amount of export proceeds realized by the exporter, as mentioned below: For export proceeds that are up to 30 days delayed, the percentage of amount to be marked under lien is 3%; from 31 to 60 days, 6%; for beyond 60 days, 9%. In case the exporter presents a tenable justification for delay in realization of export proceeds, the lien is released after due adjudication process. SBP has issued a regulatory framework during the review period for Business-to-Consumer (B2C) e-Commerce exports. Under this framework, an exporter can send an export consignment up to US$5,000 without "Electronic Export Form." For these exports, the repatriation period allowed is 90 days.

Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Exporters are required to sell export proceeds in the interbank market within three working days. Exporters may retain between 2% and 15% of the free-on-board (f.o.b.) value in their net FE accounts to effect foreign payments for such expenses as advertising, purchases of designs and patterns, market studies, and bona fide export claims and to cover export proceeds, without SBP approval. For software and service sector exports, this limit has been increased to 50% from 35% effective October 23, 2023 vide EPD Circular Letter No. 17 of 2023. Exporters reporting an increase of more than 10% in export earnings may also keep 50% of the additionally earned amount in FE accounts.
Financing requirements	Yes.	Foreign currency financing is available for a maximum of 180 days. All FE loans against intended exports may be settled only through export proceeds or remittances from abroad. However, to facilitate exporters, SBP has modified the above policy covering all aspects of foreign currency financing requirements from the issuance of loans till their final settlements. Further, ADs have been delegated powers to settle outstanding export loans up to US$50,000 (or equivalent in other foreign currencies) themselves through interbank market.
Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.

At the moment, no specific procedure has been specified by the Ministry of Commerce. Whereas, as per S. No. 17, Schedule II of the Export Policy Order 2022, the export of surgical instruments is subject to certificate/test report to be issued by the Sialkot Material Testing Laboratory. The Department of Plant Protection regulates the trans-border management of consignments of plant and plant material under the Pakistan Plant Quarantine Act, 1976, and Rules, 1967, and International Standards for Phytosanitary Measures developed under the International Plant Protection Convention through its plant quarantine outposts established at all exit/entry points, the department issues phytosanitary certificates. Imports and exports of animal products are regulated through the Pakistan Animal and Quarantine Department (Import and Export of Animals and Animal Products) Ordinance, 1979 (Ordinance No. XLIXX of 1979). The Marine Fisheries Department enforces Pakistan Fish Inspection and Quality Control Act, 1997, and issues certificates of quality for fish and fish products for exportation.
Other	Yes.	The documents required are a firm order, invoices, goods declaration, transport document of goods (bills of lading, airway bill (AWB)), and Form E. The goods declaration is filed by the exporter during the clearance of goods at ports/airports, etc. The Form E requirement does not apply to exports of textbooks for schools and colleges for Pakistani students and other institutions operating under embassies abroad. This exemption also applies to

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Banks are required to maintain domestically not less than 80% of their assets against time and demand liabilities. Foreign-controlled investment banks are permitted to borrow locally for their working capital requirements up to 100% of their paid-up capital, reserves, etc., Subject to nonbanking Finance Companies (NBFCs)

		(Establishment and Regulation) Rules, 2003. Aggregate liabilities, excluding contingent liabilities and security deposits, of a non-deposit-taking NBFC may not exceed ten times of its equity. Contingent liabilities of a NBFC may not exceed the following maximum limits based on credit rating: 2 times of equity for AA− and above; 1.5 times of equity for A− to A+; and 0.5 times of equity for BBB+. A deposit-taking NBFC is required to maintain a capital adequacy ratio (CAR) of 8% for the first two years from coming into force of amendments made in NBFC and Notified Entities Regulations 2008 through SRO of November 25, 2015, and 10% for subsequent years following the criteria in Schedule IX A of NBFC and Notified Entities Regulations 2008.
Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Banks are allowed to raise foreign currency loans from international financial institutions only for liquidity management. The following requirements apply: (1) Banks are allowed to raise loans up to 100% of unimpaired capital. (2) Banks may deploy the loan proceeds locally in the interbank market including financing of trade transactions. (3) Banks may raise these loans on Benchmark rate + 350 bps. (4) The tenor of loan may be from one month to one year.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	ADs have general permission to grant loan to individual NRPs and Nonresident POC holders in local currency, subject to the observance of certain rules and regulations. Except that, nonresidents are not allowed to borrow in local currency without the special permission of the State Bank. Further, ADs are not allowed to grant any loans or provide overdraft facility in foreign currencies in or outside Pakistan, whether secured or unsecured, except FE-25 loans without prior approval of the State Bank.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	ADs are not allowed to grant any loans or provide overdraft facility in foreign currencies in or outside Pakistan, whether secured or unsecured, except trade loans without prior approval of the State Bank.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	There is no regular issuance of foreign-currency-denominated securities in the domestic market. ADs are not allowed to use FE-25 deposits for foreign-currency-denominated instruments below investment grade.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.	All bank and nonbank financial institutions that accept foreign currency deposits may use deposited funds freely in Pakistan. Any other use is subject to prudential regulations.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	For local currency deposits, the cash reserve requirement (CRR) for all banks is a fortnightly average of 6% (subject to a daily minimum of 4%) on total demand liabilities and time deposits with a tenor of less than one year. Time liabilities (excluding time deposits with a tenor of less than one year) are exempt from the CRR. DFIs must maintain a CRR of 1% of their total time and demand liabilities during the reserve maintenance period. The reserve maintenance period for banks and DFIs is two weeks, starting on a Friday and ending on a Thursday. Liabilities subject to the statutory reserve requirement as of close of business on Friday (the first day of the reserve maintenance period) are taken into account for determination of the required CRR. MFBs must keep a CRR equivalent to 5% of deposits (including demand deposits and time deposits with a tenor of less than one year). Foreign currency deposits raised under FE Circular No. 25 of 1998 are subject to the CRR and a special cash reserve requirement (SCRR). The CRR on foreign currency deposits of commercial banks is 5%. The SCRR is 10%. The CRR on foreign currency deposits of Islamic banks is 5%; the SCRR is 6%. There is no system of averaging period being adopted for the reserve requirement on foreign currency deposits. The reserve maintenance week starts from Friday and ends the following Thursday. For this reserve maintenance period, all the relevant ratios are required to be maintained on daily basis, based on foreign currency balances as of previous Friday (that is, with lag of one week). Deposit-taking NBFCs must keep 15% of their customer deposits (excluding deposits of financial institutions) in government securities or instruments or investments prescribed by the Commission. Such investments or instruments must be valued at cost or market value whichever is lower and any shortfall in the value of such investments or instruments must be immediately made up. Provided these instruments or investments are for the benefit of the depositors only, such instruments must be kept unencumbered and disclosed separately in the financial statements of the NBFC. This condition also applies to a deposit-taking NBFC whose permission to raise deposits has been suspended or cancelled until all deposits have been repaid.

Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	For applicable demand and time liabilities other than FE-25 (foreign currency) deposits, the liquid asset requirements are as follows: The Statutory liquidity requirement (SLR) for all banks is 19% of total demand liabilities and time deposits with tenors of less than one year. Time liabilities (excluding time deposits with a tenor of less than one year) are not subject to the SLR. SLR for Islamic banks/Islamic banking branches is 14%. The DFIs must keep 15% of their total time and demand liabilities as SLR. MFBs must keep an SLR equivalent to 10% of total demand liabilities and time liabilities with a tenor of less than one year. FE-25 (foreign currency) deposits are not subject to liquid asset requirement.

Liquid asset requirements	No.
Interest rate controls	No.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	Banks accepting foreign currency deposits may not invest these funds in foreign-currency- or local-currency-denominated instruments below investment grade. They may not invest or place such deposits in fund management plans of other banks, DFIs, or NBFCs in Pakistan or abroad. The investing bank may not place in a single institution an amount exceeding 25% of the total investable funds, available with the investing bank, under the FE-25 Deposit Scheme. Banks must comply with all other relevant prudential regulations.
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Investment by nonresidents is allowed in banks. However, 5% or more shareholding is subject to SBP approval.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The foreign exchange exposure limit (FEEL) is applicable on overall basis, irrespective of resident or nonresident status of assets and liabilities.

On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The FEEL is applicable on overall basis, irrespective of resident or nonresident status of assets and liabilities. The aggregate FEEL for each bank is 25% (increased from 20%) of its audited paid-up capital (free of losses) based on their share in FE market volumes. The maximum cap on FEEL is PRs. 5.0 billion. However, the SBP reserves the right to assign reduced FEEL to any AD keeping in view of its behavior in the FE market.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The FEEL is applicable on overall basis, irrespective of resident or nonresident status of assets and liabilities. The aggregate FEEL for each bank is 25% (increased from 20%) of its audited paid-up capital (free of losses) based on its share in FE market volumes. The maximum cap on FEEL is PRs. 5.0 billion. However, the SBP reserves the right to assign reduced FEEL to any AD keeping in view of its behavior in the FE market.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	The SBP, in consultation with SECP, allowed local insurance companies to issue US-dollar-denominated insurance policies on a notional basis to meet the condition of foreign lenders for foreign currency loans. Issuers must obtain a recommendation letter from the SECP for each issuance proposal as prescribed in the SECP Circular of December 11, 2017. However, premium and claims are required to be paid in PKR only.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents' issuance of securities in the local market requires SECP approval. Resident insurance companies may purchase securities issued by nonresidents, if these securities have been approved by the SECP, on their own behalf with no restrictions. However, these investments may or may not be admissible for determining the solvency of an insurance company, depending on whether the company in question has exceeded the limits under Section 32 of Insurance Ordinance 2000 read with Rule No. 12 of the Insurance Rules 2017. Investment for the purpose as per Section 32(6) of the Insurance Ordinance 2000 includes all forms of shares, debentures, bonds, deposits, and other securities and derivatives instruments, and includes immovable property whether or not occupied by the insurer.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	As per Insurance Ordinance 2000, resident insurance companies may invest abroad on their own behalf with no restrictions. However, these investments may or may not be admissible for determining the solvency of an insurance company, depending on whether the company in question has exceeded the limits under Section 32 of Insurance Ordinance 2000 read with Rule No. 12 of the Insurance Rules 2017. Prior approval of SBP is required.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Under Section 35 read with Rule No. 16 of the Insurance Rules 2017, 30% of the shareholder or statutory fund of a life insurer other than the portion with investment-linked policies alone must be invested in government securities. An additional 10% must be invested in a combination of government securities and other approved securities. Approved securities are defined in Section 2(iii) of the Insurance Ordinance as government securities and other securities based on the revenues of the federal government or of a provincial government, guaranteed fully as regards principal and profit or return (however called or designated) by the federal government or a provincial government, and debentures and other securities issued under the authority of an act of the federal legislature or any provincial legislature by or on behalf of the trustees of the port of Karachi; securities issued under the authority of any act of parliament or of a provincial assembly; and securities specified as approved for the purpose of this ordinance by the federal government by notification in the official gazette. Insurers are also required to keep minimum deposits with the SBP under Section 29 of Insurance Ordinance 2000, which must be higher of 10 million rupees or 10% of the insurers paid-up capital, provided the Commission may, subject to achievement of levels of solvency as required by this ordinance, abolish the requirement for deposits specified by this section by reducing the required minimum amount to 0.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	If a life insurer is engaged in life insurance business in a currency other than the local currency where its liabilities – including policy holder liabilities – are, then all assets pertaining to those policies must be in that currency for the purpose of determining solvency as stated under Section 35(5) of the Insurance Ordinance of 2000 read with Rule No. 14 of the Insurance Rules 2017. Section 14(6) of the Insurance Ordinance of 2000 requires a separate statutory fund for policies issued outside Pakistan. Section 32(4) of the Insurance Ordinance of 2000 allows shares of a company incorporated outside Pakistan to be included for the purpose of determining the solvency of an insurance company, depending on whether the company has exceeded the limits under Section 32 of the Insurance Ordinance of 2000 read with Rule No. 12 of the Insurance Rules 2017. Accounting of such transactions falls under IAS 21.
Pension funds	Yes.	Only locally incorporated life insurance companies and asset management companies are allowed to offer pension funds. Pension funds may invest in local equity, debt, money markets, and commodity future contracts traded on the PMEX. Other investments, including overseas investment, are subject to SECP and SBP approval.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	Pension funds may invest in local equity, debt, money markets, and commodity future contracts traded on the PMEX. Other investments, including overseas investment, are subject to SECP approval.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	Pension funds may invest in local equity, debt, and money markets. Other investments, including overseas investment, are subject to SECP approval.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	Pursuant to Circular No. 12 of 2021, investments are only allowed in securities listed on a stock exchange in Pakistan, and the same for debt/money market investments. Portfolio held abroad is not allowed. The full portfolio is required to be invested locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.
Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For purposes of diversifying their asset classes or portfolios, locally established mutual funds are allowed to invest abroad up to 30% of aggregate funds (including foreign currency funds) in permissible categories, subject to a cap of US$15 million or its equivalent at any given time. Approval of the SBP and the SECP is required.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	The SBP approves investment abroad and imposes limits on investment amounts. For purposes of diversifying their asset classes or portfolios, locally established mutual funds are allowed to invest abroad up to 30% of aggregate net assets of a fund (including foreign currency funds) in permissible categories, subject to a cap of US$15 million or its equivalent at any given time. Approval of the SBP and the SECP is required.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	CISs are not allowed to invest more than 10% of their total net assets in a single entity; 25% in securities of a single sector, as classified by the stock exchange; and 35% in a single group, with a 10% limit for Regional arrangements	Yes.	Palau is in the process of negotiating its participation in PACER and PICTA. Palau has signed on to PACER; however, it has not ratified it. There is another subsidiary arrangement called PACER Plus which Palau has yet to sign or ratify. As for PICTA, Palau has signed on to Trade in Services (TIS) but has not yet ratified it, while it is yet to sign Trade in Goods (TIG). Palau does support the regional efforts and introductions of PACER and PICTA for Pacific island economies to develop their private sector's ability to trade and enter new markets but is limited in its participation because of its MFN clause under Palau–US Compact of Free Association. At the moment, Palau continues to receive funding assistance from Pacific Islands Forum Secretariat (PIFS), Australia and New Zealand, to improve institutions, facilities and for the National Government to implement PACER and PICTA when Palau does eventually sign and ratify said agreements.

Outward direct investment	No.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Under the Palau National Code, all foreign investment must be approved by the Foreign Investment Board. Foreign nationals, except those who invest jointly with a Palau national, may not invest in certain categories. The 2011 Foreign Investment Regulations detail the restricted and semi-restricted sectors. The following businesses are reserved solely for Palauan citizens: (1) wholesale or retail sale of goods; (2) all land transportation including bus services, taxi services, and car rentals; (3) tour guides, fishing guides, diving guides, and any other form of water transportation services; (4) travel and tour agencies; and (5) commercial fishing for other than highly migratory species. While these businesses are officially closed to foreign investment, there is a prevalent use of partnership companies in several categories, in which the foreign investor owns less than 50%. The retail sector, as well as travel- and tour-related businesses, currently has numerous foreign investors via such partnership companies. In semi-restricted sectors (pursuant to regulations from 2010), businesses can include foreign ownership as long as a Palauan citizen also has an ownership interest. There are no minimum or maximum requirements for percentage ownership for the foreign investor as long as the monetary and/or Palauan-employment minimums for all foreign investments are met. These semi-restricted businesses are: (1) handicraft and gift shops; (2) bakeries; (3) bar services; (4) operations/selling products being produced by wholly Palauan-owned manufacturing enterprise; (5) equipment rentals for both land and water within the Republic, including equipment for purpose of tourism; and (6) any such other businesses, as the Foreign Investment Board may determine. Sectors not listed as either closed

Exports of unworked gold produced in Panama are subject to an export duty of 1% ad valorem, and exports of gold coins (other than US coins, which are exempt) are subject to a duty of 0.5%.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.	The Federal Reserve Bank (FRB) verifies payment amounts, deposits, status of banknotes, and inventory and makes arrangements with shippers handling international cash with regard to the date of delivery to the shipper and the date on which the currency is deposited with the FRB. A SWIFT message is sent by the FRB International Department confirming the date, amount, and denominations to deliver (in US dollars only), and the shipper provides proof of delivery to the FRB once the shipment is delivered. The FRB then credits the account with the amount of the deposit.
Domestic currency	Yes.	The following controls apply: (1) FRB approval by three administrative officers and the executive security manager is required. (2) The International Department carries out monthly reconciliation and whenever there is a transaction. (3) No more than B 60 million may be exported, and the number and weight of bags are restricted. The following prohibitions apply: (1) Transactions will not be carried out unless there is a SWIFT message with the FRB. (2) Deposits that do not comply with the FRB's operational circulars are returned to the bank. (3) Transshipment by shipping companies is not permitted. (4) Contracts must be on door-to-door terms (from the FRB to the National Reserve, and vice versa). (5) Deposits from the FRB must be received during normal business hours. (6) No action may be taken unless security is present. (7) Nothing may be dispatched to banks or branches unless the order is in writing (originals in the case of banks and emailed spreadsheets in the case of branches). Import licenses and other nontariff measures	No.	No import licenses are required in Panama. A contingent mechanism was negotiated under a WTO agreement to facilitate the exchange of phytosanitary permits for rice products, pork, poultry, and tomato paste and puree, allowing imports of these products at preferential tariff rates.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	No.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Tariff rates are calculated on an ad valorem basis and assessed on the c.i.f. value of imports. Trade reform has resulted in simplified tariff bands of 0%, 3%, 5%, 10%, and 15%. Exceptions to the maximum tariff of 15% are automobiles (17%) and sugar (50% on imports exceeding a historical average price range). Also excluded are other products (mainly foodstuffs) whose tariffs are the maximum (and declining) levels negotiated with the WTO, including dairy products (50%–155%); rice (90%); onions (90%); beef (40%); pork (70%–90%); boneless and whole hams (83%); some poultry (300%); cabbages, carrots, celery, and lettuce (32.5%); cooking oils (20%–30%); margarine (15%); salt (87%); ketchup (70%); and tomato paste and puree (87%). Imports into the Colón Free Zone and the newly established EPZs are exempt from duty. There is a FTA in effect between Panama and the United States. It aims to (1) reduce

With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Exports of some marine species, flammable products, and weapons are subject to a permit or compliance with special formalities. For reasons of sustainability and to boost national value added, exports of wood in slabs and blocks or simply planed are prohibited. Panama does not apply any export taxes except on products manufactured from native woods. Domestic taxes are not imposed on exports.

PAPUA NEW-GUINEA

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		October 9, 1975.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: December 4, 1975.

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	Yes.	The IMF staff report for the 2022 Article IV and the Staff Monitored Program with Papua New Guinea states that as of May 25, 2022, Papua New Guinea maintains the following exchange restrictions subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 2(a) of the IMF's Articles of Agreement arising from: (1) the requirement to obtain a tax clearance certificate (TCC) evidencing the payment of all taxes prior to making payments or transfers for certain current international transactions; and (2) the rationing of foreign exchange, which results in undue delays and arrears in current international payments. Papua New Guinea also maintains the following MCPs subject to IMF approval under Article VIII, Section 3: an MCP arising from the potential spread deviation of more than 2% between the rates set by the Bank of Papua New Guinea (BPNG) for its foreign exchange transactions with the government and embassies, and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients and an MCP arising from the spread of more than 2% between the rates set by the BPNG for its foreign exchange allocations to AFEDs and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients. (Country Report No. 22/305, Country Report No. 20/95).
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	No.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	No.

Exchange Arrangement

Currency	Yes.	The currency of Papua New Guinea is the Papua New Guinea kina.
Other legal tender	No.
Exchange rate structure
Unitary
Dual
Multiple	Yes.	There is a multiple exchange rate structure as a result of MCPs arising (1) from the spread of more than 2% between the rates set by the BPNG for its foreign exchange allocations to AFEDs and the rates used by AFEDs in transactions with their clients and (2) from the potential spread deviation of more than 2% between the rates set by the BPNG for its foreign exchange transactions with the government and embassies and the rates used by AFEDs in

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is floating. The exchange rate of the kina is determined in the interbank market, in which ADs participate. The BPNG intervenes in the foreign exchange market to smooth extreme fluctuations. On June 4, 2014, the BPNG introduced an exchange rate trading margin with a kina buying rate within 75 basis points (bps) above the interbank midrate and a kina selling rate within 75 bps below the midrate. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as stabilized. The BPNG publishes the intervention data in its annual report and semi-annual monetary policy statement.

Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The official exchange rate is the interbank market midrate which is determined by the interaction between demand for foreign currency (offer) and supply of foreign currency (bid) by the ADs, including the BPNG. The live price at the close of trading becomes the official rate. The BPNG publishes official exchange rates based on the closing interbank US dollar–kina rate for use by government departments and institutions as well as the ADs. There is small margin on trades done for US dollar–kina rate for use by government departments and institutions as well as the ADs. The official exchange rate for other currencies is determined by crossing the other currencies with kina/US dollar official rate and applying the trading margin as specified in the operational guidelines agreed to with the commercial banks.

Monetary aggregate target	Yes.	Monetary policy is conducted within the reserve money framework. The BPNG announces the policy rate—the kina facility rate—monthly and use open market operations to implement monetary policy. It also uses direct instruments from time to time, including cash reserve requirement, to assist in the conduct of monetary policy (liquidity management). Low inflation is a key operational objective, although there is no immediate target or numerical target.

Under the Central Banking Act 2000, the objective of price stability is for the Bank to strive for low interest rates, low inflation and stable exchange rate. The formulation of monetary policy is broadly guided by analysis of the main factors that affect price stability and an understanding of their economic consequences. The BPNG sets annual growth projections, in line with its monetary policy stance, on monetary aggregates in its semi-annual monetary policy statements, released in March 31 and September 30. The BPNG does not pursue inflation targeting.

Exchange tax	No.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	The BPNG is the exchange control authority. ADs deal in foreign exchange in house with exporters and importers and buy and sell excess foreign exchange in the interbank market. The BPNG may buy or sell foreign exchange in the interbank market, if necessary, to smooth out exchange rate volatility.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	ADs, which consist of four commercial banks and two nonbank financial institutions, provide foreign exchange service to customers, including spot transactions. ADs publish buying and selling rates for customers and may determine their own commissions with their clients. They may trade in kina against US dollars, but within a trading margin of 75 basis points above or below the official reference rate determined in the interbank market. To enhance competition in the foreign exchange market, nine currency exchange bureaus are licensed by the BPNG to deal in physical notes and coins and cash traveler's checks. The BPNG clearance must be obtained before additional products are offered to customers. Exchange bureaus may not maintain foreign currency accounts (FCAs) for their customers. The currency exchange bureaus are allowed to freely set their purchase and sale exchange rates. There are no limits set by the BPNG. The bureaus set their own rates and commissions because they need to cover for associated costs such as transportation, insurance, security, and storage.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	Yes.	The BPNG intervenes in the foreign exchange market to sell or buy foreign exchange to smooth the kina exchange rate fluctuations. To buy foreign exchange from ADs, the BPNG offers a matching competitive price to the one quoted for sale in the interbank market. To sell foreign exchange, the BPNG offers foreign exchange to ADs at an offer price based on the price quoted in the interbank market.
Auction	No.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	ADs participate in the interbank market. There are no limits on the bid and offer spreads. The BPNG may buy or sell foreign exchange in the interbank market, if necessary, to smooth out exchange rate volatility. The BPNG executes deals at the rates quoted by the ADs. If there is only a bid and no offer or vice versa, the BPNG as a market participant may place a counterbid or offer.

Over the counter	Yes.	Customers may engage in OTC transactions with licensed ADs. Customers include individuals, businesses, and other organizations.
Brokerage	Yes.	The BPNG acts as a broker for ADs under the current arrangement. There are no brokerage fees charged.
Market making	Yes.	ADs continuously make a market for their major customers.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Exporters and importers may engage in forward cover transactions with the four commercial banks at market-determined rates. Each commercial bank is subject to a prudential limit on its uncovered forward position. Currently, commercial banks may not bring a forward cover order to the interbank market. They may deal with forward orders in house with their own resources (foreign currency) but may not use BPNG intervention (which is for spot orders only) to fund forward orders. The BPNG may participate in the forward market with commercial banks but not directly with their clients. The BPNG issued a directive for a temporary suspension on all forward transactions, on July 16, 2020.
Official cover of forward operations	No.

Arrangements for Payments and Receipts

Prescription of currency requirements	Yes.	Contractual commitments to persons residing outside Papua New Guinea and expressed in foreign currency may be paid in the same foreign currency. Export proceeds may be received in any foreign currency.
Controls on the use of domestic currency	Yes.	Since March 2015, all outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
For current transactions and payments	Yes.	Since March 2015, all outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
For capital transactions	Yes.	Since March 2015, all outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Since March 2015, all outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Since March 2015, all outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) for derivatives and other instruments must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED.
Credit operations	Yes.	Since March 2015, all outward remittances (telegraphic transfers and drafts) must be in foreign currency and done through an AFED. Residents of PNG cannot conduct credit operations with nonresidents in kina.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	An agreement by a resident that creates an obligation in favor of another resident in a foreign currency (domestic transaction) requires a prior BPNG approval. All domestic transactions involving two resident parties must be settled in kina; if one of the two parties has foreign currency, it must be converted to kina for the settlement.
Payments arrangements	Yes.
Bilateral payments arrangements	Yes.
Operative	Yes.	There is a bilateral payments agreement with Fiji, which is operational.
Inoperative	No.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Regional arrangements	Yes.	Papua New Guinea participates in the Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA) with the EU and African, Caribbean, and the Pacific (ACP) countries and is a signatory to South Pacific Regional Trade and Economic Cooperation Agreement (SPARTECA), PICTA, Melanesian Spearhead Group Trade Agreement (MSGTA); Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation (APEC); and the WTO. The bilateral, regional, sub-regional, and multilateral trade agreements in which Papua New Guinea participates are consistent with WTO agreements and provisions. These agreements also contain provisions regarding intellectual property rights.
Clearing agreements	No.
Barter agreements and open accounts	No.
Administration of control	Yes.	The overall policy is determined by the government with advice from the BPNG. The BPNG has delegated considerable power to ADs to deal with foreign exchange transactions. All current and capital account transactions, government transactions, and current and capital account contracts (agreements) are exempt from obtaining a prior authorization of the BPNG. However, the capital and current account transactions and contracts are subject to the BPNG's reporting requirement and tax clearance certificate (TCC) requirement of the Internal Revenue Commission (IRC).
Payments arrears	No.
Official	No.
Private	No.
Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.	Exportation or importation of gold is regulated.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.	Residents may trade gold freely within Papua New Guinea.
On external trade	Yes.	The exportation or importation of gold requires a license from the BPNG.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	Yes.
On exports	Yes.
Domestic currency	Yes.	Removal or export of more than K20,000 in kina banknotes and coins by residents and nonresidents requires a prior BPNG approval. It is also required for exports for numismatic purposes. For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the Financial Analysis and Supervision Unit (FASU).
Foreign currency	Yes.	Removal or export of foreign currency banknotes and coins in excess of K20,000.00 by residents and nonresidents requires a prior approval of the BPNG. For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the FASU.
On imports	No.

Domestic currency	No.	For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the FASU.
Foreign currency	No.	For the purpose of AML/CFT, entities or individuals are obliged to report currency, monetary instruments and precious metals, and precious stones, the individual value or combined value of which is K20,000.00 or more in value to the FASU.

Resident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.
Approval required	Yes.	The ADs were directed to cease opening any new FCAs for PNG residents as of March 5, 2015. Thereafter, only a prior approval of BPNG is required to open a FCA for PNG residents.
Held abroad	Yes.	There are two categories of FCAs. The first category is those accounts covered under the project development agreements which usually involve movement of large and lumpy foreign exchange, which may cause significant kina exchange rate volatility if these flows are allowed to enter the domestic foreign exchange market. The second category is those FCAs which are not covered by project development agreements but are required to receive foreign currency income and to settle contractual obligation to nonresidents abroad. With a prior BPNG approval, residents may open FCAs of both categories outside Papua New Guinea. Account holders must submit a Monthly Foreign Currency Account Report to the BPNG.
Approval required	Yes.	These accounts may be held abroad, but a prior BPNG approval is required. Accounts of ADs that are not nostro or vostro accounts require a prior approval of the BPNG.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	No.	Since March 5, 2015, residents cannot maintain domestic currency accounts held abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Since March 5, 2015, BPNG approval is required to convert kina accounts held with ADs into FCAs. Funds in domestic accounts denominated in kina can be converted to foreign currency and repatriated abroad without approval, except for removal of kina in excess of K20,000.00 in physical notes and coins.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	ADs may open nonresident FCAs in accordance with BPNG guidelines. The ADs must report nonresident FCA balances to the BPNG. ADs can transfer funds abroad from balances of domestic accounts.
Approval required	No.
Domestic currency accounts	Yes.	Since March 5, 2015, nonresident expatriates domiciled or living in PNG under foreign embassy and consulate arrangements or multilateral arrangements, including such institutions, can operate kina accounts. ADs may hold such accounts in PNG under correspondent banking arrangements for nonresidents.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		All other nonresidents cannot open and operate kina accounts. All kina deposited into vostro accounts of foreign banks have to be from conversion of foreign currency to kina through an AFED.
Convertible into foreign currency	Yes.	Conversion to foreign currency is permitted.
Approval required	No.
Blocked accounts	No.

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.	Since April 2017, all new trade finance loans provided by ADs must be approved by the BPNG.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	No.	There are no restrictions on import payments. For imports that have not arrived in PNG, a Customs Entry Declaration Form 15 (Form 15) must be submitted to an AD, within 60 days from the date of making the import payment in advance. For imports that have arrived in PNG, it is a requirement that Form 15 is submitted at the time of making the payment.
Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	Yes.	A prior approval of the BPNG is required for ADs to issue LCs in favor of nonresidents as guarantees. The BPNG's approval is not required when such credits are from nonresidents in favor of residents.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	ADs may process and remit import payments abroad. Payments must be supported with summary commercial invoices, customs forms, and duly completed balance of payments (BOP) reporting forms (BOP Forms) and a TCC issued by the IRC if required. Payments exceeding K10,000.00 must be reported to the BPNG on BOP Form for imports, by an AD. Import payments between K5,000.00 and K10,000.00 must be reported to the BPNG on an aggregate BOP Form for imports, by an AD. For import payments below K5,000.00, ADs may process import payments without submitting their reports to the BPNG. An AD is obliged to provide details of these transactions on request. The BPNG issued some of the foreign exchange reports in 2017 to get more visibility into the other trades that are done by ADs that fall outside the threshold of K3.0 million. This is to facilitate the capture of all transactions and currency of trade, reported to the CB. The BPNG is now monitoring all SWIFT transactions through a SWIFT enhancement, namely the "Swift Scope" which has been in operation since early 2017.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	The purpose of these measures is to restrict or prohibit the importation of certain goods to protect health, security, bio-security, and morals.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	No.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	There are four major ad valorem tariff rates (0, 15%, 25%, and 40%) and some additional specific tariff rates, including 70% on sugar and 20% on mackerel. To assist local industries, the following measures apply: (1) the tariff on canned dark tuna is 20% and (2) the tariff on canned baked beans is 25%. In line with the theme of connecting PNG, the government introduced an overall reduction on the import excise rate by 56% on imported vehicles. The duty rate for brand new vehicles (60%) and used vehicles (80%) with lower engine capacity is reduced to 20%. The duty rate for sporting and luxury vehicles is reduced from 110% for new vehicles and 120% for used vehicles.
Taxes collected through the exchange system	No.
State import monopoly	Yes.	A state import monopoly applies to the importation of military equipment.

Exports and Export Proceeds

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	Since March 5, 2015, all exporters not covered by a project agreement must repatriate all export proceeds and convert them into kina or deposit into onshore FCAs. The repatriation must be done within three months from the shipment date of export. Any offset against offshore liabilities is not permitted. For an exporter with an approved offshore FCA, any surplus funds in the account after meeting offshore liabilities must be repatriated to PNG within three months from the shipment date of export and converted to kina or deposited into a domestic FCA. Those exporters covered under a project agreement are required to repatriate any surplus funds after meeting their 3 months forward commitments to offshore suppliers of goods and services. The surplus funds can be converted to kina or held in domestic FCAs.
Surrender requirements	Yes.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	Yes.	Since March 5, 2015, the surplus funds in the offshore FCA of exporters must be brought onshore and deposited in the kina account at the local ADs.
Financing requirements	Yes.	Since April 2017, ADs cannot provide trade finance loans in any currency except with a prior authorization of the BPNG.
Documentation requirements	Yes.

Letters of credit	No.
Guarantees	No.
Domiciliation	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Other	Yes.	Customs documentation must be submitted to an AD after each shipment. ADs may process export receipts without submitting them to the BPNG. A BOP form must be completed for export proceeds exceeding K10,000 or its equivalent.
Export licenses	Yes.
Without quotas	Yes.	Licenses are required for exports of logs, pearls, fishery and marine products, wood chips, sandalwood, rattan, coffee, cocoa, and copra. Log export licenses are issued based on minimum export price guidelines. For gold exports, a license from the BPNG is required.
With quotas	No.
Export taxes	Yes.
Collected through the exchange system	No.
Other export taxes	Yes.	Export taxes apply to logs, mineral ores and concentrates (except gold, silver, and copper), sandalwood, and crocodile skins. There is a flat 28.5% export tax on logs. The capture of resource rent on the export of unprocessed old – growth logs increased progressively from the current duty rate average of 32.0% to an average of 50.0%.

Payments for Invisible Transactions and Current Transfers

Controls on these transfers	Yes.	Current account transactions are exempted from exchange controls and may be made without limit. Remittances to a tax haven require a TCC from the IRC. Remittances to other countries in excess of K500,000 require a TCC from the IRC, where applicable. The BPNG's reporting requirements must be met for current account transactions.
Trade-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	A bona fide test is applied, in the form of a documentation requirement. Contractual documents such as loan agreements, lease agreements, and consultancy agreements and commercial invoices must be presented to an AD for payments abroad.
Investment-related payments	Yes.
Prior approval	No.
Quantitative limits	No.
Indicative limits/bona fide test	Yes.	Service payments on foreign debt may be made through an AD. A bona fide test is applied. For dividends, a signed copy of company

In accordance with the Organic Charter in Article No. 3 of Law No. 489/95, the objective of the Central Bank of Paraguay (BCP) under Article 3 of Law No. 489/95 is to preserve and safeguard the stability of the currency and promote the efficiency, integrity, and stability of the financial system. Similarly, Article 47 states the following: “Within the framework of the national government’s economic policy and laws, the BCP shall administer the legal provisions and their regulations that set the exchange rate regime, as well as the control measures over current foreign collections and payments and capital movements that are only adopted by the Powers of the State in circumstances of exceptional national emergency.

Foreign exchange operations shall be carried out on the free foreign exchange market which, for the purposes of this Law, is made up of entities authorized to operate in the foreign exchange market. Anyone may engage in foreign exchange operations. The exchange rate shall be that freely agreed on by the parties involved, in accordance with supply and demand.” Article 50 establishes the following: “The free foreign exchange market shall operate with foreign currency and other documents, checks, drafts, or foreign exchange transfer securities derived from the export and import of goods, services, and capital movements, except in cases of specific prohibitions established by the Law or by provisions founded by the Executive Branch. The BCP shall operate in the foreign exchange market to ensure its normal, competitive, and balanced operation and to respect the fundamental trends in the supply and demand of foreign currency. Foreign currency trading by the BCP shall aim to mitigate the effects of seasonal fluctuations in supply and demand and offset erratic capital flows and speculative movements that could disrupt the market or exchange rate.”
The BCP, in its capacity as a financial agent of the government (Article 71 of its Organic Charter – Law No. 489), buys US dollars from the government, received by the latter in the form of disbursements and compensation paid by bi-national hydroelectric entities, in exchange for guaraníes. These dollars purchased from the public sector are returned to the market via sales to the financial system.

During 2022, net purchases (purchases less sales) of the BCP with the financial system were US$863.70 million, while net purchases with the public sector were US$1,129.93 million. Foreign exchange sales to the Financial Sector were made by the BCP to moderate any abrupt exchange rate volatility that does not respond to market fundamentals, within the compensatory and complementary sales regime. When the monthly amount sold to the financial sector is equal to or less than the net amount purchased from the MOF during a given month, the accumulated monthly amounts represent compensatory sales. When the monthly amount of these sales is greater than the net amount purchased from the MOF, the difference between the two represents the complementary sales. Therefore, in 2022, compensatory sales amounted to US$447.80 million, while complementary sales amounted to US$415.90 million.

The BCP manages this flow of net purchases made to the MOF, selling these dollars to the Financial System, without these sales disturbing or generating strong volatilities in the foreign exchange free market, in accordance with the provisions of Article 50 of Law 489: “The BCP shall operate in the foreign exchange market to ensure its normal functioning, competitive and balanced and respecting fundamental trends in the supply and demand of foreign currency.”

Since January 2022, the exchange rate stabilized within a 2% band against the US dollar with one realignment in April 2022 then increased its flexibility in September 2022. Accordingly, the de facto exchange rate arrangement was reclassified twice: 1) to stabilized from floating, effective January 5, 2022, and 2) to floating from stabilized, effective September 8, 2022. Every week, the BCP published daily data on exchange operations (with the public sector and with the financial sector) on its institutional website. Additionally, operations are also published according to classification, either compensatory or complementary Official exchange rate	Yes.	Resolution No. 7, Minute No. 86 of December 19, 2019, "Regulation on Open Market Operations and Standing Facilities and Regulation on Exchange Operations, Annex II," states the following in Article 14(e), Publication of the Fluctuating and Benchmark Exchange Rate: "The Board of Directors shall determine the method for calculating the benchmark exchange rate for the day. The latter rate shall be noted in the minutes of the Monetary Committee meeting, which shall, in this case, require the Board of Directors to participate." The benchmark exchange rate for the US dollar against the guaraní determined by the BCP equals the weighted average of interbank operations carried out in the spot market. This benchmark exchange rate is published daily on the BCP website at 1:00 p.m. The operations that serve as a basis for the calculation of the benchmark exchange rate are recorded by financial institutions on a platform called DATATEC, and the exchange rates calculated in this manner are published on the BCP website every 30 minutes from 8:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. The cumulative exchange rate at the final 30-minute cutoff is the benchmark exchange rate. The benchmark exchange rate is used to close public sector operations with the BCP and to settle foreign exchange forward contracts at maturity. As of August 3, 2020, the method for calculating the benchmark exchange rate is the one established by Minute No. 14/2020 of the Markets Committee as described above.

Minute No. 86 of December 19, 2019.

The aim of the CPM within the framework of inflation targets is to establish the monetary policy rate (MPR) and the guidelines, mechanisms, and instruments for monetary policy implementation to maintain price stability.

The CPM is responsible for:
(1) Analyzing and assessing information, submissions, and documents presented during the meeting and used as a basis for making monetary policy decisions.
(2) Determining the MPR value.
(3) Establishing the interest rates of standing deposit facilities and liquidity facilities and the financial conditions for the early cancellation and early redemption of monetary regulation instruments.
(4) Providing information to the Markets Committee (Comité de Mercados – CM) on the general guidelines (guidelines, mechanisms, and instruments) for implementing the monetary policy to align the interbank rate with the MPR.
(5) Providing information to the CM on the general guidelines for implementing the exchange rate policy.
Decisions: Decisions to be adopted by the CPM are based on the following:
(1) Technical criteria to be presented by Economic Studies.
(2) Analysis of prevailing economic conditions by Committee members, with the latter being able to have their dissenting opinions reflected in the minutes, if they so wish.
(3) The final decision must be adopted by simple majority of the voting members, based on the first and second points of this paragraph. In the event of a tie, the CPM Chair must decide with a double vote. The decisions taken by the CPM members must be recorded in the minutes.

The CB's CPM is made up of the chairman and four incumbent full members of the Board, who have the right to speak and vote. The CPM is chaired by the incumbent president of the BCP.
CPM participants:
The following members are, in the performance of their duties, permanent participants of the CPM with the right to speak but not vote:
(1) Chief Economist;
(2) Director of the External Sector Statistics Department;
(3) Director of the Real Sector Statistics Department;
(4) Director of the Macroeconomic Statistics Department; or legal entity, whether public or private, local or foreign, may operate in the Free Foreign Exchange Market without the prior and express authorization of the Central Bank of Paraguay." The BCP conducts its operations on the foreign exchange market with the sole aim of managing its balance sheet (programmed sales) and occasionally to prevent market volatility.

Operated by the central bank	Yes.	The BCP conducts its operations on the foreign exchange market with the sole aim of managing its balance sheet (programmed sales) and occasionally to prevent market volatility. Compensatory sales of US dollars to the financial system offset the US dollars purchased from the government (MOF).
Foreign exchange standing facility	No.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	Foreign exchange operations (whether compensatory sales or supplementary operations) generally take place through competitive auctions, awarded at multiple prices, for both purchases and sales of US dollars. Participants registered in the Registry of Participants in Exchange Operations may participate in BCP exchange operations (purchase/sale of foreign currency). The Open Market Department will record, at the request and on the prior approval of the BCP Board of Directors, banking institutions that can participate in exchange operations (purchase and/or sale of foreign currency) with the BCP. If it is found that the financial institution has not complied with the operating rules of the BCP, the operation will be canceled and the authorities will be informed of the situation at the close of daily operations. A financial institution that fails to settle the operation because of either insufficient funds or another operational deficiency by the established settlement date will be unable to operate with the Office of the Market Manager for a period of ten business days. The BCP does not require the auction participants to finance specific international transactions with the foreign exchange obtained at the auction (retail auction).
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank market is understood to mean transactions carried out between banks only. There were 17 banks participating in the interbank market as of December 31, 2021. These banks do not need to be licensed to participate in the interbank market because all banks licensed by the BCP automatically form part of the interbank market. There are no limits on the bid-ask spread of market participants.
Over the counter	Yes.	The interbank market is reported on through DATATEC, an electronic platform supplied by a private firm.
Brokerage	No.
Market making	No.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Commercial and Financial banks may conduct forward transactions for trade operations on terms freely negotiated with customers. Financial institutions may conduct forward transactions with residents and nonresidents. Net long or short positions on forward transactions with residents

Article 40 Number 17 authorizes the purchase of shares in foreign banks or other institutions that operate in financial intermediation or in the stock market, or are auxiliaries of one or the other, for the purpose of achieving international scope for their activities.
In banks by nonresidents	No.	As an AML control and prudential oversight measure, entities supervised by the Superintendency of Banks may not sell, assign, or transfer their shares to individuals or legal entities domiciled in countries deemed to be tax havens.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	The following ratio categories are established for the foreign currency position. Resolution No. 2, Minute No. 34 of May 13, 2019, on effective net worth: (1) Category A: liability position of 10% to asset position of 15%. (2) Category B: asset position of 40% to asset position of 50%. (3) Category C: asset position of 90% to asset position of 100%. Resolution No. 3, Minute 34 of May 13, 2019, also amends the daily net operating foreign exchange position from US$3 million to US$5 million. The daily net operating foreign exchange position is defined as the (negative or positive) difference in the net aggregate foreign currency position from one day to the next, which may not exceed US$5 million, for both long and short positions. A financial institution that exceeds the limit must deposit in its account with the BCP, within 24 hours of the BCP notice to the financial institution, an amount equal to the excess over the established limit. This amount will remain unavailable in the US dollar account that the financial institution holds with the BCP for 15 business days. Net long or short positions on forward transactions with residents have an applicable limit. Such positions may not exceed the smaller of: (1) two times the average volume of banking operations of banks in the last three months or (2) 80% of the effective net worth in the previous month converted to US dollars. In the case of forward transactions with nonresidents, it is considered that (modified from Resolution No. 11, Minute No. 34 of May 31, 2018): (1) The current purchase volume of forward transactions carried out in US dollars with nonresidents may not exceed 3% of the effective net worth in the previous month converted to US dollars. (2) The sales volume of current forward transactions carried out in US dollars with nonresidents may not exceed 3% of the effective worth in the previous month converted to US dollars. Forward transactions that do not involve the guaraní are exempt from that limit (Resolution No. 15, Minute No. 67 of October 18, 2018).

Insurance companies	Yes.	As of June 30, 2021, there were 35 insurance companies authorized by the Superintendency of Insurance to operate in the market. (However, Universo S.A. de Seguros has stopped issuing policies because of a deficit in its Guarantee Fund.) Pursuant to Article 4 of Law No. 827/96 on Insurance, the BCP's Superintendency of Insurance is responsible for authorizing the operation of insurance companies.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	There is no defined limit. To represent technical reserves, the insurer must obtain authorization from the Superintendency of Insurance, in which consideration is given to the qualifications of the issuing body and/or the instruments issued and the profitability identified or anticipated. Without such authorization, the securities issued by nonresidents are not part of the investible funds stipulated by the Superintendency of Insurance. They are therefore deducted from net equity to obtain the technical equity.
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	There is no defined limit. Without such authorization, the securities issued by nonresidents are not part of the investible funds stipulated by the Superintendency of Insurance. They are therefore deducted from net equity to obtain the technical equity.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no minimum limits, but maximum limits exist for the investments allowed, both by type of Assets and by Issuer, as established in Articles 6 to 9 of Resolution SS.SG. No. 132/2015.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	Foreign currency assets and liabilities must be based on the end-of-month exchange rate.
Pension funds	No.	Because there is no pension regulator, there are no general regulations on portfolio allocations. However, there are eight special pension funds (cajas), each created under a specific law (which outlines rules for administration, contributions, benefits, investments, accounting, and supervision). These laws do not set any investment limits. There are also 10 private social insurance funds, the operations of which are not regulated.

Floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are floating. The exchange rate is determined by supply and demand. The Central Reserve Bank of Peru (BCRP) intervenes in the foreign exchange market to limit volatility without altering the exchange rate trend.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		BCRP interventions can also be conducted through dollar-indexed bonds and foreign exchange swaps. The BCRP publishes daily information about its intervention operations (prices and amounts) on its website in real time. The exchange rate between January 2022 and April 2023 was influenced by high uncertainty in the international financial markets because of: (i) fears of a global recession; (ii) bank tensions in the United States; (iii) the uncertain trajectory of monetary policy rates; (iv) uncertainty over the debt ceiling in the United States; and (v) the risk of weaker economic growth in China.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	No.	The legal framework of the floating exchange rate system is established by Executive Decree No. 268-91-EF (March 26, 1991), which states that the exchange rate for foreign currency operations is determined in the foreign exchange market by the free interaction of supply and demand. Consequently, there is no official exchange rate. For private contracts involving transactions with foreign currency, Article 1237 of the Civil Code establishes that the exchange rate for valuation in domestic currency of obligations denominated in foreign currency is the ask exchange rate at the due or payment date of the contract. The Economic Studies Department of the Superintendence of Banks, Insurance Companies, and Pension Funds (SBS), within its role of promoting the transparent flow of information in the financial system (Article 32 of SBS Resolution No. 4027-2011), proposes the methodology for recording the exchange rate and interest rates (both freely determined). To contribute to the provision of information and for statistical purposes, the SBS publishes the daily exchange rate on its website. The daily exchange rate is registered as the bid and ask prices for banking operations recorded on DATATEC.

Policy rate	Yes.	The overnight interbank interest rate is the operating target of monetary policy, at 7.25% in October 2023, 7.50% in September 2023, 7.75% in August 2023 (since January 2023), 7.50% in December 2022, 7.25% in November 2022, 7.00% in October 2022, 6.75% in September 2022, and 6.50% in August 2022 (after having remained at 0.25%, its all-time low, since April 2020 and having been gradually raised since August 2021). CDs issued in local currency by the BCRP are the main monetary instrument for open-market operations. The BCRP also issues CDs indexed to the policy rate, and charges a commission on transfers of these CDs to resident and nonresident institutions, except between resident financial institutions. The commission is currently 4%. Time deposits in the BCRP are also used as a sterilization instrument. In addition, CDs indexed to the exchange rate and denominated in local currency continue to be used as a monetary regulatory instrument to mop up liquidity in the financial system. They are also used by private banks as part of their exchange position. The BCRP issues CDs redeemable in US dollars, which facilitate its intervention in the spot foreign exchange market. Similarly, the BCRP participates in foreign exchange swap auctions with financial institutions.
Target corridor band	Yes.	The BCRP sets interest rates related to permanent facility operations in domestic currency with financial entities (as at October 31): (1) Overnight deposits: 4.50% annual. (2) Direct security/currency repo and rediscount operations: (a) 7.75% annual for the first 10 operations in the past three months; and (b) the interest rate established by the Monetary and Exchange Operations Committee for operations in addition to these 10 operations in the past three months. Moreover, the Monetary and Exchange Operations Committee will be able to establish higher rates based on the operation amount.

Interbank market	Yes.	The foreign exchange market in Peru operates on two platforms: (1) DATATEC and (2) Reuters. All banks are licensed to participate in the interbank foreign exchange market. There were 17 commercial banks as of October 31, 2023. Licenses are granted by the SBS. There are no limits on bid-ask spreads. However, all banks are subject to a daily ceiling according to the risk policy of the banking institution. The BCRP intervenes in the market via DATATEC at its quoted rates or by proposing its own prices. The BCRP may launch auctions of CDs indexed to the exchange rate. Auctions are not conducted on a regular basis. Auction participants who default on their obligations may be temporarily barred from participation. All lending institutions (including banks and microfinance entities) are eligible to participate. Auction results are published on the BCRP's website and DATATEC, Reuters, and Bloomberg terminals. Transactions in the foreign exchange market by private pension funds (Administradoras Privadas de Fondos de Pensiones) may not exceed a daily limit of 0.75% of the value of the fund and of 1.75% for the preceding five days (SBS Resolution No. 561-2013).

Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	For financial stability purposes, deposit accounts in domestic and foreign currency are treated differently: Domestic currency: The minimum current account requirement is 1% of the total liabilities subject to reserve requirements (TOSE). The reserve requirement ratio (RRR) in domestic currency is the greater of: (1) the RRR resulting from applying the reserve rate for the base period (July 2021) to the liabilities subject to reserve requirements up to the base period level and a marginal reserve rate of 25% on the increase in the TOSE relative to the base period and (2) the minimum legal reserve requirement (5.0% effective January 1, 2022—previously 4.75%, 5.25% effective February 1, 2022, 5.5% effective March 1, 2022, and 5.75% effective April 1, 2022, and 6.0% effective May 2022) for the assessment period. In addition, there is a maximum average reserve requirement equal to 6.0% of the TOSE flow for the assessment period. A special reserve requirement of 35% is applied to obligations in domestic currency that are indexed to foreign exchange variations.

Foreign currency:
There is a minimum reserve requirement rate (RRR) of 9%, but for macroprudential purposes, the BCRP requires additional reserves, which are determined based on a marginal reserve rate and a cap on the average reserve rate, both currently at 35%. Foreign-exchange-indexed obligations are subject to a special RRR of 9%.

The RRR with average maturities equal to or less than 2 years with foreign financial entities subject to the special regime is, effective July 1, 2023, 35% for obligations contracted as of July 1, 2023, while obligations contracted up to June 30, 2023, will have a rate of 9% until the originally agreed maturity date.

Coverage of legal reserve requirements includes liabilities of foreign branches. The general reserve rate requirement applies to the following operations: (1) foreign-exchange-indexed obligations; (2) obligations with nonresident institutions with maturities of two years or more that exceed certain limits and operations; and (3) obligations derived from credit with nonresident institutions.
Effective July 1, 2023, there is an additional foreign exchange reserve requirement based on the evolution of total credit. When the financial entity has an average daily balance of credits less than US$200 million as at June 2023, the limit will be US$200 million.
Effective July 1, 2023, when the financial entity has an average daily balance of credits greater than or equal to US$200 million as at June 2023, the limit applied will be that in effect during the June 2023 reserve period, which is the average daily balance of credits in foreign currency of December 2018 plus 30% of the accumulated flow compared to December 2018 of the average credit in domestic currency. The additional reserve is equal to 30% of the percentage excess. The additional reserve is applied to total liabilities in foreign currency.
This limit will be increased by the amount equal to 30% of the accumulated flow of average daily credit in domestic currency relative to June 2023, provided it is positive.
The calculation of the total average daily balance of credits in foreign currency must not include credits for foreign trade or those granted as of January 1, 2015, with a term greater than three years and an amount above US$10 million.
Also excluded from the calculation of the total average daily balance of credits in foreign currency, up to a balance of US$500 million, are credits granted as of July 1, 2023, with a term greater than one year and an amount above US$5 million. The maximum amount of US$500 million does not include credits classified in the exempted categories previously defined in the paragraph above.
The calculation of the accumulated flow of the average credit in domestic currency must not include credit under the Reactiva Perú program or mortgage, consumer, and foreign trade credit. The accounting exchange rate from the end of the June 2023 period, published by the SBS, will be used to convert this flow to dollars.

Financial entities whose average daily balance of total vehicle and mortgage consumer loans exceeds, effective December 1, 2023, 75% (previously 80% effective December 1, 2022; and 85% before that) of the balance reached as of December 31, 2018, or 5% of their ultimate effective equity, whichever is greater, are subject to an additional reserve requirement equal to 15% of the percentage excess. The additional reserve is applied to total liabilities in foreign currency. A type of repo operation is used to inject soles; this operation allows the BCRP to provide soles to financial institutions in exchange for an equivalent amount of foreign currency reserve funds, which is deducted from their dollar reserve requirements up to an amount equal to 20% of their obligations subject to foreign currency reserve requirements (an expansionary operation). Another new type of repo operation was implemented to support the conversion to domestic currency of loans granted by financial institutions in foreign currency. Under the terms of the operation, the CB sells foreign currency to the financial institution on the spot date to finance this conversion (a currency substitution operation). Synthetic forwards are also included in the calculation used for limits on foreign exchange derivatives.

Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	As a prudential measure, a liquid asset requirement as a percentage of short-term liabilities (20% in foreign currency and 8% in domestic currency) is applied. These ratios increase to 25% and 10%, respectively, if concentration (measured as the percentage of liabilities with the largest 20 depositors) is higher than 25%. The short-term LCR is 100% (SBS Resolution No. 6694-2015). From March 16, 2020, the limits of LCRs in domestic currency (RCL-MN) and in foreign currency (RCL-ME) temporarily stopped applying, until further notice, as per Oficio Multiple No. 11148-2020 issued by the SBS. By way of Oficio Multiple No. 05830-2022-SBS (of February 11, 2022), the SBS re-established the 100% requirement for the RCL-MN and RCL-ME effective April 1, 2022. SBS Resolution No. 03296-2022 of October 2022, effective January 2024, introduces various amendments to align the local regulations with the Basel III standard. The RCL-MN is reduced from 100% to 80%, while the RCL-ME is maintained at 100%, with a global LCR for both domestic and foreign currency (MN + ME) of 100%. The full 100% of reserves required in domestic currency is considered to be part of high quality liquid assets (HQLA) (to date, the equivalent of 25% of the average reserve requirement has been reduced). The weightings will reflect the implicit funding risk by client type and may even vary according to the type of currency. Deposits from natural persons will receive a lower weighting, while those of legal entities will increase. The notion of operational deposit is introduced for legal entities, which are considered to be more stable and therefore receive a lower weighting. The possibility of a temporary conversion for regulatory compliance by currency is eliminated.

Obligations in foreign currency with nonresident institutions with maturities of two years or less are subject to a special RRR of 35% effective July 1, 2023, for obligations contracted as of July 1, 2023, while obligations contracted up to June 30, 2023, will have a RRR of 9% until the originally agreed maturity date. Effective July 1, 2023, foreign loans used to finance foreign trade operations with maturities shorter than or equal to two years up to the equivalent of 40% of the financial entity's effective equity are not subject to a reserve requirement. The excess is subject to a RRR of 35%. Previously, it was 9%.

(SBS Resolution 2628-2020, in force since October 28, 2020). Effective November 2, 2022, the BCRP applies an additional reserve requirement in domestic currency to the excess of the limit on sales of derivative instruments (forwards and swaps). The RRR will increase when: (1) weekly sales of foreign exchange derivatives exceed US$770 million (previously, US$675 million); (2) the balance of sales of foreign exchange derivatives exceeds the greater of the limit in effect in September 2022, 140% of the average daily balance of foreign exchange derivatives as at September 2022 (previously, 135%), or US$1,335 million (previously, US$1,170 million). (Circular No. 025-2022-BCRP). Effective February 8, 2023, new limits were established for the overall foreign currency position: (1) Limit on the overall short position: The overall short position may not be greater than 10% of effective equity. (2) Limit on the overall long position: The overall long position may not be greater than 10% of effective equity. (SBS Resolution No. 0066-2023) Previously, it was 10% of net equity for overall short position and 50% of net equity for overall long position.

The reserve requirement rate will increase when: (1) weekly sales of foreign exchange derivatives exceed US$770 million (previously, US$675 million); (2) the balance of sales of foreign exchange derivatives exceeds the greater of the limit in effect in September 2022, 140% of the average daily balance of foreign exchange derivatives as at September 2022 (previously, 135%), or US$1,335 million (previously, US$1,170 million).
02/08/2023	New limits were established for the overall foreign currency position: (1) Limit on the overall short position: the overall short position may not be greater than 10% of effective equity. (2) Limit on the overall long position: The overall long position may not be greater than 10% of effective equity. Previously, it was 10% of net equity for overall short position and 50% of net equity for overall long position.

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	No.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	Philippines' Anti-Money Laundering Council (AMLC) issued TF Resolution No. 35, s. 2021, issuing a standing Sanctions Freeze Order in relation to UNSC resolution No. 1267 and successor resolutions. The AMLC has likewise issued several Sanctions Freeze Order in relation to designations made by the Anti-Terrorism Council pursuant to Section 25 of Republic Act (R.A.) No. 11479 or the Anti-Terror Act of 2020. With respect to sanctions imposed on Democratic People's Republic of Korea and Iran, AMLC issued Targeted Financial Sanctions (TFS) related to Proliferation of Weapons of Mass Destructions and Proliferation Financing, from February 1, 2021. This is pursuant to UNSC resolution Nos. 1718 (2005) and 2231 (2015).

Floating	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is free floating. The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) adheres to a market-determined exchange rate policy with some scope for occasional participation in the market solely to prevent potentially disruptive sharp fluctuations in the exchange rate that may have an adverse impact on the inflation outlook and inflation expectations. The BSP does not target or support a given level of exchange rate; it allows the value of the peso to be determined by the demand for and supply of foreign currencies. The BSP may participate in the USD/PHP market directly with market participants or via market makers and does not disclose foreign exchange intervention data. In 2022, the peso depreciated by 9.6% against the US$ from an average of P49.3/US$1 in 2021 to P54.5/US$1 in 2022. The peso reached an all-time low of P59.0/US$1 in October 2022 on broad dollar gains amid monetary policy tightening by the United States Federal Reserve (US Fed). This led to the narrowing of interest rate differential between the Philippines and the United States (US) from 175–200 basis points (bps) in end-2021 to 100–125 bps in end-2022, reinforcing safe-haven trade toward the USD. The peso depreciation likewise stemmed from dampened market sentiment because of rising global inflation, as the conflict between Russia and Ukraine resulted in a surge in commodity prices. For the period January 1, 2022, to April 30, 2023, the peso depreciated due to broad US dollar strength amid signals by US Fed officials on the need to bring inflation back to the government target through additional monetary policy tightening. Moreover, announcement of oil output cut by the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries and allies (OPEC+) as well as global financial stability concerns amid delayed negotiations on the lifting of the US debt ceiling and stress in the US and European banking sector likewise contributed to the decline in the peso. On the domestic front, dampened market sentiment amid widening trade deficit and rising National Government outstanding debt also weighed down the peso. The de facto exchange rate arrangement is classified as floating.
Free floating
Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BSP publishes reference rates daily based on the Bankers Association of the Philippines (BAP)-weighted US dollar (USD)/PHP average rate, with Bloomberg as its calculating agent, and on the Reuters Eikon system foreign exchange previous day's New York closing price for other currencies. These are used to determine the value of foreign currency vis-à-vis the US dollar, euro, and peso.

Government and Central Bank	Yes.	The Development Budget Coordination Committee (DBCC), in consultation with the BSP, sets a fixed inflation target over a multi-year period to promote a longer-term view on inflation, help anchor inflation expectations, and foster greater flexibility in economic decisions. On approval by the DBCC, the BSP announces the inflation target to the public. The DBCC is composed of the principals of the four member agencies, namely Department of Budget and Management, Department of Finance, National Economic and Development Authority, and the Office of the President (OP). The BSP was invited to join the DBCC as a resource institution to provide inputs on monetary measures and policies. Although the responsibility of achieving the inflation target rests primarily with the BSP, the joint announcement of the inflation target reflects active government participation in achieving the goal of price stability. In practice, the agreements reached by the DBCC members are typically made through a consensus decision. The BSP sits in the DBCC as a resource institution to ensure close coordination on real, fiscal monetary and external sectors of the economy. While the BSP has no vote during DBCC meetings, the BSP is tasked with providing recommendations on a set of medium-term macroeconomic assumptions that are used in setting domestic growth and fiscal targets. Other member agencies also propose targets or assumptions under their purview. For instance, the National Economic and Development Authority recommends the medium-term GDP growth targets, while the Department of Budget and Management and the Department of Finance endorse the medium-term fiscal and financing programs, that are, in turn, used in the preparation of the NG budget. The DBCC also serves as an important venue for presentation and discussion among economic managers of other important matters, for example, setting of inflation targets, proposals for tax legislation, and mitigating measures against economic shocks.

Target with tolerance band	Yes.	The BSP has employed fixed multi-year inflation targets in replacement of the previous variable annual inflation target, approved by the DBCC in July 2010. The National Government's inflation target has a tolerance interval of ±1 percentage point (pp) around the target. It is measured in terms of the average year-on-year change in the CPI over the calendar year: 2011: 4.0% ± 1 pp (3.0%–5.0%); 2012–2014: 4.0% ± 1 pp (3.0%–5.0%); 2015–2016: 3.0% ± 1 pp (2.0%–4.0%); 2017–2018: 3.0% ± 1 pp (2.0%–4.0%); and 2019–2020: 3.0% ± 1 pp (2.0%–4.0%) and 2021–2022: 3.0% ± 1 pp (2.0%–4.0%). During the DBCC meeting on December 5, 2022, the DBCC in consultation with the BSP, decided to retain the inflation target of 3.0% ± 1.0 pp for 2023 – 2024 and set the same inflation target for 2025–2026. This announcement of the medium-term inflation target is in line with the BSP's commitment to transparency and accountability as well as the forward-looking approach in the conduct of monetary policy.

Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	The primary objective of the BSP monetary policy is "to promote price stability conducive to a balanced and sustainable growth of the economy and employment." The government's inflation target is defined in terms of the average year-on-year change in the CPI over the calendar year and is set two years ahead in consultation with the BSP.
Core inflation
Target horizon	Yes.	The BSP adopts a two-year policy horizon (current and one year ahead) in setting the medium-term inflation targets.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	Effective September 8, 2023, the BSP shifted to a variable-rate format with a pre-determined offer volume in the auction for the overnight (ON) reverse repurchase facility. In executing this shift to a variable-rate auction format, two key changes have been implemented: The BSP's monetary policy rate shall be called the "Target RRP Rate". The BSP will signal its monetary policy stance through the Target RRP Rate. Similar to the prevailing practice, the Target RRP Rate shall be set after each meeting of the Monetary Board (MB) on the BSP's monetary policy stance, and the RRP facility remains the BSP's primary monetary policy instrument. The BSP will also be introducing a formal operational target, which will be called the "ON RRP Rate". An operational target is a market-determined, short-term interest rate that CBs can guide on a day-to-day basis using their monetary instruments to reflect the prevailing monetary policy stance. Previously, the BSP's primary monetary policy instrument was its ON reverse repurchase rate.

The Open Letter contains explanation clauses, a predefined set of acceptable circumstances under which the BSP failed to achieve its inflation target. Open Letters to the President were issued January 16, 2004, January 18, 2005, January 25, 2006, January 19, 2007, January 14, 2008, January 26, 2009, January 28, 2016, January 27, 2017, January 25, 2019, January 18, 2022, and January 24, 2023.

Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	No.	The decisions of the MB concerning monetary policy are determined by consensus. No attribution of votes to individual Board members is made to emphasize the collegial and consensus-based nature of the decision-making process.
Publication of minutes	Yes.	As part of its efforts to promote greater transparency and accountability under the inflation-targeting framework, the BSP publishes the highlights of each MB meeting on the monetary policy stance, with a lag of four weeks. The highlights of each MB meeting contain the MB's monetary policy decision as well as key considerations in the formulation of the said monetary policy stance, including the inflation outlook, output, and domestic liquidity and credit conditions. The schedule of MB meeting highlights' publication is posted on the BSP website (Schedule of Monetary Policy Meetings, Inflation Report Press Conference, and Publication of MB Highlights, and Monetary Policy Report (MPR)). Starting 2022, the BSP has replaced the Inflation Report with the MPR. The MPR serves as the flagship BSP publication on monetary policy that provides the public a detailed view of the BSP's forecasts and guidance on the likely direction of monetary policy over the next two years. The report conveys to the public the overall thinking behind the BSP's decisions on monetary policy. The greater part of the report is devoted to the forward-looking discussions on inflation and the key macroeconomic variables that affect inflation as well as the risks and uncertainty surrounding the BSP's inflation forecasts.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	The BSP discloses updated baseline inflation forecasts after each MB meeting on the monetary policy stance (which is held eight times a year). In addition, the BSP also publishes in greater detail the inflation outlook using a fan chart in its MPR. The fan chart depicts the probability of different inflation outcomes based on the central projection (corresponding to the baseline forecast of the BSP) and the risks surrounding the inflation outlook.

Member banks of the BAP may trade in the peso–US dollar spot market via the Bloomberg trading platform. As of December 31, 2022, the BAP is the lead organization of U/KBs in the Philippines consisting of 44 member banks; of which 20 are local banks and 24 are foreign bank branches. Residents may purchase foreign exchange from foreign exchange dealers (FXDs) and money changers (MCs) for outward investment in any amount. The BSP Financial Markets does not deal with MCs. Thrift banks (TBs), rural banks, and cooperative banks may buy and sell foreign exchange under the pertinent foreign exchange rules and regulations.

Interbank market	Yes.	Interbank trading is conducted among BAP member banks and between these banks and the BSP. As of December 31, 2022, the BAP is the lead organization of U/KBs in the Philippines consisting of 44 member banks; of which 20 are local banks and 24 are foreign bank branches. Member banks may also deal through brokers. Only banks authorized for foreign exchange operations by the BSP and members of the BAP may engage in peso–US dollar trading with the BSP and among themselves. Trading among banks takes place on the Bloomberg trading platform. The USD/PHP trading takes place from 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. daily without a trading break. The system allows participants to share information electronically and conduct business. A party requesting quotes enters the dealing code of the quoting party, the value date, and the volume of the transaction. The quoting party enters the exchange rate. Only the BSP has access to the database showing full details of individual trades on any day. Banks may view only statistics such as the day's open, high, low, close, average, volume, and bank quotes. Banks may also view their own completed transactions. There are no limits on the bid-ask spreads or commissions of market participants. The BSP may participate in the domestic interbank foreign exchange market directly and/or via market makers.
Over the counter	Yes.	Commercial banks may deal over the counter after the close of official trading at 4:00 p.m. These transactions, along with transactions involving institutions that are not members of the BAP, are not included in the BAP statistics for the day.
Brokerage	Yes.	Commercial banks may deal via brokers but must enter such transactions through the electronic platform provided by Bloomberg. At present, there are four foreign exchange brokers: Tullett Prebon (Philippines), Inc., GFI Group Philippines Inc., Tradition Financial Services Philippines, Inc., and Amstel Philippines Inc.
Market making	Yes.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Universal banks, commercial banks, and other banks with limited user authority may engage in foreign exchange forwards with counterparties and customers if the latter are hedging market risks or covering funding requirements. TBs with existing authority to issue foreign LCs and pay, accept, and negotiate import and export drafts and bills of exchange are allowed to apply for Type 2 derivatives authority to operate as a dealer, broker, and end-user of deliverable foreign exchange forwards, subject to certain conditions. Forward transactions involving the sale of foreign exchange to nonresidents without full delivery of principal no longer require BSP approval. The BSP participates in the swap market for its monetary and exchange rate operations. Data on currency swaps settled in local and foreign currencies and non-deliverable foreign exchange forwards (NDFs) settled in domestic currency are reported monthly in Sections II and IV, respectively, of the Data Template on International Reserves and Foreign Currency Liquidity, which is posted on the BSP website.

The BSP's derivatives framework allows supervised financial institutions to offer or engage in non-complex derivatives activities without prior BSP approval. These activities are called generally authorized derivatives activities (GADA). BSP-Supervised Financial Institutions (BSFIs), however, are expected to undergo the licensing process prior to offering or engaging in more complex derivatives instruments. The amendments to the derivatives regulations under BSP Circular No. 1119 (Amendments to Derivatives Regulations of Banks, Quasi-Banks, and Trust Corporations) involve:
(1) Removing the tenor limits on instruments currently classified as GADA of U/KBs;
(2) Including NDFs as GADA under a dealer capacity for U/KBs as opposed to requiring at least a Type 2 limited dealer authority, while maintaining (a) the existing regulatory limit anchored on capital to prevent the buildup of systemic risks and (b) the applicable documentary, reporting, and other requirements under the Foreign Exchange Manual;
(3) Aligning the derivatives authorities of trust corporations with trust departments of U/KBs, and allowing trust departments of U/KBs, quasi-banks, and nonbank financial institutions (NBFIs) to transact as institutional counterparties on behalf of their trustor/principal/s in: (a) any financial derivatives instrument for hedging purposes; (b) deliverable foreign exchange forwards, foreign exchange swaps and currency swaps; (c) products being offered by U/KBs as dealers as GADA (on notification to the BSP); and (d) specific structured products and credit-linked notes; and
(4) Streamlining the licensing process by subjecting variants of and structures involving stand-alone derivatives products that are under a BSFI's existing authority to notification and pre-qualification requirements (that is, will form part of type "C" activities) instead of another licensing process (that is, reserved for type "A" applications).

Transactions in capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Transactions in capital and money market instruments are subject to the PHP 50,000 limit on cross-border transfer of local currency under domestic regulations. Amounts in excess of the PHP 50,000 limit must require prior written authorization from the BSP. The BSP, however, allows cross-border transfer of local currency in excess of the limit only for the following purposes: (1) testing/calibration/configuration of money counting/sorting machines; (2) numismatics (collection of currency); and (3) currency awareness.
Transactions in derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Customers may hedge their market risks arising from foreign exchange obligations and/or exposures through foreign exchange forwards (deliverable and non-deliverable) and foreign exchange swaps with Authorized Agent Banks (AABs), provided the underlying transaction is eligible for servicing using foreign exchange resources of AABs or AAB foreign exchange corporations. All NDF contracts by banks with residents must be settled in Philippine pesos. The nature of this control may be classified as prescription on the eligible underlying transaction since the allowability to avail foreign exchange forwards is subject to the eligibility of the underlying transaction.
Credit operations	Yes.	Banks may extend peso financing to nonresidents to fund the following: (1) Without prior BSP approval – specific cases allowed under the Manual of Regulations for Banks (MORB); or (2) Subject to prior BSP approval – for use in projects/programs/purposes that are: (a) not covered by Item (1) above; and (b) legitimate and not contrary to laws, regulations, public order, public health, public safety, or public policy. Offshore issuances by nonresidents of peso-denominated bonds/notes and similar debt instruments (whether to be settled in foreign or local currency) must be registered with the BSP to be eligible for servicing

The transaction must comply with the rules on cross-border transfer of Philippine currency as well as pertinent rules and regulations of other government agencies/entities.
Use of foreign exchange among residents	Yes.	There are no restrictions on the use of foreign exchange among residents, provided the sale of foreign exchange by AAB/AAB-foreign exchage corporations is: (1) supported by documentation (regardless of amount involved); and (2) will fund eligible resident-to-resident transactions. Residents may also purchase any amount of foreign exchange from FXDs and MCs, subject to the following documentary requirements: (1) application to sell/purchase foreign currency; and (2) supporting documents for purchase of foreign exchange if the amount exceeds US$10,000 for non-trade current account purposes or for all other purposes, regardless of the amount involved. FXDs/MCs must only be allowed to sell foreign currencies in an amount not exceeding US$10,000 or its equivalent a transaction, and not exceeding US$50,000 or its equivalent a month a customer. Exemption or higher limits may be granted by the appropriate department of the BSP Financial Supervision Sector (FSS) if justified by the business model of the MC/FXD. FXDs'/MCs' pay-outs of more than PHP 500,000 or its foreign currency equivalent in any single transaction with customers or counterparties must only be made via check payment or direct credit to deposit accounts.

Foreign loans and investments approved by, registered with, or reported to the BSP (as applicable) may be serviced using foreign exchange purchased from AABs, AAB-foreign exchange corporations, and BSP-registered FXDs and MCs, subject to documentary requirements.
Repatriation requirements	No.
Surrender requirements	No.
Surrender to the central bank	No.
Surrender to authorized dealers	No.
Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.	Securities sold by banks or NBFIs without recourse or subject of quasi-banking activities are required to be delivered to the purchaser's/lender's designated BSP-accredited custodian or the other options available for delivery of securities involving local purchases from banks or NBFIs under BSP supervision which were expanded to include Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC)-authorized central securities depositories. The BSP approved the amendments to the regulations on securities custodianship and securities registry operations under Circular No. 1121, which aim to simplify the licensing process and expand both the client base and the number of financial institutions offering said services. The new rules aim to attract more players in the industry while ensuring that only BSFIs with robust risk management and governance systems as well as appropriate information technology infrastructure will offer securities custodianship and securities registry services. It will also complement the existing initiatives to expand investment opportunities for the public and at same time ensure that their interests are adequately protected.

On capital market securities	Yes.	As a general rule, no securities may be sold or offered for sale to the public within the country, unless such securities have been registered with and are permitted to be sold by the SEC.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	If at least one of the parties in a securities transaction is a bank or a NBFI under BSP supervision, securities purchased must be held by a BSP-accredited securities custodian or registry or SEC-authorized central securities depository that is a third party – that is, with no subsidiary or affiliate relationship with the issuer or seller of the securities. However, if the purchaser is a nonresident who is a party to an existing global custody agreement governed by foreign laws and conventions under which the bank or NBFI is designated as custodian or subcustodian, the requirement for a third-party BSP-accredited custodian or SEC-registered central securities depository does not apply. The BSP approved the amendments to the regulations on securities custodianship and securities registry operations under Circular No. 1121, which aim to simplify the licensing process and expand both the client base and the number of financial institutions offering said services. The rules aim to attract more players in the industry while ensuring that only BSFIs with robust risk management and governance systems as well as appropriate information technology infrastructure will offer securities custodianship and securities registry services. It also complements the existing initiatives to expand investment opportunities for the public and at same time ensure that their interests are adequately protected. Domestic purchases of equities by nonresidents are subject to applicable foreign equity limitations for selected entities/industries/sectors pursuant to applicable laws, rules, and regulations (for example, the “Regular Foreign Investment Negative List”). Registration of inward investments with the BSP or registering banks (on behalf of the BSP) is at the option of nonresident investors. It is required only if the foreign exchange needed to fund the repatriation of capital and the remittance of related earnings which accrue thereon will be purchased from AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. The BSP (or the registering banks, on behalf of BSP) will issue a BSRD evidencing the registration of inward investments. Effective May 9, 2023, the BSP adopted as permanent policy under Circular No. 1171 dated March 29, 2023, the majority of the operational relief measures for foreign exchange transactions initially introduced in response to the COVID-19 pandemic under Circular No. 1080 dated March 27, 2020. These measures include, among others, the lifting of the applicable processing fee for applications/requests for various foreign exchange transactions.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	The shares or securities issued or sold by nonresidents are subject to the same SEC approval and registration requirements as those issued by local companies. Payment for redemption of such shares or securities must not, however, involve the purchase of foreign exchange from AABs and/AAB-foreign exchange corporations. Foreign firms whose securities are listed and traded on a local stock exchange must designate a transfer agent and registrar in the Philippines. Residents may invest in any instrument requiring settlement in foreign exchange without prior BSP approval if funded by: (1) their own foreign exchange deposited in their foreign currency deposit account (whether onshore or offshore); and/or (2) foreign exchange purchased from sources other than AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. Further, residents may freely purchase up to US$60 million or its equivalent in foreign currency (per investor per year or per fund per year) from the banking system for outward investment in foreign-currency-denominated instruments issued by nonresidents, subject to documentation. Residents may purchase foreign exchange in excess of the US$60 million annual threshold without prior BSP approval, subject to 15-banking day prior notification to the BSP and documentation. Nonresident issuances of notes/bonds or similar instruments in the domestic market must require BSP approval before execution.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents may invest in any instrument requiring settlement in foreign exchange without prior BSP approval if funded by: (1) their own foreign exchange deposited in their foreign currency deposit account (whether onshore or offshore); and/or (2) foreign exchange purchased from sources other than AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. Further, residents may freely purchase up to US$60 million or its equivalent in foreign currency (per investor per year or per fund per year) from the banking system for outward investment in foreign-currency-denominated instruments issued by nonresidents, subject to documentation. Residents may purchase foreign exchange in excess of the US$60 million annual threshold without prior BSP approval, subject to 15-banking day prior notification to the BSP and documentation. Residents may also purchase foreign exchange from FXDs and MCs for outward investments, regardless of the amount, subject to documentation. Banks' investments in subsidiaries and affiliates abroad are subject to BSP approval.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Private sector foreign loans/borrowings may be freely obtained, provided there is no guarantee from the government sector. Public sector/publicly-guaranteed foreign/foreign currency loans/borrowings require prior BSP approval. Private sector foreign loans/borrowings must be registered with the BSP if these will ultimately be serviced with foreign exchange resources of AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. Banks that wish to issue unsecured subordinated debt must secure the approval of the BSP.

These measures include, among others, the lifting of the applicable processing fee for applications/requests for various foreign exchange transactions.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	Yes.	Derivatives are considered securities under the Securities Regulation Code and are being administered by the SEC. Banks may engage in GADA without BSP approval, provided they follow the risk management guidelines for derivatives transactions and comply with laws, rules, and regulations for this activity. BSP approval is required for banks to engage in all financial derivatives activities not expressly classified as "generally authorized." Since February 5, 2008, U/KBs may act as dealer of forward foreign exchange contracts, subject to BSP licensing requirements and compliance with sales and marketing guidelines. On the other hand, all banks may apply for limited user (to transact as end-user) or special broker (to facilitate transactions) authority for forward foreign exchange transactions, subject to BSP regulations. Since February 5, 2008, universal banks, commercial banks, and other banks with limited user derivatives authority may engage only in foreign exchange forwards and swap transactions with other banks and nonresidents if the latter are hedging market risk or covering funding requirements. Foreign exchange regulations and documentary requirements for derivatives apply. TBs authorized to issue foreign LCs and pay, accept, and negotiate import and export drafts and bills of exchange may apply for Type 2 derivatives authority to be a dealer, broker, and end-user of deliverable foreign exchange forwards, subject to certain conditions. The total notional amount of banks' NDFs involving Philippine pesos is limited to 20% and 100%, respectively, of the capital of domestic banks and local branches of foreign banks. AML laws, rules, and regulations; relevant SEC rules; foreign exchange regulations; and documentary requirements for derivatives also apply. The BSP's derivatives framework allows supervised financial institutions to offer or engage in non-complex derivatives activities without prior BSP approval. These activities are called GADA. BSFIs, however, are expected to undergo the licensing process prior to offering or engaging in more complex derivatives instruments. The amendments to the derivatives regulations under BSP Circular No. 1119 (Amendments to Derivatives Regulations of Banks, Quasi-Banks, and Trust Corporations) involve: (1) Removing the 3-year tenor limits on instruments currently classified as GADA of U/KBs; (2) Including NDFs as GADA under a dealer capacity for U/KBs as opposed to requiring at least a Type 2 limited dealer authority, while maintaining (a) the existing regulatory limit anchored on capital to prevent the buildup of systemic risks and (b) the applicable documentary, reporting and other requirements under the Foreign Exchange Manual; (3) Aligning the derivatives authorities of trust corporations with trust departments of U/KBs, and allowing trust departments of U/KBs, quasi-banks, and NBFIs to transact as institutional counterparties on behalf of their trustor/principal/s in: (a) any financial derivatives instrument for hedging purposes; (b) deliverable foreign exchange forwards, foreign exchange swaps and currency swaps; (c) products being offered by U/KBs as dealers as GADA (on notification to the BSP); and (d) specific structured products and credit-linked notes and (4) Streamlining the licensing process by subjecting variants of and structures involving stand-alone derivatives products that are under a BSFI's existing authority to notification and pre-qualification requirements (that is, will form part of type "C" activities) instead of another licensing process (that is, reserved for type "A" applications). BSP Circular No. 1154, on October 8, 2022, expanded the coverage of regulations to include digital banks. Digital banks may offer and engage in GADA and other derivatives instruments in the same authority/activities as allowed for a TB, rural bank (RB)/Coop Bank.

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Since February 5, 2008, U/KBs may act as dealer of forward foreign exchange contracts, subject to BSP licensing requirements and compliance with sales and marketing guidelines. Nonresidents may, through foreign exchange forwards, hedge their market risks arising from foreign exchange obligations and/or exposures; Provided, that forward sale of foreign exchange may only be used when the underlying transaction (for example, BSP-registered investments) is eligible for servicing using foreign exchange resources of AABs or AAB foreign exchange corporations. Nonresidents may, likewise, cover their funding requirements through foreign exchange swaps.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	No securities may be sold or offered for sale to the public within the country, unless such securities have been registered with and are permitted to be sold by the SEC. Derivatives fall under the definition of securities. Since February 5, 2008, U/KBs may act as dealer of forward foreign exchange contracts, subject to BSP licensing requirements and compliance with sales and marketing guidelines. On the other hand, all banks may apply for limited user (to transact as end-user) or special broker (to facilitate transactions) authority for forward foreign exchange transactions subject to BSP regulations. Nonresidents' derivatives transactions involving local currency require BSP approval.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Foreign exchange contracts that do not involve local currency are unrestricted. Contracts involving local currency are subject to restrictions on the importation and exportation of local currency. Banks that wish to engage in derivatives transactions not considered generally authorized are required to secure license from the BSP.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	Foreign exchange contracts that do not involve local currency are unrestricted. Contracts involving local currency are subject to restrictions on the importation and exportation of local currency. Banks that wish to engage in derivatives transactions not considered generally authorized are required to secure license from the BSP.
Controls on credit operations	Yes.	R.A. No. 3765, the Truth in Lending Act, requires the disclosure of finance charges in connection with extensions of credit.
Commercial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may be freely undertaken, provided they do not involve foreign exchange purchased from AABs and/or AAB-foreign exchange corporations. Banks may extend peso financing to nonresidents to fund the following:

		(1) Without prior BSP approval – specific cases allowed under the MORB; or (2) Subject to prior BSP approval – for use in projects/programs/purposes that are: (a) not covered by Item (1) above and (b) legitimate and not contrary to laws, regulations, public order, public health, public safety, or public policy.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Private sector foreign loans/borrowings may be freely obtained, provided there is no guarantee from the government sector. Public sector/publicly-guaranteed foreign/foreign currency loans/borrowings require prior BSP approval. Private sector foreign loans/borrowings must be registered with the BSP if these will ultimately be serviced with foreign exchange resources of AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. Effective May 9, 2023, the BSP adopted as permanent policy under Circular No. 1171 dated March 29, 2023, the majority of the operational relief measures for foreign exchange transactions initially introduced in response to the COVID-19 pandemic under Circular No. 1080 dated March 27, 2020. These measures include, among others, the lifting of the applicable processing fee for applications/requests for various foreign exchange transactions.
Financial credits	Yes.	Loans by nonresidents from EFCDUs, regardless of maturity, do not require BSP approval, provided: (1) they are not guaranteed by the government sector; (2) they are serviced with foreign exchange purchased outside AABs and/or AAB-foreign exchange corporations; and (3) relevant banking regulations are followed, including the single borrower limit.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	These transactions may be freely undertaken if they do not involve foreign exchange purchased from AABs and/or AAB-foreign exchange corporations.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Private sector foreign loans/borrowings may be freely obtained, provided there is no guarantee from the government sector. Guarantees, sureties, and financial backup facilities	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Guarantees for public sector accounts or similar arrangements that may give rise to actual foreign obligation of the public sector to nonresidents, and those issued by government-owned and government-controlled corporations [excluding public sector banks and NBFIs with quasi-banking functions (NBQBs)] in favor of nonresidents require BSP approval. Guarantees issued by resident banks (including public sector banks) and NBQBs that cover foreign obligations for account of nonresidents /private sector residents (for example, payment guarantees and guarantees to secure foreign obligations of private sector residents which do not partake the nature of a foreign loan must neither require prior BSP approval nor registration, but must be reported to the BSP to be eligible for servicing using foreign exchange to be purchased from AABs and/or AAB-foreign exchange corporations.

To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Guarantees that are related to foreign/foreign currency loans/borrowings that require BSP approval/registration must already form part of the loan terms submitted for BSP approval/registration (as applicable). In case of a call on such guarantee: (1) The borrower/guarantor must submit a written notification to the BSP prior to target date of settlement of the call on the guarantee to allow servicing using foreign exchange resources of AABs/AAB-foreign exchange corporations and (2) the borrower must comply with pertinent rules covering the underlying obligation (including reportorial requirements). Guarantees by nonresident banks and financial institutions as well as other nonresident entities to cover private sector peso loans/foreign currency loans from banks operating in the Philippines and NBFIs with quasi-banking functions must neither require prior BSP approval nor registration, but must be reported to the BSP to be eligible for servicing with foreign exchange to be purchased from AABs and/or and AAB-foreign exchange corporations.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Residents may invest in any instrument requiring settlement in foreign exchange without prior BSP approval if funded by: (i) their own foreign exchange deposited in their foreign currency deposit account (whether onshore or offshore); and/or (ii) foreign exchange purchased from sources other than AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. Further, residents may freely purchase up to US$60 million or its equivalent in foreign currency (per investor per year or per fund per year) from the banking system for outward investment in foreign-currency-denominated instruments issued by nonresidents, subject to documentation. Residents may purchase foreign exchange in excess of the US$60 million annual threshold without prior BSP approval, subject to 15-banking day prior notification to the BSP and documentation. Residents may also purchase foreign exchange from FXDs and MCs for outward investment, including investment in bonds and notes of the Philippines and other Philippine entities requiring settlement in foreign currency, regardless of the amount, provided such purchases are supported by documentation.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Investments must comply with all applicable laws, rules and regulations (for example, foreign equity restrictions on certain investment areas or activities), including those issued by the BSP (for example, prohibition against nonresident investments, whether directly or indirectly, in the BSP term deposit facility). Foreign inward investments registered with the BSP may be serviced using foreign exchange purchased from AABs, AAB-foreign exchange corporations, and BSP-registered FXDs and MCs, subject to documentary requirements. Inward FDIs may be registered with BSP. A BSP Registration Document (BSRD) will be issued by the BSP as evidence of the investment. For the purpose of registration, Foreign exchange funding for cash investments must be remitted to the Philippines but need not be converted to pesos, except for the cases cited in Section 36.3 of the Foreign Exchange Manual. Foreign investments need not be registered with the BSP, unless the foreign exchange needed to service repatriation of capital and remittance of dividends, profits, and earnings is purchased from AABs or and AAB-foreign exchange corporations. Foreign exchange may be purchased from AABs and AAB-foreign exchange corporations for outward remittance for the equivalent of the peso sales/divestment proceeds (including dividends, profits, and earnings) of BSP-registered foreign investments in accordance with prescribed procedures and supported by prescribed documents. Registering banks for foreign investments may sell for outward remittance the equivalent foreign exchange of excess pesos funded with inward remittance of foreign exchange as follows: peso proceeds of foreign exchange inwardly remitted minus the peso amount actually used for BSP-registered investments; and interest earned on the excess pesos, subject to certain conditions. Effective May 9, 2023, the BSP adopted as permanent policy under Circular No. 1171 dated March 29, 2023, the majority of the operational relief measures for foreign exchange transactions initially introduced in response to the COVID-19 pandemic under Circular No. 1080 dated March 27, 2020. These measures include, among others, the lifting of the applicable processing fee for applications/requests for various foreign exchange transactions.

Controls on liquidation of direct investment	No.	Registration is required only if the foreign exchange for capital repatriation and remittance of profits and earnings will be purchased from AABs and/or and AAB-foreign exchange corporations.
Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	Residents may invest in any instrument, including real estate, requiring settlement in foreign exchange without prior BSP approval if funded by: (1) their own foreign exchange deposited in their foreign currency deposit account (whether onshore or offshore); and/or (2) foreign exchange purchased from sources other than AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. Further, residents may freely purchase up to US$60 million or its equivalent in foreign currency (per investor per year or per fund per year) from the banking system for outward investment in foreign-currency-denominated instruments, including real estate, issued by nonresidents, subject to documentation. Residents may purchase foreign exchange in excess of the US$60 million annual threshold without prior BSP approval, subject to 15-banking day prior notification to the BSP and documentation.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Purchases are subject to constitutional and legal limits. Under the Philippine Constitution, foreign nationals and foreign companies are not allowed to directly own land. Ownership of private lands in the Philippines is reserved for Philippine citizens and corporations that are considered Philippine nationals. The Philippine Foreign Investment Act allows foreign nationals and companies to indirectly own land by acquiring up to 40% ownership of a corporation that is considered a Philippine national, that is qualified to own land (corporations that are considered Philippine nationals are those corporations or partnerships with at least 60% of the capital stock outstanding owned by Filipinos). Foreign nationals and foreign companies may also acquire condominium units and shares in condominium corporations up to not more than 40% of the total and outstanding capital stock of a Filipino-owned or controlled condominium corporation, subject to the rules under the Condominium Act of the Philippines.

Sale locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents are not allowed to own private lands in the Philippines and thus cannot sell them the same locally. The Philippine Condominium Act provides that each condominium owner also has the absolute right to sell or dispose of his condominium, unless the master deed contains a requirement that the property be first offered to the condominium owners within a reasonable period of time before the same is offered to outside parties.
Controls on personal capital transactions	Yes.
Loans	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Loans are permitted, provided foreign exchange is not purchased from AABs and/or and AAB-foreign exchange corporations. Banks may extend peso financing to nonresidents to fund the following: (1) Without prior BSP approval – specific cases allowed under the MORB; or (2) Subject to prior BSP approval – for use in projects/programs/purposes that are: (a) not covered by Item (1) above and (b) legitimate and not contrary to laws, regulations, public order, public health, public safety, or public policy. In reference to Item (1) above, banks are allowed to extend peso consumer loans to Overseas Filipino Workers, embassy officials and employees, and foreign nationals holding valid visas issued by relevant Philippine authorities (subject to conditions) without prior BSP approval.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Banks that wish to issue unsecured subordinated debt must secure the approval of the BSP. Private sector foreign loans/borrowings may be freely obtained, provided there is no guarantee from the government sector. Public sector/publicly-guaranteed foreign/foreign currency loans/borrowings require prior BSP approval. Private sector foreign loans/borrowings must be registered with the BSP if these will ultimately be serviced with foreign exchange resources of AABs/AAB foreign exchange corporations. Effective May 9, 2023, the BSP adopted as permanent policy under Circular No. 1171 dated March 29, 2023, the majority of the operational relief measures for foreign exchange transactions initially introduced in response to the COVID-19 pandemic under Circular No. 1080 dated March 27, 2020. These measures include, among others, the lifting of the applicable processing fee for applications/requests for various foreign exchange transactions.

Transfer of gambling and prize earnings	Yes.	Transfers are subject to appropriate supporting documents. The use of domestic currency for international payments and receipts is generally allowed. It is understood, however, that such transactions must still be subject to the limit of PHP50,000 on cross-border transfer of domestic currency. For amounts exceeding PHP 50,000, residents and nonresidents must: (1) obtain prior written authorization from the BSP; and (2) in case of physical cross-border transfer of Philippine currency, declaration of the whole amount taken out of the Philippines using the prescribed Currencies Declaration Form. Said form may also be accomplished online. The BSP, however, allows cross-border transfer of local currency in excess of the limit only for the following purposes: (1) testing/calibration/configuration of money counting/sorting machines; (2) numismatics (collection of currency); and (3) currency awareness.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	Banks with foreign exchange trading corporations as subsidiaries or affiliates must make available daily the names of counterparties and other details of purchases and sales of foreign exchange. Banks authorized to operate an FCDU may engage in the following in any acceptable currency: (1) accept deposits and trust accounts from residents and nonresidents; (2) deposit funds, regardless of maturity, at foreign banks abroad, OBUs, and other FCDUs/EFCDUs; (3) invest in readily marketable foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments; (4) grant short-term foreign currency loans as allowed by BSP regulations; (5) borrow at any maturity from EFCDUs, foreign banks abroad, and OBUs and short term from other FCDUs; (6) engage in foreign currency–foreign currency swaps with the BSP, OBUs, and other FCDUs/EFCDUs; (7) engage in securities lending activities as a lender, subject to certain conditions; (8) engage in repo agreements involving foreign-currency-denominated government securities; (9) purchase foreign-currency-denominated government securities under resale agreements from other banks' FCDUs/EFCDUs, nonresident financial institutions, and OBUs; (10) issue hybrid Tier 1 capital instruments; (11) engage in US-dollar-denominated repo agreements with the BSP; and (12) invest in foreign-currency-denominated structured products issued by banks and special-purpose vehicles of high credit quality. In addition, banks authorized to operate EFCDUs may engage in the following: (1) invest in foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments; (2) grant foreign currency loans as allowed by the BSP; (3) borrow from other FCDUs/EFCDUs and from nonresidents and OBUs, as permitted by foreign borrowing rules; (4) engage in foreign currency–foreign currency swaps; (5) engage in foreign exchange trading and, with BSP approval, in financial futures and options trading; (6) on request/instructions of a foreign correspondent bank, issue LCs for a nonresident importer in favor of a nonresident exporter, and pay, accept, or negotiate drafts/bills of exchange under the LC; and (7) engage in direct purchases of export bills of resident exporters. Meanwhile, pursuant to BSP Circular No. 1134, Universal banks, Commercial banks and Islamic banks may operate an EFCDU, while TBs and digital banks may operate an FCDU subject to bank notification to BSP (Type C license). Rural banks and cooperative banks may operate an FCDU subject to BSP approval of bank application (Type A license). The said banks should also comply with the prudential criteria, the pre-qualification requirements for the corresponding license type under Section 111 and Appendix 5 of the MORB and other documentary requirements as provided in the said Circular.

Borrowing abroad	Yes.	Banks' foreign borrowing is subject to the MORB, as well as other applicable laws, rules, and regulations. EFCDUs may borrow from nonresidents and OBUs, subject to existing rules on foreign borrowing. FCDUs of thrift, rural, and cooperative banks may borrow from foreign banks abroad and OBUs, regardless of maturity and from other FCDUs, on short-term maturity. Banks' foreign borrowing exceeding one year and intended for relending does not require BSP approval. Banks that wish to issue unsecured unsubordinated debt abroad must secure the approval of the BSP.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.	Banks may generally have accounts with foreign banks abroad and OBUs, except for peso-denominated accounts.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	Banks may grant commercial credit to nonresidents, provided foreign exchange is not purchased from AABs and/or AAB-foreign exchange corporations to service the loan. As of January 15, 2018, per Circular No. 984 dated December 22, 2017, AABs may extend peso financing to nonresidents to fund the following: (1) Without prior BSP approval – specific cases allowed under the MORB; or (2) Subject to prior BSP approval – for use in projects/programs/purposes that are: (a) not covered by Item (1) above and (b) legitimate and not contrary to laws, regulations, public order, public health, public safety, or public policy.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Banks with EFCDU license of U/KBs are authorized to grant foreign currency loans as allowed by the BSP. Banks with FCDU license are authorized to grant only short-term foreign currency loans. Regular Banking Units (RBUs) of universal, commercial, and TBs may engage in trade-related loan transactions, subject to the regulations on trade transactions. FCDU or EFCDU of banks may lend to the RBU only for trade purposes. The amount of FCDU/EFCDU loans to RBU should not exceed the lower of the total outstanding amount of RBU on-balance foreign currency trade assets or 30% of the E/FCDU deposit liabilities. Moreover, tenor of the FCDU or EFCDU loans to the RBU should not exceed one year. Under BSP Circular No. 1134, effective January 17, 2022, FCDU or EFCDU of a bank may lend to the RBU (for trade or non-trade purpose), provided the conditions under Circular No. 1134 are complied with such as the following: (1) interest income may not be charged by the E/FCDU on the lending transaction; (2) the balance of E/FCDU loan to RBU should be settled on gross basis by the way of actual transfer of foreign currency assets from the RBU books to the E/FCDU books; and (3) no gain or loss should be recorded on the transfer of foreign currency assets from the RBU to the E/FCDU representing settlement of E/FCDU loans to RBU.
Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	Yes.	EFCDUs of U/KBs may invest in foreign-currency-denominated securities, regardless of maturity. However, FCDUs of TBs or rural and cooperative banks may invest only in foreign-currency-denominated debt instruments that are readily marketable. RBUs of banks may generally invest in locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange, subject to regulations, particularly on risk management.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.

Reserve requirements	Yes.	There is no reserve requirement for deposit accounts in foreign exchange. However, banks are required to have 100% asset cover on foreign currency deposits and the requirement of maintaining 30% of asset cover in the form of liquid assets was lifted. The liquidity and statutory reserve requirements for peso deposits and deposit substitute liabilities of U/KBs are unified into a single, combined reserve requirement of 16%, except for long-term negotiable CDs, which are subject to lower reserve requirement of 4%. Reserve requirements for bonds are 3% for U/KBs, TBs, and NBQBs. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of U/KBs were reduced from 14% to 12% since April 3, 2020. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of NBQBs were reduced from 14% to 12% since April 3, 2020. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of TBs were reduced from 4% to 3% since July 31, 2020. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of rural and cooperative banks were reduced from 3% to 2% since July 31, 2020. Effective October 14, 2022, reserve requirements against deposit and deposit substitutes liabilities of 8% and 3% for bonds for digital banks were added under BSP Circular No. 1154. The reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitute liabilities of digital banks were subsequently reduced from 8% to 6% effective June 30, 2023, as provided under BSP Circular Nos. 1175 and 1176. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitutes liabilities of U/KBs and NBQBs were reduced from 12% to 9.5% since June 30, 2023, as provided under BSP Circular Nos. 1175 and 1176. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitutes liabilities of TBs were reduced from 3% to 2% since June 30, 2023, as provided under BSP Circular No. 1175. Reserve requirements for deposit and deposit substitutes liabilities of RB/Coop Banks were reduced from 2% to 1% since June 30, 2023 as provided under BSP Circular No. 1175.
Liquid asset requirements	Yes.	Depository banks with FCDUs and EFCDUs must maintain at all times 100% asset cover for their foreign currency liabilities, except for US-dollar-denominated repo agreements with the BSP. From February 15, 2018, the requirement of at least 30% of the cover for these liabilities to be in liquid assets was lifted. From February 15, 2018, the requirement for EFCDUs of U/KBs, of at least 70% of the cover must be in the same currency as the deposit liability, and up to 30% in other acceptable foreign currencies was lifted. The requirement of FCDUs of TBs and rural and cooperative banks to maintain foreign currency cover in the same currency as the deposit liability was likewise lifted. Under the BSP framework on LCR, banks are expected to be able to meet their liquidity needs in each currency, although the framework only requires the LCR to be met and reported in a "single currency" (that is, in peso terms). Meanwhile, effective January 12, 2022, the amendments under BSP Circular No. 1134 include the recognition of the following eligible

Monetary policy framework

Inflation-targeting framework

Operating target (policy rate)

Policy rate	09/08/2023	The Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas (BSP) shifted to a variable-rate format with a pre-determined offer volume in the auction for the overnight (ON) reverse repurchase (RRP) facility. In executing this shift to a variable-rate auction format, two key changes have been implemented: The BSP's monetary policy rate shall be called the "Target RRP Rate". The BSP will signal its monetary policy stance through the Target RRP Rate. Similar to the prevailing practice, the Target RRP Rate shall be set after each meeting of the Monetary Board on the BSP's monetary policy stance, and the RRP facility remains the BSP's primary monetary policy instrument. The BSP will also be introducing a formal operational target, which will be called the "ON RRP Rate". An operational target is a market-determined, short-term interest rate that CBs can guide on a day-to-day basis using their monetary instruments to reflect the prevailing monetary policy stance. Previously, the BSP's primary monetary policy instrument was its ON RRP rate.

Imports and Import Payments

Import taxes and/or tariffs	02/20/2023	Through the Office of the President Executive Order No. 12 dated January 21, 2023, the rates of import duty on electric vehicles, parts, and components under Section 1611 of Republic Act No. 10863 (Customs Modernization and Tariff Act) are temporarily modified. Specifically, the MFN tariff rates on the articles of goods covered are reduced for a period of five years.
	06/02/2023	Through the Office of the President Executive Order No. 25 dated May 20, 2023, the Philippine schedule of tariff commitments under the Regional Comprehensive Economic Partnership Agreement is implemented and the rates of import duty on certain imported articles are modified accordingly.
	12/11/2023	Through the Office of the President Executive Order No. 46 dated November 11, 2023, the rate of import duty on natural gypsum and anhydrite under Section 1611 of Republic Act No. 10863 (Customs Modernization and Tariff Act) is temporarily modified. Specifically,

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Poland maintains certain exchange restrictions in accordance with EU regulations solely for the preservation of national and international security. These include the freezing of funds and economic resources of certain persons, entities, and groups. The EU's economic and financial sanctions are based on Article 215 of the Treaty on Functioning of the European Union and decisions adopted in the framework of the Common Foreign and Security Policy.

Floating
Free floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangement are free floating; the exchange rate of the zloty is determined on the basis of supply and demand in the foreign exchange market, and the zloty is traded freely against all currencies. Narodowy Bank Polski (NBP, National Bank of Poland), however, may intervene in the foreign exchange market if necessary to ensure domestic macroeconomic and financial stability. As in previous years, MOF exchanged foreign currencies in the CB and the state-owned development bank, Bank Gospodarstwa Krajowego (BGK). The procedures related to exchange of foreign currencies into zlotys by the MOF in the NBP have not changed. Every year, the MOF publishes on its website information on any transactions conducted by the MOF on the financial market. As regards NBP, it publishes general information about purchase of foreign currencies from the MOF and limits on foreign exchange transactions with MOF in Annual Reports of Banking Sector Liquidity and Monetary Policy Instruments of NBP. The NBP intervened in the foreign exchange market twice in the first half of 2022 (between March 1 and 2 and on March 4) because of the unprecedented volatility of the zloty after a Russian large-scale military invasion on Ukraine.
Official exchange rate	Yes.	Exchange rates are freely determined by the market. The NBP calculates and publishes daily rates for convertible currencies. Euro rates fixing is based on foreign exchange market rates as quoted on trading platforms between 10:55 and 11:00 a.m. local time (average foreign exchange market rates between specified periods of time). Exchange rates for other major currencies are calculated from cross-currency rates against the euro as quoted on trading platforms. The NBP daily rates are mainly used for statistical and accounting purposes. In general for accounting purposes, these rates are used to recalculate amounts and cash flow in foreign currency into zloty. The rates are also used by businesses to price foreign-exchange-denominated assets and liabilities as well as settlement rates for exchange-traded derivatives. As regards financial markets, the rates are used as the fixing price in the settlement of derivatives (options, etc.).

Monetary aggregate target
Inflation-targeting framework	Yes.	Monetary policy is based on flexible inflation targeting. Within this framework, the Monetary Policy Council (MPC) sets the inflation target and adjusts monetary instruments (predominantly the NBP policy interest rates) to keep headline inflation close to the target in the medium term. Since 2004, the NBP has pursued a medium-term inflation target of 2.5% with a symmetrical band of deviations of ±1 pp (percentage point). The medium-term orientation of the target does not involve any definition or guidance about the time-specific horizon of inflation returning to target in case of deviation. The NBP's inflation-targeting framework is laid down in Monetary Policy Guidelines, which – in line with the constitution of the Republic of Poland – are presented to the lower chamber of the Polish parliament (Sejm) on an annual basis. The constitution also imposes an obligation on the MPC to present a Report on Implementation of the Guidelines to Sejm each year. These are the main annual documents informing the public about the causes and nature of the shocks behind inflation target misses. The MPC, however, retains a large degree of discretion over the reaction to shocks. In addition, the implementation of the Monetary Policy Guidelines is assessed by the Polish Supreme Audit Office, also on an annual basis.

Target setting body	Yes.
Government
Central Bank	Yes.
Monetary Policy Committee	Yes.	According to the Polish Constitution, the NBP shall be responsible for the value of Polish currency. The Act on NBP states that "the basic objective of the activity of NBP shall be to maintain price stability, while supporting the economic policy of the Government, insofar as this does not constrain the pursuit of the basic objective of NBP." In line with the abovementioned legal guidelines, the numerical value of the inflation target was set by the MPC in "Monetary Policy Strategy beyond 2003" published in February 2003 . The target is confirmed each year in Monetary Policy Guidelines, published annually. Monetary policy decisions are taken by majority vote with the presence of at least five members of the MPC, including Chairperson (the Governor of the NBP), who has the deciding vote in case of a tie. Inflation target is set by the MPC which has the right to modify the target.

Target number	Yes.
Point target
Target with tolerance band	Yes.	Since 2004, the NBP has pursued a medium-term inflation target of 2.5% with a symmetrical band of deviations of ±1 pp.
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.
CPI	Yes.	Target measure refers to the annual change in the consumer price inflation. The consumer price inflation (the overall price index of consumer goods and services) is computed and published by the Statistics Poland (GUS – the Central Statistical Office of Poland). The target is set at 2.5% with a symmetric band for deviations of +/ −1 pp in the medium term. (Thus, it is a continuous target, not an end-year target.)
Core inflation

Target horizon	Yes.	The target horizon is medium term. The Council flexibly determines the time necessary for inflation to return to the target depending on the character of the shock, its persistence, and the overall assessment of risks posed by the shock to both price stability and broadly understood macroeconomic stability in the medium term.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The key instrument of monetary policy is the NBP interest rates. The NBP reference rate determines the yield obtainable on the NBP main open market operations, while at the same time affecting the level of short-term market interest rates, in particular unsecured interbank deposits. The NBP lombard rate determines the interest on the lombard credit offered by NBP, allowing to obtain funds from the CB on an overnight basis. The NBP deposit rate determines the interest rate on deposits, allowing to deposit funds with NBP on an overnight basis. Both of the above-mentioned NBP rates define the width of the so-called NBP interest rate corridor, which sets the band for the movements of the overnight rate determined in the interbank market
Target corridor band	Yes.	The NBP started the process of increasing the NBP reference rates on October 7, 2021, when the main reference rate was set at 0.50%, the deposit rate at 0.00%, and the lombard rate at 1.00%. From this moment, the NBP interest rate corridor defined by the deposit rate and the lombard rate was symmetric to the reference rate (-0.50 pp/ +0.50 pp). The process was continued, and the MPC raised the rates eleven times in a row. Since September 8, 2022, till September 6, 2023 the deposit rate has been standing at 6.25%, the lombard rate at 7.25% and the reference rate at 6.75%. Effective September 7, 2023, MPC decreased interest rates by 0.75 pp to the levels: reference rate at 6.00%, deposit rate at 5.50%, and lombard rate at 6.50%. Effective October 4, 2023, MPC further decreased interest rates by 0.25 pp to the levels: reference rate at 5.75%, deposit rate at 5.25%, and lombard rate at 6.25%. The deposit rate and the lombard rate set the fluctuation band for overnight interest rates in the interbank market, which is symmetric with respect to the reference rate.

Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	Once a year, the Governor of the NBP attends the parliamentary hearing to present the NBP's Annual Report.
Other	Yes.	The key communication instruments include the cyclical publications: Information from the meeting of the MPC (with the accompanying press conferences, which usually take place on the day following each MPC decision-making meeting), Minutes of the MPC decision-making meetings, and Inflation Reports. Once a year, the NBP also publishes its Annual Report, Report on Monetary Policy Implementation, Monetary Policy Guidelines, and Banking Sector Liquidity – Monetary Policy Instruments of NBP.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	Yes.	Pursuant to the decision of the MPC, the NBP publishes on its website the motions relating to interest rates, together with a breakdown of votes cast by individual MPC members. The rules for publishing are as follows: If the motion was not passed – after the lapse of 6 weeks from the date of voting, at 14.00 hours; if the resolution on interest rates was adopted – after the results of voting on the resolution have been published in Monitor Sądowy i Gospodarczy (Court and Commercial Gazette). If, in addition to adopting a resolution on interest rates, other motions were voted at the MPC meeting which did not receive a majority vote, the results of voting on such motions are posted on the NBP website after the announcement of voting results on the adopted resolution in the Court and Commercial Gazette.

Publication of minutes	Yes.	Minutes of the previous decision-making meeting are approved on the next decision-making meeting and published 2 days later. Content of the Minutes: main issues discussed by the MPC and arguments raised during the discussion; the decision on monetary policy instruments, including interest rates; no individual views (no names of individual MPC members). Minutes are approximately 3–4 pages long.
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	NBP projections are prepared three times a year and published in March, July, and November Inflation Reports. In addition to the publication of the Inflation Report, a separate press conference is held to present current projections. The press conference – together with the accompanying presentation – is available on the NBP website. The projection covers economic developments up to three years ahead from the publication date.

Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Banks may freely determine their exchange rates and foreign exchange commissions in transactions with their clients.
Spot exchange market	Yes.	Banks may deal in foreign exchange without a separate license. As of June 30, 2023, there are also 4572 foreign exchange offices (kantors) allowed to provide foreign exchange services to the public; kantors do not need a special permit but must be registered in the register of kantors. Kantors do not conclude foreign exchange transactions with the NBP. They may conclude transactions with other banks, cantors, and retail customers. Their operations are limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; they may not make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. In their business activity, they may not maintain accounts abroad. Foreign exchange offices may not provide payment services as defined in Directive 2015/2366 on payment services (money transfers).

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Residents may hold gold in any form. Trading in gold, other than in jewelry form, is a regulated economic activity and requires registration with the President of the NBP.
On external trade	Yes.	The exportation of foreign gold (gold coins) is subject to declaration procedures (written declaration at the border).
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	On June 3, 2021, Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672 of the European Parliament and of the Council of October 23, 2018, on controls on cash entering or leaving the Union entered into force and repealed Regulation (EC) No. 1889/2005. In accordance with Regulation (EU) No. 2018/1672, cash controls have been implemented based on a mandatory declaration system for amounts of cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying cash of a value of €10,000 or more are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information. The national FIU has direct access to CIS+ Cash module in automated fingerprint identification system (AFIS), where all the cash declarations and cash disclosure declarations are introduced at the border and kept. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, the person is subject to a fine for tax offense pursuant to Article 106f or 106h of the Act of September 10, 1999, Penal Fiscal Code (Journal of Laws of 2020, Item 19); there is a possibility of retaining undeclared cash as part of activities carried out under the procedure of Article 308 of the Code of Criminal Procedure and then handing it over to the Public Prosecutor's Office. The regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the regulation; the regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders.

Held abroad	Yes.	Residents (individuals and enterprises) are allowed to maintain accounts in the member countries of the EU, EEA, and OECD without permission. Accounts in other countries may be maintained only for settlements with nonresidents. Controls apply to deposits of funds with nonresident institutions by a privately managed occupational pension fund. The allocation of assets of insurance companies is not subject to limits but must remain consistent with prudent person principle specified in Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity which is based on the Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II) and prudent person principle is provided in Article 132 of this directive. The main principles are: (1) With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. (2) All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. (3) Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. The limit on open pension funds' investments in assets denominated Acquisition of shares representing defined substantial block of shares in public companies with sales revenue in one from two recent years at level of 10,000,000 EUR should be notified to President of Office of Competition and Consumer Protection. President of Office of Competition and Consumer Protection is entitled to issue a decision authorizing the purchase or refusing the purchase. Information must be provided to the Polish Financial Supervision Authority (KNF), to the issuer, and to the public if certain thresholds in voting power or stock purchase are exceeded.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Under the EU uniform rule, public offerings of securities in Poland generally require approval of a prospectus by the competent authority of the issuer's EU home member state (in general EU country of issuer's incorporation). Only in case of public offers with small value and/or addressed to certain investors (for example, qualified investors or limited number of individual investors), there is no obligation to publish a prospectus and a lighter information document is required. In case of issuer from a member state other than Poland, if a public offering or admission to trading on a regulated market takes place in Poland as a host member state, the prospectus approved by the supervision authority of a home member state is valid (prospectus passporting), provided European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA) and the KNF receive appropriate notification and the prospectus is drawn up either in a language accepted by the KNF or in a language customary in international finance. In case the issuer's country of incorporation is not an EU country, prospectus must be approved by the KNF.

The allocation of assets of insurance companies is not subject to limits but must remain consistent with prudent person principle specified in Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity which is based on the Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September 11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This Act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II), and prudent person principle is provided in Article 132 of this directive. The main principles are: (1) With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. (2) All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. (3) Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective open pension funds may invest up to 30% of their assets in assets denominated in a currency other than the national one. The total value of open pension fund assets invested in assets denominated in currency other than the national one may not exceed 30%. For occupational pension funds, the value of assets denominated in a currency other than zlotys may not exceed 30% of a fund's total assets. Pension fund assets may be invested in assets denominated in zlotys or currencies of EU, EEA, and OECD countries. These assets may be invested in the following capital market securities of a participation nature with an original maturity of more than one year: (1) shares of companies listed on a regulated market and bonds convertible to the shares of such companies, as well as preemptive rights and rights to shares listed on that market; (2) shares, preemptive rights, and rights to shares for public offer; (3) participation units of closed-end collective investment institutions, as follows: (a) whose sole objective is collective investment of funds collected through public or private offering of their participation units in securities, money market instruments, and other property rights; (b) that are authorized by the financial market supervisory authorities in the country in which they are established or whose operations require notification to those authorities, if according to their articles of incorporation their participation units are not offered publicly, traded on a regulated market, or admitted to the alternative trading system and they can be purchased by individuals only in a single purchase of not less than €40,000; (c) that are under the direct supervision of the financial market supervisory authorities in the country in which they are established; (d) that in accordance with the law of the country of their establishment are required to have a depository holding the assets of the institution; and (e) that are managed by entities whose activities are authorized by the financial market supervisory authorities in the country in which they are established; (4) participation units issued by open-end collective investment

Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Nonresidents may acquire real estate or other immovable property in Poland only with permission from the Ministry of the Interior, except if it is inherited. Under the Law on Acquisition of Real Estate by Foreigners, foreigners may also acquire real estate without a permit if (1) the real estate is an apartment; (2) the foreigner has lived in Poland for at least five years since obtaining a permanent residence visa; (3) the foreigner has been married to a Polish citizen for at least two years (the purchased real estate must constitute part of matrimonial community property); or (4) the real estate is purchased by nonresident juridical persons for statutory purposes, and the real estate is no larger than 4,000 square meters if it is in an urban area. The Council of Ministers may issue a regulation defining other cases for which a permit is not required, provided the size of the acquired real estate does not exceed 4,000 square meters in urban and 10,000 square meters in rural areas. The Council of Ministers may also extend the area to be acquired without a permit to 12,000 square meters in urban and 30,000 square meters in rural areas. Poland maintained rules until 2009 regarding the acquisition of secondary residences by foreigners other than nationals of EU member countries and nationals of countries that are parties to the EEA and who have been legal residents of Poland continuously for four years. Rules regarding the acquisition of agricultural land and forests are in effect until 2016. Under these rules, nationals of another EU member country or of a country that is party to the EEA who want to establish themselves as self-employed farmers and who have been legally resident and leasing land continuously in Poland as a natural or legal person for at least three years are not subject to any procedures other than those that apply to nationals of Poland; in some western and northern “voivods” (state administrations), the residence and leasing period is for a minimum of seven years.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	According to Article 23 of the Directive 2014/17/EU in case of loans granted in currency different from the one in which borrower receives income, member states should provide proper regulations ensuring that there are arrangements in place mitigating currency risk that the borrower is exposed to. According to Article 6 paragraph 1 of the Act of March 23, 2017, on Mortgage Loan and on Supervision over Credit Intermediaries and Appointed Representatives, mortgage loans may be granted only in the currency or be indexed to the currency in which the consumer receives most of his income or holds most of his funds or other assets valued in the currency of mortgage loan or in the currency to which the mortgage loan is indexed. Additionally, Recommendation S – which is a non-legally binding act but issued based on the Banking Act – concerning good practices with regard to mortgage credit exposures require banks to assume a 50% depreciation of currencies other than the currency in which the borrower receives the highest part of his income (if one receives income in more than one currency) for the purposes of creditworthiness assessment (KNF Resolution No. 492/2019 of the KNF of December 3, 2019, as further amended by the Resolution No. 173/2020 and Resolution No. 242/2023). Recommendation T concerning good practices with regard to risk management of retail credit exposures requires banks in case of loans granted in currency different from the one in which borrower receives income, to disclose comprehensive pre-contractual information regarding foreign exchange risk and apply stricter creditworthiness standards (KNF Resolution No. 59/2013). According to the Regulation of the Minister of Development and Finance of May 25, 2017, on a higher risk weight for exposures secured by mortgages on immovable properties, the risk weight applicable to exposures secured by mortgage on residential immovable property located in Poland in case of which installments depend on exchange rates relating to currency other than the one in which the borrower receives income amounts to 150% (this regulation concerns banks using the Standardized Approach for determining capital requirement). Effective March 29, 2022, the Regulation was amended (on the basis of the Financial Stability Committee (FSC) Resolution of September 28, 2021) until September 30, 2023, to allow for lower risk weights (50%, 75%, and 100%) to be assigned to loans, provided (1) the bank informed the borrowers that it would enter into arbitration proceedings resulting in the elimination of the relationship between the value of loan installments and foreign exchange rates and (2) the bank created provisions for these loans in the amount corresponding to at least 35%, 28%, or 20%, respectively, of loan gross value. According to amendment effective September 22, 2023, the expiry date of the lower risk weights regulation was extended until September 30, 2025. The application of lower risk weights for foreign currency entity to set up an insurance company in the territory of Poland; insurance companies located in the EU may operate under the FOS or FOE treaty freedoms subject to the general provisions of EU and domestic law. The KNF must be notified of investment transactions that would result in the acquisition of one-tenth, one-fifth, one-third or one-second of shares or voting power or in an increase beyond of one-tenth, one-fifth, one-third or one-second total shares or voting power. The KNF must also be notified whenever a given entity intends to become a parent company (either directly or indirectly) of an insurance or reinsurance company (currently, Article 82 of the Act on Insurance and Reinsurance Activity). The KNF may object to the transaction within a 60-working-day period

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	No.	New regulations concerning the allocation of assets of insurance companies are consistent with prudent person principle resulting from the implementation of the Solvency II Directive. According to Article 276 of the Act of September11, 2015, on insurance and reinsurance activity, assets of insurance and reinsurance companies should be invested according to prudent person principle. This Act is an implementation of Directive 2009/138/EC of November 25, 2009, on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II) and prudent person principle is provided in Article 132 of this directive. The main principles are: (1) With respect to the whole portfolio of assets, insurance and reinsurance companies must only invest in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report, and appropriately take into account in the assessment of its overall solvency needs. (2) All assets, in particular those covering the minimum capital requirement and the solvency capital requirement, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole. In addition, the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability. (3) Assets held to cover the technical provisions must also be invested in a manner appropriate to the nature and duration of the insurance and reinsurance liabilities. Those assets must be invested in the best interest of all policyholders and beneficiaries taking into account any disclosed policy objective. With respect to assets other than assets held in respect of life insurance contracts where the investment risk is borne by the policy holders: (1) the use of derivative instruments must be possible insofar as they contribute to a reduction of risks or facilitate efficient portfolio management, (2) investment and assets which are not admitted to trading on a regulated financial market must be kept to prudent levels, (3) assets must be properly diversified in such a way as to avoid excessive reliance on any particular asset, issuer or group of companies, or geographical area and excessive accumulation of risk in the portfolio as a whole, (4) investments in assets issued by the same issuer, or by issuers belonging to the same group, may not expose the insurance companies to excessive risk concentration. The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that companies can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The insurance and reinsurance companies are obliged to possess the risk-management system. According to Article 57 of the Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, the risk management system must cover investments, in particular derivatives. The requirements concerning the risk management system are laid down in the Act of insurance and reinsurance activity, which implements appropriate regulations

Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Pursuant to Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51), Portugal implements UNSC resolutions (UNSCRs) that approve restrictive measures (related to freezing of funds and other economic resources) directly and immediately by way of Article 8(3) of the Constitution of the Portuguese Republic, and Law No. 97/2017 of August 23 as amended by Law No. 58/2020 of August 31, and does so for the preservation of international security. As a full-fledged member of the EU, decisions and regulations of the Council of the EU implementing UNSCRs that approve restrictive measures related to freezing of funds and other economic resources, as well as those imposing restrictive measures of EU initiative are binding in its entirety and directly applicable in Portugal. Portugal has all of the rights and obligations stemming from its membership at the EU. Therefore, all directly applicable EU legislation applies in Portugal including all decisions adopted in the framework of the Common Foreign and Security Policy (CFSP) and all regulations based on Article 215 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU. Details on these restrictive measures are available on the following websites: www.un.org/sc/suborg/en/sanctions/information; finance.ec.europa.eu/eu-and-world/sanctions-restrictive-measures/overview-sanctions-and-related-tools_en; www.sanctionsmap.eu.

Controls on trade in gold (coins and/or bullion)	Yes.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	No.
On external trade	Yes.	In accordance with EU legal acts, there is a ban on trade in gold, precious metals, and diamonds with the government of the Democratic People's Republic of Korea (DPRK) (as of May 2016, as amended) and Syrian public agencies (as of June 2013, as amended).
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	In accordance with EC Regulation No. 2018/1672 and Decree-Law No. 61/2007 of March 14, 2007, there is a mandatory declaration system for cash entering or leaving the EU with a value of €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying more than €10,000 are required to make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders. According to Decree-Law No. 61/2007 of March 14, 2007, when required by the Portuguese customs authorities, a similar declaration must be presented when cash is transported within the EU. The single European Cash Declaration Form is used for declaration. The form allows the identification of a person or legal entity by its tax ID number. In accordance with EC regulations, there

Controls on capital and money market instruments	Yes.
On capital market securities	No.
Shares or other securities of a participating nature	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public by the buyer of shares admitted to trading on a regulated market when such purchases occur through a public takeover bid (Article 173 of the Securities Code). The current regime has been in effect since January 30, 2022, following a revision of the Securities Code. Such public offers are subject to prior registration with the Portuguese Securities Markets Commission (Comissão do Mercado de Valores Mobiliários—CMVM), which includes the approval of a prospectus, pursuant to Articles 108, 114, 118, and 176-A of the Securities Code. Qualifying holdings in listed companies are subject to disclosure based on the EU Transparency Directive: Articles 16 et seq. of the Securities Code lay down the framework for disclosure triggered by a ladder of holding thresholds, starting at 5%. Prospectuses approved by the appropriate authority of another EU country, pertaining to public offerings of takeover bids of shares admitted to trading in Portugal, are recognized by the CMVM, subject to translation into Portuguese and provided the CMVM receives the necessary documentation (Article 176-D of the Securities Code).
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public by the issuers of shares or other securities of a participating nature that are offered to the public in Portugal, for which the Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public applies. The prospectus is required and subject to approval by the competent authority of the Member State of the issuer, or of CMVM in the case of an issuer from a third country, and to public disclosure (Articles 108, 109, and 114 of the Securities Code).
Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public for issues of shares or other securities of a participating nature that are offered to the public in other EU Member States. The Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 applies. The prospectus is required and subject to approval by CMVM in the case of Portuguese issuers and subject to public disclosure (Article 108 of the Securities Code). The current regime has been in effect since January 30, 2022, following a revision of the Securities Code, which became better aligned with the Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129.
Bonds or other debt securities	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.	Under the current regime, effective January 30, 2022, following a revision of the Securities Code, there are no requirements of registration nor of a prospectus to be approved by the CMVM for bids to buy bonds or other debt securities (Articles 108, 109, 114, and 173 of the Securities Code). Previously, a prospectus was required also for public offers to buy bonds or other debt securities.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public before bonds and other debt securities are offered to the public in Portugal, for which the Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 on the prospectus to be published when securities are offered to the public applies. The prospectus is required and subject to approval by the competent authority of the Member State of the issuer, or of

Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public for issues of bonds or other debt securities that are offered to the public in other EU Member States. The Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129 applies. Therefore, the prospectus is required and subject to approval and to public disclosure (Article 108 of the Securities Code). The current regime has been in effect since January 30, 2022, following a revision of the Securities Code, which became better aligned with the Regulation (EU) No. 2017/1129.
On money market instruments	No.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	No.
Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	No.	There are requirements concerning the information to be disclosed to the public. Pursuant to Article 12(2) of Decree-Law No. 69/2004 of March 25, 2004, before commercial paper is offered to residents, the issuer must prepare an information document for CMVM approval. Furthermore, according to Article 17(8), an issuance of commercial paper for which a prospectus is produced, although being optional, is subject to the same requirements as public offers for which a prospectus is mandatory under the securities law. CMVM Regulation No. 2/2014 of November 4, 2014, provides additional guidance related to the issuance of commercial paper.

The revised national regime on EU-harmonized funds in transferable securities UCITS (resulting from Directive 2009/65/EC) and AIFs (resulting from the Directive 2011/61/EU), Venture Capital, Social Entrepreneurship, and Specialized Investment Funds, was enacted by the Decree-Law No. 27/2023 of April 28 (this Asset Management Regime repealed the previous General Framework of Collective Investment Schemes and the Legal Frameworks of Venture Capital, Social Entrepreneurship, and Specialized Investment). The marketing and sale of units in AIFs to local retail investors require CMVM authorization (Article 161). The sale and issuance of units of UCITS are allowed, subject to a notification to CMVM from the home country competent authority (Article 149). The sale and issuance of units of by EU management companies of AIFs distributed only to professional investors are allowed, subject to a notification to CMVM from the home country competent authority (Article 155). The sale and issuance of units of third-country AIFs distributed only to professional investors will be allowed, subject to CMVM's authorization or to a notification to CMVM by the competent EU authority, whichever the case, after the date to be specified on the delegated act to be adopted by the Commission pursuant to Article 67(6) of AIFMD.

Purchase abroad by residents	No.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	No.	Under the above-mentioned Asset Management Regime, the UCITS funds (pursuant to the UCITS Directive), the CMVM, as the home country authority, sends passport notifications to the relevant authority in the EU host country where the units are to be marketed. Management companies authorized in the EEA may also establish UCITS in another member country. In accordance with the AIFMD, EEA management companies authorized by their home country authority may manage, market, and sell to professional investors, under an EU passport, units of EU and third-country AIFs in other EEA countries. Marketing and sale of such units to retail investors are subject to host-country laws.
Controls on derivatives and other instruments	No.	As a special case because of the high risk involved in certain types of contracts for differences (CFDs) and in certain types of binary options, their marketing, distribution, or sale to retail investors was prohibited throughout the territory of the EU, following temporary decisions by the European Securities and Markets Authority (ESMA). Such restrictions were implemented as permanent measures in Portugal by the Regulation CMVM No. 5/2019. These prohibitions apply to the marketing, distributing, or selling the specific types of financial instruments either by Portuguese firms to resident and to nonresident retail investors and by non-Portuguese firms to resident retail investors. Apart from these special cases related to the information required to be disclosed to the buyer and to the high level of risk that makes the financial instrument not adequate to retail investors, the transactions of derivative instruments can generally be undertaken.

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Nondiscriminatory prudential rules apply to the authorization of credit institutions and financial companies and to the acquisition of qualifying holdings in credit institutions. Controls apply to establishment of branches of credit institutions owned or controlled by non-EU investors or financial companies owned or controlled by foreign investors, which requires earmarked capital in an amount equal to the minimum required by Portuguese law for credit institutions or financial companies of the same type with their headquarters in Portugal.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	No absolute limits apply. However, prudential minimum own funds requirements apply on a nondiscriminatory basis to credit institutions, according to EU rules envisaged in Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms. These requirements are applied to resident and nonresident assets and liabilities.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	No absolute limits apply. However, prudential minimum own funds requirements apply on a nondiscriminatory basis to banks and other credit institutions, according to EU rules envisaged in Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms.

Investment firms and collective investment funds	Yes.	(1) Following the transposition of the Investment Firms Directive (Directive (EU) 2019/2034), the business of investment firms is regulated by the Investment Firms' Regime approved by the Decree-Law No. 109-H/2021 of December 10, 2021, effective February 1, 2022, and by the Securities Market Code. This specific prudential regime is applicable to investment firms which are not systemic by virtue of their size and interconnectedness with other financial and economic actors. Systemic investment firms remain subject to the existing prudential framework under Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 and Directive 2013/36/EU and do not benefit from dedicated exemptions from any of their requirements. The investment firms' prudential regime is calibrated in a manner proportionate to the type of investment firm, the best interests of the clients of that type of investment firm and the promotion of the smooth and orderly functioning of the markets in which that type of investment firm operates. The main nondiscriminatory prudential rules applicable are: (a) an authorization from CMVM is required to start the business and a minimum initial capital which depends on the type of activities and the investment services to be provided; (b) the establishment of subsidiaries and branches in non-EEA countries also requires authorization from the CMVM, while the establishment of branches in EEA countries requires notification to the CMVM, which in turn notifies the host Member State authority of its favorable decision; the authorization requirement is also applied to the establishment of branches in Portugal of third countries' investment firms; (c) investment firms must comply at all time with the prudential minimum own funds required by the Regulation (EU) No. 2019/2033; certain investment firms, because of their dimension, may have to comply instead with the prudential rules enacted by the Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013; (d) qualified holdings are subject to permanent supervision, concerning the adequacy of their holders, and information has to be provided to the CMVM whenever there are changes below or above the defined thresholds; and (e) limits on investments outside the financial sector may be imposed by the CMVM in accordance with the Regulation (EU) No. 2019/2033 or the Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013, whichever applicable to the specific investment firm. (2) The revised national regime on EU-harmonized funds in transferable securities UCITS (resulting from Directive 2009/65/EC) and AIFs (resulting from the Directive 2011/61/EU), Venture Capital, Social Entrepreneurship, and Specialized Investment Funds, was enacted by the Decree-Law No. 27/2023 of April 28 (this Asset Management Regime repealed the previous General Framework of Collective Investment Schemes and the Legal Frameworks of Venture Capital, Social Entrepreneurship, and Specialized Investment). There are two types of management companies, depending on the activity, management companies of undertakings for collective investment undertakings and venture capital companies. The commencement of any management company's activity is subject to authorization from the Securities Market Commission (CMVM). In the case of collective investment undertakings managing companies, a minimum initial capital is mandatory, as well as the maintenance of a minimum level of own funds related to the volume of assets under management. The adequacy of holders of qualified holdings is evaluated by the CMVM. As part of its supervision and of mandatory information that is required from the supervised entities. Several thresholds on the composition of the portfolios and constraints related to assets and liabilities of either UCITS or AIFs, particularly real estate funds, are established in the Asset Management Regime and in the CMVM Regulation No. 2/2015. The activity in Portugal of managing companies of non-EEA countries is subject to authorization.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For investment firms to which Regulation (EU) No. 2019/2033 applies on June 26, 2021 (the Investment Firms Regulation), the CMVM may prohibit these investment firms from having qualifying holdings outside the financial sector where the amount of those holdings exceeds the percentages of the required own funds according to the rules established in Article 10 of the Investment Firms Regulation. The limits on investments outside the financial sector in accordance with Article 89 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 apply to certain investment firms that, according to their dimension, will follow prudential rules established in that Regulation.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Exchange rates of commercial banks for transactions in US dollars are based on the buying and selling rates of the QCB. The buying and selling rates of commercial banks for other currencies are based on the QCB's rates for the US dollar and on the market rates for the other currency against the US dollar. A spread of QR 0.0085 is applied to exchange transactions with the public. Thirty-five institutions are licensed by the QCB to deal in foreign exchange with the public. These institutions consist of 15 commercial banks and 20 foreign exchange bureaus, which are allowed to operate subject to licensing by the QCB. Foreign exchange bureaus do not engage in foreign exchange transactions directly with the QCB, but they may maintain accounts abroad. Their operations are not limited to the purchase and sale of banknotes; they may also make foreign currency payments and transfers on behalf of their clients. Commercial banks trade US dollars domestically based on the price determined by the QCB, plus a margin of 0.24% when dealing with the public. Commercial banks trade other currencies based on the QCB-determined exchange rates of riyals against US dollars and market-determined rates of other currency against the US dollar. Commercial banks have a margin of 0.24% for US dollar trades and trade other currencies through the US dollar.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The QCB buys and sells foreign currency at the announced rates every business day from 8:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., unless it decides otherwise. The QCB purchases US dollars at a fixed rate of QR 3.6385 and sells US dollars at a fixed rate of QR 3.6415 to banks in Qatar. The QCB does not deal directly either with the government or with other public entities.

(Position as of June 30, 2023)

Status under IMF Articles of Agreement

Date of membership		December 15, 1972.
Article VIII	Yes.	Date of acceptance: March 25, 1998.
Article XIV

Exchange Measures

Restrictions and/or multiple currency practices	No.	No restrictions as reported in the latest IMF staff report as of December 31, 2022.
Exchange measures imposed for security reasons	Yes.
In accordance with IMF Executive Board Decision No. 144-(52/51)	Yes.	Although there is in place a legal framework for the implementation of unilateral sanctions taken by Romania, no such measures have been adopted. Consequently, should any such unilateral restrictions be adopted in the future, they will be notified pursuant to Executive Board Decision No.144-(52/51). Article 1 Paragraph (2) and Article 4 Paragraph (4) of the Emergency Ordinance No. 202/2008 on the Implementation of International Sanctions, approved with Amendments by Law No. 217/2009, with Subsequent Amendments and Additions. A presentation of the sanctions regimes in force, which refers to UN sanctions as well as to EU restrictive measures, is available on the website of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs: www.mae.ro/en/node/2124.
Other security restrictions	Yes.	For the preservation of national and international security, Romania implements restrictive measures adopted by UNSC resolutions, or other acts adopted on the basis of Article 41 of the United Nations Charter (1945), in accordance with Articles 25, 52, and 53 of the same Charter, as well as EU regulations and decisions, in accordance with Article 288 of the Treaty on the Functioning of the EU. Thus, all directly applicable EU legislation applies in Romania, including all regulations based on Article 215 of Treaty on the Functioning of the European Union and all decisions adopted in the framework of the Common Foreign and Security Policy of the European Union. A presentation of the sanctions regimes in force, which refers to UN sanctions as well as to EU restrictive measures, is available on the website of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs: www.mae.ro/en/node/2124.

Stabilized arrangement	Yes.	The de jure exchange rate arrangement is managed floating; the exchange rate of the leu is determined in the interbank foreign exchange market. The National Bank of Romania (NBR) may intervene to smooth excessive exchange rate fluctuations. There is no formal definition of excessive exchange rate fluctuations: The assessment is based on domestic and international market circumstances and on prevailing macroeconomic conditions. The NBR intervenes either directly with market participants at their quoted rates or via market makers. The NBR does not publish information on its interventions. From September 2021, the leu has stabilized within a 2% band against the euro. Therefore, the de facto exchange rate was reclassified retroactively to stabilized from crawl-like, effective September 9, 2021. The de facto methodology for classification of exchange rate regimes is based on a backward-looking statistical approach that relies on past exchange rate movement and historical data. Therefore, this reclassification does not imply statements or views on future or intended policies nor does imply a policy commitment on the part of the country authorities.

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The NBR quotes rates for 29 foreign currencies and the SDR. The exchange rates are based on the quotes of 10 local banks licensed to perform foreign exchange transactions. These banks are selected by the NBR, taking into consideration their participation in the interbank foreign exchange market. The use of exchange rates listed by the NBR is not compulsory for foreign exchange transactions and accounting records.

Traders in precious metals and stones become reporting entities according to the Law No. 129/2019 to the extent that they perform cash transactions in the limit of lei equivalent of 10000 euro, regardless whether the transaction is executed through a single operation or through more related operations. In case they become reporting entities, the competence of supervision and oversight with regard to AML/CFT lies with the National Office for the Prevention and Combating Money Laundering.
On domestic ownership and/or trade	Yes.	Economic operators or traders who perform precious metals activities are authorized by the National Authority for Consumer Protection.
On external trade	Yes.	Economic operators or traders who perform precious metals activities are authorized by the National Authority for Consumer Protection.
Controls on exports and imports of banknotes	No.	NBR regulations (NBR Regulation No. 4/2005 on the Foreign Exchange Regime), republished, as subsequently amended and supplemented, do not stipulate controls on exports and imports of banknotes, but in accordance with Regulation (EC) No. 1672/2018, cash controls require mandatory declaration of cash entering or leaving the EU equivalent to €10,000 or more. Travelers entering or leaving the EU and carrying cash of a value equivalent to €10,000 or more must make a declaration to the relevant authorities of the member country through which they enter or leave the EU. The authorities must keep a record of such information and report it to their national FIU. Thus, in accordance with the requirements to declare cash under Regulation (EC) No. 1672/2018 on controls of cash entering or leaving the Community and based on the Article 7 Paragraph 6 of Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the modification and completion of some normative acts, the National Agency for Fiscal Administration (NAFA) is required to communicate to the National Office for Prevention and Control of Money Laundering (NOPCML) (FIU Romania), all the information it holds regarding declarations by natural persons of cash in domestic or foreign currency equal to or above €10,000, within the time limit established through the Regulation (EC) No. 1672/2018, according to a Methodology approved by joint Order of the President of the NAFA and the president of the NOPCML. In addition, Law No. 129/2019 on the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and Terrorism Financing, as well as on the modification and completion of some normative acts stipulates that NAFA will immediately send a report to the NOPCML when, in the application of the Regulation (EC) No. 2018/1672, from the data held, knows, suspects, or has reasonable grounds to suspect that the goods/funds come from crimes or are related to the financing of terrorism or that the persons has violated the obligations established by this Regulation. The obligation to declare is not fulfilled if the traveler makes no declaration or if the information provided is incorrect or incomplete. To check compliance with the regulation, the national authorities have the right to search natural persons, their baggage, and their means of transportation. In the event of failure to comply with the declaration obligation, cash may be confiscated. The EC regulation requires member countries to impose penalties for failure to comply with the declaration obligation. If there are indications that cash is related to illegal activity, authorities of one member country may exchange information with authorities in other member countries, and the information must be transmitted to the EC. Under the framework of existing agreements on mutual administrative assistance, information obtained under the EC regulation may also be communicated to a third country in compliance with relevant national and EU provisions on the transfer of personal data to third countries. The EC regulation does not apply to physical cross-border transportation from one EU member country to another (that is, intra-EU transportation). Such transportation is not considered "cross-border" for the purposes of the EC regulation; the EC regulation only harmonizes the system for the EU's external borders.

Controls on real estate transactions	Yes.	Real estate transactions are performed through notaries public who authenticate the contracts regarding the transfer of property or regarding other real rights, according to the legal provisions in force. Also, considering the provisions of the Law No. 70/2015 regarding fiscal discipline, there are limitations on the value of cash payments, thus the payment is performed most of the times through bank transfer. At the same time, when a real estate transaction is performed, the transfer of the right is registered in the land registry, the National Agency for Cadastre and Real Estate Publicity being the institution that manages the registers for cadastre and real estate publicity, which thus allows keeping a strict evidence of the buildings and the rights over them to rule out the risk to perform fictitious transactions with buildings. It is worth mentioning that both notaries public and banks are reporting entities according to the Law No. 129/2019, being supervised by the National Office for the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering and by the NBR, respectively; they are thus required to comply with the legislation on AML/CFT and apply customer due diligence measures according to the laws in force. From the point of view of AML/CFT, real estate agents and real estate developers, which are involved in certain real estate transactions are reporting entities according to Article 5 of the Law No. 129/2019, being supervised and overseen by the National Office for the Prevention and Combating of Money Laundering, they also apply customer due diligence measures according to the law in force.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	As an EU Member State, the Romanian legal framework for credit institutions was developed in accordance with EU acquis in this area. The provisions of Directive 2013/36/EU (CRD) were transposed at the national level in GEO No. 99/2006, as subsequently amended and supplemented (primary legislation) and NBR Regulation No. 5/2013, as subsequently amended and supplemented (secondary legislation). GEO No. 99/2006 lays down the conditions concerning the taking up and pursuit of banking activity within Romania's territory, the prudential supervision of credit institutions and financial investment services companies, as well as supervision of payment systems and financial instruments settlement systems. NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 lays down the prudential requirements for credit institutions. Also, for the purpose of this subject, is relevant NBR Regulation No. 12/2020, as subsequently amended and supplemented (secondary legislation). NBR Regulation No. 12/2020 lays down the procedure, documentation, and condition regarding the authorization of credit institution.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	No.	NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 (as amended and supplemented) requires that credit institutions have in place policies and processes for the identification, measurement, evaluation, monitoring, reporting, and control or decreasing of country risk and transfer risk. Credit institutions must set limits on country exposures. The credit institution's management body approves the strategies, processes, and policies on the management of country risk and transfer risk to ensure that these policies and processes are implemented effectively and are fully integrated into the overall risk management of the credit institution.
Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	Capital requirements addressing foreign exchange risk, indirectly affecting local lending in foreign exchange, are included in Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012. This regulation is directly applicable across the EU. Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk. According to NBR Regulation No. 17/2012, subsequently amended and supplemented, creditors must warn unhedged clients of the consequences of exchange rate depreciation on debt obligations and establish the maximum debt levels (debt-to-income ratio – DTI) for consumer loans. NBR Regulation No. 17/2012 provides for an aggregate DSTI ceiling of 40% of which the maximum DSTI for loans denominated or indexed in a foreign currency granted to debtors exposed to foreign exchange risk is 20%. The maximum levels of DSTI are increased by 5 percentage points in case of a mortgage loan contracted by the debtor for the purchase of the first residential property to be occupied by the debtor (including Prima Casa loans). The caps on the DSTI have been set including taking into account the impact of the currency risk, the interest rate risk, and the risk of decrease of the eligible income available during the period of the credit life. The regulation provides also for an exemption from the maximum level of the aggregate DSTI, under certain conditions, for up to 15% of the loans granted by a creditor. LTV ratios apply to foreign currency consumer loans (75%) and for foreign currency credit agreements secured by mortgages as follows: (1) 85% for lei; (2) 75% for euros, for unhedged borrowers; (3) 60% for other foreign currency, for unhedged borrowers; and (4) 80% for foreign currency credit, for hedged borrowers. Effective April 1, 2022, the applicable LTV ratio limits were reduced by 10 percentage points for those debtors who own a house at the time of the loan request. Following the entry into force of the CRD IV package in 2014, the requirements for credit institutions were incorporated into NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions. In accordance with NBR Regulation No. 11/2020 (amending and supplementing Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions), credit institutions must set their own risk limits for approving foreign currency loans and have in place policies and procedures adequate to the volume and complexity of their activity to accurately identify and assess the risks arising from the foreign currency lending of debtors not covered at foreign exchange risk and for their reflection both at the level of the processes of internal evaluation of the price of risks related to loans and at the level of the internal process of capital adequacy to risks. Also, credit institutions must assess the existence and significance of the additional credit risk associated with foreign currency credit exposures of debtors not covered at foreign exchange risk and, in particular, any non-linear relationship between market risk and credit risk where exchange rates (market risk) can have a disproportionate impact on the credit risk of an institution’s foreign currency loan portfolio.

Abroad by banks	Yes.	Following the entry into force of the CRD IV package, all its requirements for credit institutions were incorporated into NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions. According to the amended regulation, for qualifying holdings (direct or indirect holdings in an enterprise that represent 10% or more of the capital or of the voting rights or that make it possible to exercise significant influence over the management, except financial sector entities or enterprises deemed by the relevant authority to be engaged in the following: (1) direct extension of banking; (2) activities ancillary to banking; and (3) leasing, factoring, management of unit trusts, management of data processing services, or similar activity) for the purpose of calculating the capital requirement, Romanian credit institutions must apply a risk weight of 1.250% to the greater of the following: (1) the amount of qualifying holdings in excess of 15% of eligible capital or (2) the total amount of qualifying holdings that exceed 60% of the eligible capital of the institution (NBR Regulation No. 5/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and Regulation No. 575 of the European Parliament and of the Council of June 26, 2013, on prudential requirements for credit institutions and investment firms and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012 (CRR)). According to GEO No. 99/2006, credit institutions, Romanian legal persons may not acquire shares in a nonfinancial entity, either resident or nonresident, if that results in control over that entity. In addition, NBR approval is needed if a bank intends to acquire a qualifying holding in a financial entity outside the EU, if this entity will be included in the scope of the bank's prudential consolidation. Qualifying holdings, other than those subject to the prior approval of the NBR, as it was mentioned before, shall be notified to the NBR by the credit institution, Romanian legal person (GEO No. 99/2006 regarding Credit Institutions and Capital Adequacy, approved by Law No. 227/2007, as subsequently amended and supplemented).
In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	Advance NBR notification is required for investments by residents or nonresidents of 10% or more in a bank's capital. The NBR may oppose the acquisition within (generally) 60 working days of notification.
Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Foreign exchange risk capital requirements are included in Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 on prudential requirements for credit institutions and amending Regulation (EU) No. 648/2012. This regulation is directly applicable across the EU. Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk.
On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	Article 351 of Regulation (EU) No. 575/2013 requires banks whose overall net foreign exchange position exceeds 2% of their own funds to calculate capital requirements for foreign exchange risk.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Insurance/reinsurance companies are licensed and supervised under the Law No. 237/2015 on the authorization and supervision of the business of insurance and reinsurance, which transposes the EU Directive (EC) No. 2009/138 on the taking-up and pursuit of the business of Insurance and Reinsurance (Solvency II), with subsequent completions. The regulatory framework is completed by the European Commission's Regulations (Commission Delegated Regulation No. 2015/35 and all the other Regulations laying down implementing/regulatory technical standards with regard to different area of the Directive), which are binding in their entirety and directly applicable in all Member States, and by the secondary legislation issued by the Romanian Financial Supervisory Authority (FSA) to implement the European Insurance and Occupational Pensions Authority (EIOPA) Guidelines or to regulate other aspects not covered by the legislative acts previously mentioned. Solvency II is a risk-based supervision regime, imposing for the insurance/reinsurance companies to determine their solvency capital requirements (SCR) and minimum capital requirements (MCR) depending on the risks associated to their businesses, using the standard formula provided by the Directive or their own internal models approved by the FSA, and to cover them with eligible own funds. The regulatory framework establishes detailed rules for insurance/reinsurance companies related to their system of governance, classification of own funds in three tiers, eligibility criteria of own funds for covering of SCR, methodologies to calculate technical provisions, etc. The Solvency II regime does not apply to specific insurance companies which fulfill certain conditions (such as gross written premiums under €5 million, technical reserves under €25 million, locally business only, non-underwriting of liability, and credit and suretyship risks). For this category of insurance companies, member states are allowed to impose their own licensing and supervision conditions. In Romania, for this category of insurance companies, the FSA decided to maintain the former supervision regime, with some improvements mainly related to the qualitative requirements (such as those related to system of governance and public disclosure). Consequently, for the insurance companies falling out the scope of Solvency II regime, there are no significant changes in legal requirements related to available and minimum solvency margin, minimum guarantee fund, methodology to calculate the technical reserves, assets admitted to cover the technical reserves and other quantitative requirements) comparing to those applicable before January 1, 2016, the former provisions being included in the Rule No. 25/2002 regarding the authorization of insurance companies and the pursuing of insurance and reinsurance activity except the reporting templates and prudential indicators which are included in Rule no. 28/2015. In addition, under the national regime of Rule No. 28/2015 provisions of Articles 24 (1) and 26 is applicable currently to one insurance company and thus is of limited scope.

Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	With the implementation of the Solvency II regime, there are no investment restrictions. The insurance/reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the "prudent person" principle (in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report; all assets, in particular those covering the MCR and the SCR, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability). The absence of regulatory limits on investments does not mean that undertakings can take investment decisions without any regard to prudence and to the interests of policyholders. The requirements of Solvency II and of the Commission Delegated Regulation No. 2015/35 cover extensively some of the main aspects of the prudent person principle, such as asset-liability management, investment in derivatives, liquidity risk management, and concentration risk management. For the insurance companies falling out the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Rule No. 28/2015 provides that the assets that cover gross technical provisions must be placed in Romania. These insurers may invest gross technical provisions in (1) government bonds and treasury bills; (2) debt securities, bonds, and other money and capital market instruments traded in supervised markets; (3) shares and other variable yield participations traded in supervised markets; and (4) units in UCITS and other investment funds.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	With the implementation of the Solvency II regime, there are no investment restrictions. The insurance/reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the "prudent person" principle (in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report; all assets, in particular those covering the MCR and the SCR, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability). Investment risk management policy – FSA Rule No. 35/2015: In its risk management policy, the undertaking should cover at least the following information with regard to investments: (1) the level of security, quality, liquidity, and profitability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this; (2) its quantitative limits on assets and exposures, including off-balance-sheet exposures, that are to be established to help to ensure the undertaking achieves its desired level of security, quality, liquidity, profitability, and availability for the portfolio; (3) the level of availability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this; (4) consideration of the financial market environment; (5) the conditions under which the undertaking can pledge or lend assets; (6) the link between market risk and other risks in adverse scenarios; (7) the procedure for appropriately valuing and verifying the investment assets; (8) the procedures to monitor the performance of the investments and review the policy when necessary; (9) how the assets are to be selected in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries. For the insurance companies falling out the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Rule No. 28/2015 provides that the assets that cover gross technical provisions must be placed in Romania. These insurers may invest gross technical provisions in (1) government bonds and treasury bills; (2) debt securities, bonds, and other money and capital market instruments traded in supervised markets; (3) shares and other variable yield participations traded in supervised markets; and (4) units in UCITS and other investment funds.
Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	Yes.	With the implementation of Solvency II, for firms falling under the Solvency II regime, there are no investment restrictions. The insurance/reinsurance companies invest all their assets in accordance with the "prudent person" principle (in assets and instruments whose risks the company concerned can properly identify, measure, monitor, manage, control, and report; all assets, in particular those covering the MCR and the SCR, must be invested in such a manner as to ensure the security, quality, liquidity, and profitability of the portfolio as a whole and the localization of those assets must be such as to ensure their availability). Investment risk management policy – FSA Rule No. 35/2015: In its risk management policy, the undertaking should cover at least the following information with regard to investments: (1) the level of security, quality, liquidity, and profitability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this; (2) its quantitative limits on assets and exposures, including off-balance-sheet t exposures, that are to be established to help to ensure the undertaking achieves its desired level of security, quality, liquidity, profitability, and availability for the portfolio; (3) the level of availability the undertaking is aiming for with regard to the whole portfolio of assets and how it plans to achieve this; (4) consideration of the financial market environment; (5) the conditions under which the undertaking can pledge or lend assets; (6) the link between market risk and other risks in adverse scenarios; (7) the procedure for appropriately valuing and verifying the investment assets; (8) the procedures to monitor the performance of the investments and review the policy when necessary; (9) how the assets are to be selected in the best interest of policyholders and beneficiaries. For the insurance companies falling out of the scope of Solvency II regime, the FSA Rule No. 28/2015 provides the following maximum limits of the investments covering gross technical provisions: (1) 50% in shares, bonds, and other instruments traded in a regulated and supervised capital market and in debt securities in companies for collective investment in securities, according to the provisions of point (2); (2) 5% in shares and other negotiable securities treated as shares, bonds, debt certificates, and other money and capital market instruments and in debt securities in companies for collective investment in securities issued by the same company; (3) 20% in land and buildings (agricultural land and land outside built-up areas may not cover technical provisions); (4) 10% in a single land or building investment or in multiple land and building investments close enough together to be considered one investment; and (5) 90% in deposits and accounts in credit institutions, with no more than 20% of the gross technical provisions in a single credit institution. The above maximum limits apply to the total value of the technical gross provisions and are similar for life and non-life activity. For both non-life-insurance and life insurance activity, the assets covering the technical provisions must be evaluated on a prudential basis, taking into account the minimum between the book value and the market value. If a certain asset does not have rules regarding maximum limits, the FSA may restrict the use of that asset.

Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	Yes.	With the implementation of Solvency II regime, there are no currency-matching rules. For the insurance companies falling out of the scope of Solvency II regime, Article 28 of the FSA Rule No. 28/2015 provides matching rules for assets covering technical provisions as follows: (1) The insurers must comply with the principle of matching assets, which refers to the coverage of the obligations subscribed in a certain currency with assets expressed or realizable in the same currency. (2) The insurers' obligations are deemed to be paid in the currency in which the commitments in the contract were expressed. (3) If the insurers' obligations provided in the contract are not expressed in a certain currency, the insurers' commitments are deemed to be payable in Romanian leu. (4) By way of exception from Paragraph (3), the insurers may opt for the currency in which the premiums are collected if there is an adequate framework for adopting such a solution; this is possible if, starting from the entry into force of the contract, it is likely that a claim is paid in the currency in which the premium is collected, and not in Romanian leu. (5) If the insurers reported a claim that may be paid in a currency other than that resulting from the implementation of the procedures mentioned in this article, the insurers' commitments must be paid in that currency and, particularly, in the currency established by the court of law or by a settlement concluded between the insurer and the contractor. (6) If a claim is requested which is expressed in a currency known in advance by the insurers but which is different from the currency resulting from the implementation of the procedures mentioned in this article, the insurers' commitments may be paid in that currency. (7) The insurers may choose not to cover the technical reserves with matching assets if the implementation of the procedures provided by this article results in their obligation to keep the assets in a currency not exceeding 7% of the assets expressed in other currency, to comply with the principle of matching assets. (8) If the commitments may be paid in a currency of a third country, if the investments in such currency are regulated, if the currency is subject to transfer restrictions or if, for similar reasons, the currency is not appropriate to cover technical reserves, the insurers do not have the obligation to comply with the principle of matching assets. (9) The insurers may hold assets that are not matching to cover an amount not exceeding 20% of their obligations in a certain currency.

Pension funds	Yes.	Pension funds are governed by Law No. 411/2004 regarding privately administered pension funds, recast as amended, Law No. 204/2006 on voluntary pension funds, as amended, and Law No. 1/2020 on occupational pension as amended. The Private Pensions Guarantee Fund was established under Law No. 187/2011 to guarantee the rights of members and beneficiaries of the private pension system. Annual contributions that private pension funds' management companies make to the Private Pensions Guarantee Fund are computed based on provisions of Norm No. 2/2013. As a first measure for guaranteeing the rights of members and beneficiaries, privately administered pension fund management companies are required to establish a technical provision based on the provisions of Norm No. 13/2012 and voluntary pension fund management companies are required to establish a technical provision based on the provisions of Norm No. 26/2015. The market regulator is the FSA–The Private Pensions Sector, formerly known as the Private Pension System Supervisory Commission.

Floating
Free floating	Yes.	The de jure and de facto exchange rate arrangements are free floating. Under the free-floating arrangement, the exchange rate of the ruble is determined by market factors. The BR did not perform interventions in the domestic foreign exchange market for the purpose of maintaining a certain exchange rate or determining the speed at which it changes. After the introduction of capital controls in 2022, it is determined by foreign trade terms to a greater extent than before. It is more influenced by the ratio of importers' demand for foreign exchange in the market to the foreign exchange supply received as payment for Russian exports. As the economy adapts to the external sanctions, the impact of capital flows on the exchange rate increases. The BR could perform operations with foreign currency in the domestic market in the event of a threat to financial stability and also in line with the budget rule by the Russian MOF. The restrictions because of the sanctions imposed at the end of February 2022 triggered significant volatility in the financial market and an increase in devaluation and inflation expectations. On February 24, 2022, the BR announced a number of measures to stabilize situation on the financial market, including interventions in the foreign exchange market (on February 24 and 25 for a total amount of $1.2 billion). Subsequently, a set of anti-crisis measures was adopted to maintain price and financial stability. Among them, restrictions on capital movements were introduced as an emergency temporary measure. Because of the anti-crisis measures, the acute phase of the crisis was already over by April. The Russian financial market restored stable functioning and the ruble appreciated. Risks to financial and price stability began to diminish. The appreciation of the ruble since mid-March 2022 was because of high exports due to higher export prices, as well as low imports against the backdrop of sanctions and restrictions by foreign companies on the supply of goods to Russia and, as a consequence, lower demand for foreign currency by importers. 2023 saw a U-turn in sentiment, with the active economic recovery driving imports in a noticeable way. In the first half of 2022, imports of goods amounted to $127bn, while in the first half of 2023, they increased by 19% to $151bn. Over the same period, exports were down by 32% from $306bn to $209bn. It was driven by the deterioration of the global economic conditions amid expectations of weaker global economic growth and tighter sanctions. Accordingly, exports revenues dropped, while ruble demand for imports, on the contrary, was actively growing, both because of income growth and growth of ruble lending. As a result, the current account surplus in the first half of 2023 was $23bn vs. $148bn in the same period of 2022, which led to a weaker exchange rate. Effective February 28, 2022, in line with Resolution of the Government of the Russian Federation No. 321 February 28, 2022, on Suspension of Certain Provisions of the Regulations on Measures to Ensure Execution of the Federal Budget, certain provisions of the fiscal rules related to the use of additional oil and gas revenues of the federal budget were suspended until December 31, 2023. Effective December 30, 2022, in line with Amendments to Resolution of the Government of the Russian Federation No. 2549 of December 30, 2022, to ensure flexibility when investing funds of the National Welfare Fund, it is stipulated that the actual minimum shares of each asset in the new structure can take zero values, and the maximum shares are limited as follows: Chinese yuan – 60%, non-cash gold – 40% (previously, the shares of yuan and gold were 30% and 20%, respectively). Effective January 13, 2023, the BR resumed mirroring transactions by the Russian MOF with the funds from the National Welfare Fund in the domestic market as part of the fiscal rule to finance the part of the budget deficit that comes from lost oil and gas revenue (the difference between actual and baseline equivalent oil and gas revenue).

Official exchange rate	Yes.	The BR establishes official exchange rates for a number of foreign currencies against the ruble. These rates may be used in calculating state budget revenues and expenditures for payments and settlements by state administrative agencies with businesses, organizations, and individuals and for taxation and accounting. Regulation of the use of the official exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble for various purposes, including the areas of their mandatory use, is not within the BR's purview. Official exchange rates are set every business day and on non-business days announced in Russia (for example, related to quarantine), with the exception of non-business days that are weekends or official holidays, and take effect the next calendar day. Information on official rates is published on the BR's website the day they are set and in the next edition of the BR Bulletin. The official rate for each currency applies until the next official rate becomes effective. The official US dollar–ruble exchange rate is calculated on the basis of quotes for this currency pair in the domestic foreign exchange market. Effective April 25, 2022, the US dollar/ruble exchange rate is calculated on the basis of the Moscow Exchange data on the weighted average USD/RUB exchange rate for transactions carried out from 10:00 to 15:30 Moscow time. Previously, the calculation period was from 10:00 to 16:30 Moscow time. Effective April 25, 2022, a similar approach is applied to the official exchange rates of the euro and the yuan against the ruble. The official rates of other foreign currencies against the ruble are calculated on the basis of quotations of these currencies against the US dollar on the world currency market and the official rate of the US dollar against the ruble. Effective October 3, 2022, the BR announced additional procedures for setting official exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble to reflect the situation in the markets more accurately. Exchange rates are calculated based on data from extra alternative sources, such as bank reporting and OTC platforms, if conditions in terms of MOEX trading data are not met.

The wording “close to 4%” reflects the acceptability of small fluctuations in inflation around 4%. These fluctuations are natural, emerging because of an ongoing re-calibration of relative prices.
Target with tolerance band
Band/Range
Target measure	Yes.	The inflation target is set on the basis of the CPI calculated by Rosstat, reflecting the rate of growth in consumer prices in relation to the corresponding month of the previous year.
CPI	Yes.	The CPI measures the change over time of the cost of a consumer basket – a set of food, non-food items, and services consumed by the average household.
Core inflation
Target horizon	No.	The inflation target is applied on an ongoing basis. If inflation deviates from the target, the BR will take appropriate action on the key rate. Given the lags of monetary policy transmission, the BR can ensure that inflation returns to the target on a horizon of approximately 1–1.5 years.
Operating target (policy rate)	Yes.
Policy rate	Yes.	The main monetary policy rate (the key rate) is set by the BR Board of Directors. This rate corresponds to the minimum interest rate at the BR 1-week repo auctions and the maximum interest rate at the BR 1-week deposit auctions. Under the BR operating procedure, the aim is for the one-day rate in the interbank credit market to be close to the key rate.
Target corridor band	No.

Accountability	Yes.
Open letter	No.	Reporting on inflation targets is not done in the form of open letters.
Parliamentary hearings	Yes.	The Chairman of the BR presents to the State Duma of the Annual Report of the BR and Key Elements of the Uniform State Monetary Policy.
Other	No.
Transparency	Yes.
Publication of votes	No.
Publication of minutes	No.	The minutes of meetings of the BR Board of Directors are not published on the official website of the BR. Following the meetings of the BR Board of Directors, an official statement of the key rate is published (at 1:30 p.m. on the same day Moscow time). After meetings, press conferences are held with the participation of the Chairman of the BR (at 3:00 p.m. on the same day Moscow time). After supporting (quarterly) meetings, a new issue of the Monetary Policy Report is published (six business days after the decision on the key rate).
Publication of inflation forecasts	Yes.	Inflation forecasts are published on a quarterly basis after meetings of the BR Board of Directors (at 1:30 p.m. on the day the decision on the key rate is made), in addition to the Monetary Policy Report (six business days after the decision on the key rate).
Other monetary framework
Exchange tax	No.	Effective March 3, 2022, a commission applies to the purchase by individuals of foreign currencies through brokers in the amount of 30% of the transaction. Effective March 4, 2022, the commission was reduced to 12% for individuals and set to 12% for legal entities. Effective April 11, 2022, the requirement to charge a commission was removed.
Exchange subsidy	No.
Foreign exchange market	Yes.	Effective March 9, 2022, sales of cash foreign currencies were temporarily prohibited. The measure was intended to be in effect until September 9, 2022. Effective April 18, 2022, banks may sell available foreign currency but only that obtained after April 9, 2022. Effective May 20, 2022, banks may sell any foreign currency cash to citizens without restrictions except US dollars and euros. Restrictions on the US dollar and the euro cash sales remain in force, and until September 9, 2022, citizens may buy only those US dollars and euros that have been received at banks' cash desks after April 9, 2022. Effective September 10, 2022, these measures were extended until March 9, 2023. Effective March 10, 2023, these measures were extended until September 9, 2023. Effective September 10, 2023, these measures were extended until March 9, 2024. Effective March 27, 2022, the purchase of foreign currency in the domestic foreign exchange market of Russia by nonresident legal entities from unfriendly countries is carried out in the amount of US$0 or other foreign currency. Effective July 19, 2022, nonresident banks from unfriendly countries may buy and sell one foreign currency in exchange for another, as well as to conclude deliverable foreign exchange forward and swap contracts in the Russian foreign exchange market. But the prices in these contracts may not deviate by more than 2% from the prices for similar instruments in Russian on-exchange trading and international markets at the time of their conclusion. This ban is still valid for ruble transactions, as well as for nonresidents other than banks. Previously, all nonresidents from unfriendly countries were prohibited to buy and sell foreign currency for both rubles and other foreign currencies.

Spot exchange market	Yes.	Pursuant to Federal Law No. 86-FZ of July 10, 2002, on the Central Bank of the Russian Federation, the BR licenses credit institutions to handle banking transactions (paragraph 8 of Article 4). Branches may handle all or some of the banking operations (including purchase and sell foreign exchange cash) that are provided for under the banking license of the credit institution (and the regulation on the branch) and delegated to them. Internal structural subdivisions that purchase and sell foreign exchange cash must also handle other transactions delegated to them by the credit institution. Operations with foreign exchange cash are performed in accordance with relevant BR regulations. Pursuant to Articles 8.8 and 8.9 of BR Instruction No. 135-I of April 2, 2010, basic and universal banking licenses, as provided for by annexes 29, 30, 32, 42–44 and annexes 34, 36, 45, and 46 of said Instruction, respectively, allow credit institutions created through incorporation to carry out operations in foreign currency. As of January 1, 2023, the number of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations in foreign exchange was 359. As of June 30, 2023, the number of professional participants in the securities market having a broker, dealer, or fiduciary management license (excluding client brokers) was 354.
Operated by the central bank	Yes.
Foreign exchange standing facility	Yes.	The system of BR instruments contains daily operations in the domestic market, which include overnight foreign exchange swap transactions to provide rubles and foreign currency. The currency swap as a permanent instrument was introduced in September 2002. As a result, credit institutions were able to raise liquidity from the BR on a daily basis for a period of 1 day in exchange for US dollars (the ruble–US dollar instrument). Since October 2005, a similar ruble–euro instrument was put in place. The currency swap as a tool to support Russian credit institutions with dollar liquidity was introduced in September 2014, which allowed credit institutions to raise US dollars daily from the BR for a period of 1 day in exchange for rubles. Effective February 24, 2022, a similar instrument was introduced to provide liquidity in euros in exchange for rubles. Effective January 1, 2022, the rates for BR currency swap operations are set equal to: (1) The Secured Overnight Financing Rate (SOFR) (previously LIBOR USD O/N) for the foreign exchange part of operations involving the purchase of US dollars for rubles, with their subsequent sale, and the key rate of the BR plus 1 percentage point for the ruble part; (2) The Euro Short-Term Rate (ESTR) (previously LIBOR EUR Overnight (O/N)) for the foreign exchange part of operations involving the purchase of euros for rubles, with their subsequent sale, and the key rate of the BR plus 1 percentage point for the ruble part; (3) SOFR (previously LIBOR USD O/N) plus 1.5 percentage points for the foreign exchange part of operations involving the sale of US dollars for rubles, with their subsequent sale, and the key rate of the BR minus 1 percentage point for the ruble part. Information about the parameters is posted on the BR's website. Since February 25, 2022, such operations have not been carried out.

		Effective January 19, 2023, the BR launched a new standing facility to provide yuan, that is, swap transactions for the sale of yuan for rubles with their subsequent purchase for a term of 1 day with settlement of the first leg of the transaction on the date of its conclusion and settlement of the second leg of the transaction on the next business day. The daily maximum limit for this instrument is set at 10 billion yuan. If necessary, the BR may adjust this limit. Transactions are concluded during organized trading on Moscow Exchange in the mode of non-addressed transactions on working days. When calculating the swap difference, the interest rate for yuan is O/N SHIBOR (Overnight Shanghai Interbank Offered Rate) increased by 2.5 percentage points, while the interest rate for rubles is the key rate of the BR reduced by 1 percentage point.
Allocation	No.
Auction	Yes.	To supply Russian credit institutions with foreign currency, there are 1-week, 28-day, and 12-month repo auctions in US dollars and euros (the possibility of holding 12-month repo auctions was suspended as of April 1, 2016); the BR applies the minimum interest rates on these operations. The spreads with respect to the LIBOR rate for 1-week and 28-day repo operations are 2 percentage points. The maximum debt of credit institutions to the BR under repo operations in foreign currency in 2020 was set on December 18, 2019, at the equivalent of US$15 billion. The BR has not performed the relevant operations since October 2017. As a result, no move has been made to replace LIBOR with SOFR or ESTR as a benchmark for determining the rate for the instrument.
Fixing	No.
Interbank market	Yes.	The interbank market operates on the Moscow Exchange Open Joint-Stock Company and over the counter. As of December 30, 2022, 49 credit institutions had claims in US dollars, euros and yuan under interbank loans, including repo operations; of which 22 credit institutions had claims in yuan, 38 credit institutions had outstanding debt under interbank loans, including repo, in US dollars and euros and yuan, of which 10 had outstanding debt in yuan. The number of credit institutions with dealer licenses as of January 1, 2022, was 182. The number of credit institutions with dealer licenses as of June 30, 2023, was 180.
Over the counter	Yes.	Almost the entire volume of unsecured interbank lending transactions is carried out through the OTC market, while repo transactions are for the most part conducted through an organized trading at the Moscow Exchange Public Joint-Stock Company (PJSC). The volume of repo transactions in foreign currency through the OTC market is small.
Brokerage	Yes.	As of September 30, 2023, the number of institutions with a broker license was 253.
Market making	Yes.	There were three institutions with market-making status in the foreign exchange market of the MMVB-RTS Moscow Stock Exchange Public Joint-Stock Company as of September 30, 2023: two credit institutions, one institution with a broker license.
Forward exchange market	Yes.	Forward transactions are concluded by authorized banks. Trading in futures contracts is performed in currency exchanges, with most trading concentrated in the Moscow Exchange Open Joint-Stock Company. The BR does not participate in the domestic currency derivatives market, but it uses swap operations as a tool to provide ruble and foreign exchange liquidity. Since February 25, 2022, the BR has not conducted “currency swap” operations to provide rubles or foreign

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.
Held domestically	Yes.	Residents may open foreign exchange accounts with authorized banks without restriction, unless otherwise stipulated by Federal Law No.173 of December 10, 2003 (as amended). Foreign exchange accounts for residents are opened, maintained, and closed following the same procedure as for domestic currency accounts opened by authorized banks on the basis of a bank account or deposit agreement. Accounts of residents in foreign currency opened with authorized banks may be used for any operations, with the exception of operations in foreign currency between residents that are not listed in Article 9 of Federal Law No. 173-FZ that contains the list of foreign currency operations that are permitted between residents. Residents are not required to submit documents to an authorized bank in accordance with BR Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017 (as amended), related to the performance of foreign exchange transactions under any contracts with nonresidents if the amount of obligations under them does not exceed, effective May 31, 2022, 600,000 rubles (previously 200,000 rubles). Effective February 28, 2022, credit institutions may open an account for a natural person without his/her personal presence (or that of a legal representative) in case of transfer by this natural person of funds from an account opened at one credit institution to another credit institution, if simultaneously with making such a transfer, the credit institution carrying out the transfer also transmits to the other credit organization information identifying the natural person. Effective March 1, 2022, during a calendar month, resident individuals may transfer no more than US$5,000 or an equivalent amount in another currency from their accounts with Russian banks to another individual abroad who is a resident (excluding resident relatives) or any nonresident. When money transfers are made through companies providing such services without opening an account, the monthly limit is also US$5,000 or an equivalent amount in foreign currency. Effective March 1, 2022, with respect to unfriendly countries, there is a ban on residents transferring foreign currency to their accounts opened with banks and other financial market organizations located outside the territory of Russia, as well as transferring funds without opening a bank account using electronic means of payment provided by foreign payment service providers. Effective March 9, 2022, banks may not charge fees on individuals for withdrawing foreign currency from deposits or accounts regardless of the currency of the account, or fees for foreign currency conversion into US dollars if the conversion is carried out for subsequent cash withdrawal. The measure was intended to be in effect until September 9, 2022. Effective September 10, 2022, the measure was extended until March 9, 2023. Effective March 10, 2023, the measure was extended until September 9, 2023. Effective September 10, 2023, the measure was extended until March 9, 2024.

Effective March 9, 2022, resident account holders of foreign currency accounts may withdraw up to US$10,000 in cash, and any amount above that may be withdrawn in rubles at the market rate on the day of withdrawal. The currency is issued in US dollars regardless of the currency of the accounts. Converting other currencies to US dollar takes place at the market rate on the day of issue. Residents may open new foreign currency accounts, but withdrawal from them is possible in rubles at the market rate on the day of withdrawal. Banks may not sell cash currency to citizens. Changing cash foreign currency for rubles may be done at any time and in any volume. The measure was intended to be in effect until September 9, 2022. Effective April 11, 2022, withdrawal from foreign currency accounts may be done not only in US dollars but also in euros. Effective April 18, 2022, banks may sell available foreign currency but only that obtained after April 9, 2022. Effective May 20, 2022, banks may sell any foreign currency cash to citizens without restrictions except US dollars and euros. Restrictions on the US dollar and the euro cash sales remain in force, and until September 9, 2022, citizens may buy only those US dollars and euros that have been received at banks' cash desks after April 9, 2022. Effective September 10, 2022, these measures were extended until March 9, 2023. Effective March 10, 2023, these measures were extended until September 9, 2023.

Effective March 12, 2022, for funds received as a transfer from a bank outside of Russia as well as for funds from electronic wallets, withdrawals are made exclusively in rubles. The conversion must be made at the banks' exchange rates and the amount paid may not be lower than the amount calculated as of the payment date at the BR official foreign currency exchange rates against the ruble for the conversion of other currencies. The measure was no longer in force effective September 10, 2022.

Effective July 5, 2022, the ban on residents crediting foreign currency to their accounts opened with banks and other financial market organizations located outside the territory of Russia applies only to foreign exchange and transfers of funds received as dividends on shares of Russian joint stock companies or as the distribution of profits of Russian limited liability companies, business partnerships, and production co-operatives.

Effective April 1, 2022, during a calendar month, resident individuals may transfer no more than US$10,000 or an equivalent amount in another currency from their accounts with Russian banks to their foreign accounts or to another individual abroad (resident or nonresident), resident individuals of friendly countries, and resident individuals of unfriendly countries who receive wages or payments for services in Russia. When money transfers are made through companies providing such services without opening an account, the monthly limit is US$5,000 or an equivalent amount in foreign currency.

Effective May 16, 2022, during a calendar month, residents of Russia and nonresidents from friendly countries may transfer no more than US$50,000 or an equivalent amount in another currency from their accounts with Russian banks to their foreign accounts or to another individual abroad (resident or nonresident). Resident individuals of friendly and unfriendly countries who receive wages or payments for services in Russia may transfer the total amount of their compensation through their account or without opening an account.

		When money transfers are made through companies providing such services without opening an account, the monthly limit is US$5,000 or an equivalent amount in foreign currency. Effective June 8, 2022, during a calendar month, Russian resident individuals may transfer up to US$150,000 or the equivalent in other foreign currencies from their Russian bank accounts to their accounts abroad or to another individual abroad (resident or nonresident). When money transfers are made through companies providing such services without opening an account, the monthly limit is US$10,000 or an equivalent amount in foreign currency. Effective July 1, 2022, during a calendar month, Russian resident individuals may transfer up to US$1 million or the equivalent in other foreign currencies from their Russian bank accounts to their accounts abroad or to another individual abroad (resident or nonresident). This measure was set to be in force until September 30, 2022. Effective October 1, 2022, it was extended until March 31, 2023. Effective April 1, 2023, this measure was extended until September 30, 2023. Effective October 1, 2023, this measure has been extended until March 31, 2024. Effective March 10, 2022, resident legal entities and individual proprietors may receive cash in US dollars, Japanese yen, British pounds, and euros in an amount not exceeding US$5,000 and only to cover expenses for foreign business trips. For any other currencies, they may receive cash on the grounds provided for by Russian laws, without any restrictions, at the market exchange rate on the withdrawal date. The measure was set to be in effect until September 9, 2022. Effective September 10, 2022, the measure was extended until March 9, 2023. Effective March 10, 2023, the measure was extended until September 9, 2023. Effective September 10, 2023, the measure was extended until March 9, 2024, but the US$5,000 limit was removed.
Approval required	No.
Held abroad	Yes.	Residents, except as indicated under Federal Law No. 79-FZ of May 7, 2013, on Prohibiting Certain Categories of Persons from Opening and Maintaining Accounts (Deposits) and Holding Cash and Valuables at Foreign Banks Located Outside the Territory of the Russian Federation and Holding and/or Using Foreign Financial Instruments (this law concerns government employees), may without restriction open accounts (deposits) in foreign currency and in rubles at banks and other financial market institutions located outside the territory of Russia, in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on behalf of a resident. Residents must notify the tax authorities where they are registered of the opening and closing of these accounts and of any change in account details no later than one month after opening or closing an account or a change in account details, and residents must also provide reports, on the movement of funds and other financial assets on accounts (deposits) at banks and other institutions in the financial market located outside the territory of Russia. If resident individuals are abroad for a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year, then they are exempted for the period of their stay abroad from submitting a notice to the tax authority. When returning to Russia (if the period of the stay abroad was less than a total of 183 days in a calendar year), such an individual must notify the tax authority of accounts abroad before June 1 of the year following the reporting year and must also submit to tax authorities with which he is registered reports on the movement of funds on accounts (deposits) at banks located outside Russia.

Transfers by resident legal entities of funds to their accounts with banks outside Russia from their accounts with authorized banks require, at the time of the first transfer, presentation to the authorized bank of the notification provided to the tax authority where the resident legal entity is registered and acknowledgment of receipt of that notification.

Resident authorized banks licensed to engage in ruble and foreign exchange transactions may maintain correspondent accounts with nonresident banks. They may also open accounts with nonresident banks to service the activities of their representative offices abroad, subject to notification requirements. Foreign branches of authorized banks may freely maintain accounts with nonresident banks subject to the permission of the parent bank.

Pursuant to Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017, on Amending Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation, two types of banks were defined: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license is not permitted to open bank (correspondent) accounts at foreign banks, with the exception of the opening of an account at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to provide loans to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals subject to the private law of a foreign state (Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017). A bank with a universal license that has obtained the status of a bank with a basic license or that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, or a bank with a basic license that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, is required to abrogate a bank (correspondent) account agreement with a foreign bank within one year of the date such status is acquired. This restriction does not apply to cases in which an account is opened at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system.
The crediting of funds to accounts (deposits) of residents opened at financial market institutions and the debiting of funds from such accounts (deposits) are performed in all cases without restriction.

Residents may transfer to their accounts with banks outside Russia funds from their accounts with authorized banks or from other accounts with banks abroad. Any types of foreign exchange transactions on accounts (deposits) opened with banks abroad are allowed between residents that stay outside the territory of Russia for a total of more than 183 days in a calendar year.

Residents' accounts at banks outside Russia may be credited with: (1) interest earned on the balance of such accounts; (2) a minimum deposit required by the rules of the respective bank when opening an account (deposit); (3) cash placed in an account (deposit); (4) funds received as a result of conversion operations using funds credited to such accounts (deposits); (5) taxes refunded by competent authorities

Approval required	No.
Accounts in domestic currency held abroad	Yes.	Residents have the right to open accounts (deposits) in rubles at banks and other financial market institutions abroad in accordance with the private law of such institutions that have the right to provide services related to the attraction from residents and placement of funds or other financial assets for safekeeping, management, investment, and/or the performance of other transactions in the interests of a resident or directly or indirectly on the account of a resident, without limitation. Exceptions are established by Federal Law No. 79-FZ of May 7, 2013, on Prohibiting Certain Categories of Persons from Opening and Maintaining Accounts (Deposits) and Holding Cash and Valuables at Foreign Banks Located Outside the Territory of the Russian Federation, and Holding and/or Using Foreign Financial Instruments (as amended). The procedure for opening a ruble account by residents at banks abroad and the grounds for the performance of foreign currency operations on these accounts are the same as those established for accounts (deposits) in foreign currency opened by residents at banks abroad.
Accounts in domestic currency convertible into foreign currency	Yes.

Nonresident Accounts

Foreign exchange accounts permitted	Yes.	Nonresidents have the right to open bank accounts (bank deposits) in foreign currency only at authorized banks within Russia. They may carry out any operations on their accounts in foreign currency and in Russian rubles. Nonresidents have the right without restriction to transfer foreign currency from their bank accounts (bank deposits) at authorized banks to their own accounts (deposits) at banks abroad. The requirements of Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, apply to nonresidents except individuals only with regard to their presentation to an authorized bank of the settlement document for the given operation when performing an operation that involves the debiting of rubles from their bank account (with the exception of cases referred to in paragraphs 2 through 6 of Item 2.18 of Instruction No. 181-I); the document must contain in the entry "Purpose of payment" the code for the type of operation, which corresponds to the name of the operation indicated in Annex 1 to Instruction No. 181-I. Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017, on Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation, defined two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license is not permitted to open bank (correspondent) accounts at foreign banks, with the exception of the opening of an account at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to provide loans to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals subject to the private law of a foreign state (Federal Law No. 92-FZ of May 1, 2017).

Imports and Import Payments

Foreign exchange budget	No.
Financing requirements for imports	Yes.
Minimum financing requirements	No.
Advance payment requirements	Yes.	The requirement concerning the importation of goods into Russia after a resident has made an advance payment for imports within the deadline established by a foreign trade agreement (contract) is provided for by the foreign exchange legislation of Russia. Thus, when performing foreign trade activity residents are required, within the deadlines specified by foreign trade agreements (contracts), to either import the goods into Russia or provide for the return to Russia of the funds paid to nonresidents as an advance payment. When performing foreign trade activity residents are required to provide information to authorized banks about the deadlines for nonresidents' fulfillment of obligations under foreign trade agreements (contracts) through the transfer of goods to residents based on the advance payments made by the residents, and the deadlines for the return of said advance payments in accordance with the terms of the foreign trade agreements (contracts). In the event that goods are not imported into Russia and an advance payment is not returned, this information is forwarded by the authorized bank to the foreign exchange control body (the Russian Federal Customs Service), which applies administrative enforcement measures against the resident for violation of the repatriation requirement. Effective March 27, 2022, advance payment by residents (with the exception of individuals who are not individual entrepreneurs, Russian credit institutions, the state development corporation) in favor of nonresident legal entities and individuals is carried out within 30% of the amount of obligations stipulated under contracts for the provision of services by a nonresident, and contracts the terms of which provide for the performance of work by a nonresident, the transfer by a nonresident of information, the results of intellectual activity, including exclusive rights to them, subject to certain exceptions. Effective April 2, 2022, the 30% limit on advance payments was removed for some contracts amounting to less than $15,000 made with nonresidents, including for delivery of services, performance of work, transfer of information and copyright products, services rendered under foreign trade agreements related to goods transportation, other transport services, logistics, and use of transport infrastructure. Effective April 16, 2022, the 30% limit on advance payments was removed for foreign trade contracts for the provision of travel, building and equipment renovation, and maintenance services, for exhibition services provided by nonresidents from friendly countries or for nonresidents' services in organizing exhibitions, fairs, and congresses in friendly countries. Effective July 20, 2022, the 30% limit on advance payments in favor of nonresident banks under import contracts for providing services, performing works, and transferring intellectual property in force since April 2022, was removed. Effective August 8, 2022, the requirement to repatriate the funds paid to nonresidents in the form of advance payment for non-imported goods is not applied.

Advance import deposits	No.
Documentation requirements for release of foreign exchange for imports	Yes.
Domiciliation requirements	No.
Preshipment inspection	No.
Letters of credit	No.
Import licenses used as exchange licenses	No.
Other	Yes.	Residents are not required to submit documents to an authorized bank related to the performance of foreign exchange transactions under any contracts with nonresidents if the amount of obligations under them does not exceed, effective May 31, 2022, 600,000 rubles (previously 200,000 rubles). In the case of a contract that contains obligations exceeding the equivalent of 600,000 rubles but not exceeding the equivalent of 3,000,000 rubles, when debiting foreign currency from its account a resident must submit to an authorized bank documents related to the performance of the transaction, together with the order to debit the foreign currency. In the case of an import contract containing obligations equal to or greater than the equivalent of 3,000,000 rubles, a resident must register the contract with an authorized bank. The following are subject to registration with an authorized bank: (1) agreements, including agency agreements, commission agreements, and trust agreements providing for the importation of goods into Russia in the performance of foreign trade activity; (2) agreements providing for the purchase and/or performance of services related to the purchase within Russia (or outside Russia) of fuel and lubricants (bunker fuel), food, material and technical supplies, and other goods (with the exception of spare parts and equipment) necessary to ensure the operation and maintenance of vehicles, regardless of their type and purpose, en route or at intermediate stopping points or parking areas; (3) agreements, including agency agreements, commission agreements, and trust agreements, with the exception of agreements referred to under Points (1), (2), and (4), which provide for the performance of work, delivery of services, or the transfer of information and intellectual property, including exclusive rights thereto; and (4) agreements providing for the transfer of movable and/or real property under a rental agreement or financial lease agreements (leasing). To register a contract, a resident importer must present to an authorized bank an import contract (excerpt from a contract) containing information needed by the authorized bank for registration of the contract and the performance of foreign exchange control, including oversight of the resident's compliance with repatriation requirements, as well as other information needed by the authorized bank.

Import licenses and other nontariff measures	Yes.	Russia, the Republic of Armenia, the Republic of Kazakhstan, the Kyrgyz Republic, the Republic of Belarus are parties to the Treaty on the EAEU of May 29, 2014 (Treaty). In accordance with Article 46 of the Treaty, when conducting trade with third countries, the EAEU applies the following unified measures of non-tariff regulation: (1) a ban on the import and (or) export of goods; (2) quantitative restrictions (quotas) on the import and (or) export of goods; (3) the exclusive right on the basis of an exclusive license to export and (or) import goods; (4) automatic licensing (monitoring) of exports and (or) imports of goods (automatic licensing (monitoring) is a temporary measure introduced to monitor the changes in the export and (or) import of certain types of goods); (5) authorization procedure for the import and (or) export of goods (authorization procedure for the import and (or) export of goods is implemented through the introduction of licensing or the application of other administrative measures for regulating foreign trade activities). Non-tariff regulation measures are introduced and applied on the basis of the principles of transparency and non-discrimination in accordance with Appendix No. 7 to the Treaty (Protocol on Non-Tariff Regulation Measures in Relation to Third Countries) which defines the grounds for the introduction of non-tariff regulation measures, the nature of non-tariff regulation measures, and describes the procedure for introducing such measures. In accordance with Appendix No. 7, Russia may apply unilateral measures of non-tariff regulation in the manner and on the grounds specified in Appendix No. 7. The Decision of the Eurasian Economic Commission (EEC) Board No. 30 of April 21, 2015, on measures of non-tariff regulation, established the authorization procedure for the import into the customs territory of the EAEU of the following goods included in the list provided for in Appendix No. 2: (1) ozone-depleting substances; (2) plant protection products (pesticides); (3) hazardous waste; (4) precious stones; (5) precious metals and commodities containing precious metals; (6) narcotic drugs, psychotropic substances, and their precursors; (7) poisonous substances that are not precursors of narcotic drugs and psychotropic substances;

		(8) medicines; (9) radio electronic means and (or) high-frequency devices for civil purposes, including those incorporated or included in other goods; (10) special technical means designed to secretly obtain information; (11) encryption (cryptographic) tools; (12) human organs and tissues, blood and its components, samples of human biological materials. The concept of "open general license" is not established by the law of the EAEU. Appendix No. 7 to the Treaty establishes the following concepts: (1) general license – a license that grants a participant in foreign trade activities the right to export and (or) import a certain type of licensed product in the quantity specified by the license; (2) single license – a license issued to a participant in foreign trade activities on the basis of a foreign trade transaction involving a licensed product, and granting the right to export and (or) import a certain quantity of this product; (3) exclusive license – a license that grants a participant in foreign trade activities the exclusive right to export and (or) import a particular type of product.
Positive list	No.
Negative list	Yes.	Appendix No. 1 to the Decision of the EEC Board No. 30 of April 21, 2015, on measures of non-tariff regulation contains a list of goods which are banned for import into the customs territory of the EAEU and (or) export from the customs territory of the EAEU, including: (1) ozone-depleting substances and products containing ozone-depleting substances prohibited for import and export; (2) hazardous waste prohibited for import; (3) information on printed, audiovisual, and other information media prohibited for import and export; (4) plant protection products and other persistent organic pollutants prohibited for import; (5) service and civilian weapons, their main parts and cartridges for them, prohibited for import and (or) export; (6) tools for the extraction (catching) of aquatic biological resources prohibited for import; (7) products from harp seals and harp seal pups prohibited for import; (8) live sables prohibited for export; (9) effective July 22, 2023, whales, dolphins, and porpoises (mammals of the order Cetacea) prohibited for export.
Open general licenses	No.
Licenses with quotas	Yes.	Licenses are issued within the framework of establishing import quotas for substances that deplete the ozone layer. In 2022, the permitted volume of Russia's consumption of substances included in sublist F of the list of substances that deplete the ozone layer, in pure form and in mixtures, is 46,292,794 tons of CO2 equivalent.
Other nontariff measures	No.
Import taxes and/or tariffs	Yes.	Import customs duties are contained in the Common Customs Tariff of the Eurasian Economic Union (EAEU CCT), which is approved by the EEC. The structure of the EAEU CCT is as follows: import duty rates below 10% make up about 47% of the total number of EAEU CCT items (there are more than 13,000 10-digit items in the EAET CCT); rates ranging from 10 to 20% make up about 30%; rates from 20 to 50% make up about 2%; rates higher than 50% make up about 1%; and zero duty rates make up about 17%.

The EEC also establishes tariff incentives in the form of exemption from payment of import duties when certain goods are imported into the customs territory of the EAEU.
The EEC also approves the rates of import customs duties for certain types of goods originating from the Socialist Republic of Vietnam, the Republic of Serbia, and the Islamic Republic of Iran, in accordance with bilateral international agreements between the EAEU and these countries.
Imports of certain types of goods originating from the developing countries included in the list of developing countries-users of the unified system of tariff preferences of the EAEU are subject to a customs duty at a level of 75% from the applicable rate.
Imports of certain types of goods originating from the least developed countries included in the list of least developed countries-users of the EAEU unified system of tariff preferences are subject to zero customs duty. The lists of goods originating from developing countries or from the least developed countries that receive tariff preferences when imported into the customs territory of the EAEU are approved by the EEC.
As a temporary measure, effective December 15, 2022 (for certain goods effective August 1, 2023), until December 31, 2023, Russia introduced increased rates of import customs duties on certain categories of perfumes and cosmetics, weapons, their parts and ammunition, wine, glycerin, etc., originating from unfriendly states.

institutions and their branches located outside the territory of Russia, under education contracts with nonresident individuals that provide for the delivery of educational services outside the territory of Russia; (10) in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks in the form of insurance payments from resident insurance companies under insurance contracts to cover the risk of default by a nonresident on obligations under foreign trade export contracts; (11) in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks under a bank guarantee issued to nonresidents in favor of residents to secure fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade contract.

The foreign currency credited in accordance with Items (1) and (3) above to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents' obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts with authorized banks.

In connection with the easing of liability measures with respect to participants in foreign economic activity for violation of the repatriation requirement, which reduces the number of grounds on which residents may face administrative liability, residents may credit to foreign accounts funds from nonresidents that are subject to repatriation to an account with an authorized bank on the condition that these funds are subsequently transferred within 45 days to an account at an authorized bank.

Residents fulfill the repatriation requirement if they have arranged for: (1) receipt in their bank account of payment under a contract insuring against a nonresident's failure to fulfill obligations under a foreign trade contract as specified in Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity, for activities related to insuring export loans and investments against business and/or political risks, provided the ratio in the insurance contract between the insurance amount and the insured value (level of indemnification) equals or exceeds the value established by law; (2) receipt in their bank accounts opened at authorized banks and/or bank accounts that have been opened at authorized banks by a resident who is the beneficiary, of foreign currency or Russian currency under a transaction ensuring the fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade agreement (contract) and provided for by the procedure established by the Russian government in accordance with Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for the performance of activities related to insuring and securing export credits and investments against business and/or political risks, on the condition that the monetary amount received is equal to or greater than the value established by said procedure, in line with the procedure and deadlines provided for by the relevant transaction.

A resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of Russia or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds. Foreign exchange operations related to settlements in foreign currency within the framework of financing agreements concluded between residents against the assignment of a monetary claim (factoring), under which monetary claims in foreign currency or rubles owed to residents by nonresidents on foreign trade contracts are assigned to residents who are financial agents (factors), are performed without restriction. For the purpose of ensuring compliance with the obligation on the part of residents to repatriate funds when performing foreign trade activity, a resident who has entered into a foreign trade contract with a nonresident and who has assigned the monetary claim under the contract to a resident factor, is required to ensure that funds are received from the nonresident according to the general rule – within the time period specified by the foreign trade contract. Monitoring of residents' compliance with the repatriation requirement is carried out within the framework of monitoring performed in accordance with BR Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, on the Procedure for the Submission of Supporting Documents and Information by Residents and Nonresidents to Authorized Banks in the Performance of Foreign Exchange Operations, on Standard Accounting and Reporting Forms for Foreign Exchange Operations, and the Procedure and Deadlines for their Submission. Effective July 9, 2022, resident exporters were exempt from the requirement to repatriate foreign currency. The full amount of foreign currency earnings under export contracts may be put in accounts abroad without the obligation to subsequently transfer them to a Russian bank account. Effective August 8, 2022, the requirement to repatriate foreign currency and the currency of Russia when carrying out foreign trade activities and (or) when providing and repaying loans by Russian legal entities and individual entrepreneurs is not applied (parts 1 and 2 of Article 19 of Federal Law No. 173-FZ were temporarily suspended).

Repatriation requirements	Yes.	In the case of foreign trade contracts for raw materials exports (with the exception of timber and timber materials, as well as contracts concluded by budget organizations), the lifting of the repatriation requirement for Russian currency is scheduled to take place in several stages from January 1, 2020, to January 1, 2024: on January 1, 2020 – applicable to 10% of the contract amount; on January 1, 2021 – applicable to 30% of the contract amount; effective January 1, 2022 – applicable to 50% of the contract amount; effective January 1, 2023 – applicable to 70% of the contract amount; as of January 1, 2024 – applicable to the entire contract amount. Under contracts for which the repatriation requirement has been lifted, export earnings may be posted without restriction to residents' accounts opened at banks outside Russia, and there are no restrictions on the methods for fulfillment or termination of obligations under such contracts. In other cases, when performing foreign trade activity (under in the gaseous state across the territory of foreign states; (8) when counterclaims on obligations arising from agreements on the provision of international telecommunications services, including international roaming services, are offset between a nonresident and a resident that are international telecommunications operators, including situations in which settlements between them are performed through specialized settlement organizations registered within member states of the International Telecommunication Union; and (9) when foreign currency or currency of Russia is credited to accounts opened at banks located outside the territory of Russia by Russian public higher education institutions and their branches located outside the territory of Russia, under education contracts with nonresident individuals that provide for the delivery of educational services outside the territory of Russia; (10) in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks in the form of insurance payments from resident insurance companies under insurance contracts to cover the risk of default by a nonresident on obligations under foreign trade export contracts; (11) in the event of the posting of funds to their own accounts at authorized banks under a bank guarantee issued to nonresidents in favor of residents to secure fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade contract.

The foreign currency credited in accordance with Items (1) and (3) to the accounts of residents or third parties with banks abroad must be used to meet the residents' obligations as specified under said items or transferred to accounts with authorized banks.

In connection with the easing of liability measures with respect to participants in foreign economic activity for violation of the repatriation requirement, which reduces the number of grounds on which residents may face administrative liability, residents may credit to foreign accounts funds from nonresidents that are subject to repatriation to an account with an authorized bank on the condition that these funds are subsequently transferred within 45 days to an account at an authorized bank.

Residents fulfill the repatriation requirement if they have arranged for (1) receipt in their bank account of payment under a contract insuring against a nonresident's failure to fulfill obligations under a foreign trade contract as specified in Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for activities related to insuring export loans and investments against business and/or political risks, provided the ratio in the insurance contract between the insurance amount and the insured value (level of indemnification) equals or exceeds the value established by law; (2) receipt in their bank accounts opened at authorized banks and/or bank accounts that have been opened at authorized banks by a resident who is the beneficiary, of foreign currency or Russian currency under a transaction ensuring the fulfillment of a nonresident's obligations under a foreign trade agreement (contract) and provided for by the procedure established by the Russian government in accordance with Federal Law No. 164-FZ of December 8, 2003, on the Principles of Government Regulation of Foreign Trade Activity for the performance of activities related to insuring and securing export credits and investments against business and/or political risks, on the condition that the monetary amount received is equal to or greater than the value established by said procedure, in line with the procedure and deadlines provided for by the relevant transaction.

A resident who is a recipient of funds in accordance with the terms of a transferable letter of credit, when performing settlements under a foreign trade agreement (contract) concluded with a nonresident for goods transferred to the nonresident, work performed for him, services provided to him, information and intellectual property transferred to him, including exclusive rights thereto, is considered to have fulfilled the repatriation requirement if he has ensured, within the deadlines specified by the given agreement (contract), in accordance with the terms of the transferable letter of credit from a bank located outside the territory of Russia or from the authorized bank to which the instruction was given to transfer the transferable letter of credit (the executing bank), the receipt of foreign currency and/or Russian currency in his bank accounts at authorized banks and/or in bank accounts at authorized banks of the second resident recipient of funds (or second resident recipients of funds) to whom the execution of the transferable letter of credit is to be performed in accordance with the terms of the agreement concluded between the resident recipient of the funds and the second recipient(s) of the funds.

Foreign exchange operations related to settlements in foreign currency within the framework of financing agreements concluded between residents against the assignment of a monetary claim (factoring), under which monetary claims in foreign currency or the currency of Russia owed to residents by nonresidents on foreign trade contracts are assigned to residents who are financial agents (factors), are performed without restriction. For the purpose of ensuring compliance with the obligation on the part of residents to repatriate funds when performing foreign trade activity, a resident who has entered into a foreign trade contract with a nonresident and who has assigned the monetary claim under the contract to a resident factor, is required to ensure that funds are received from the nonresident according to the general rule – within the time period specified by the foreign trade contract. Monitoring of residents' compliance with the repatriation requirement is carried out within the framework of monitoring in accordance with BR Instruction No. 181-I of August 16, 2017, on the Procedure for the Submission of Supporting Documents and Information by Residents and Nonresidents to Authorized Banks in the Performance of Foreign Exchange Operations, on Standard Accounting and Reporting Forms for Foreign Exchange Operations, and the Procedure and Deadlines for their Submission.

Effective July 9, 2022, resident exporters are exempt from the requirement to repatriate foreign currency. The full amount of foreign currency earnings under export contracts may be put in accounts abroad without the obligation to subsequently transfer them to a Russian bank account.
Effective August 8, 2022, the requirement to repatriate foreign currency and the currency of Russia when carrying out foreign trade activities and (or) when providing and repaying loans by Russian legal entities and individual entrepreneurs is not applied (parts 1 and 2 of Article 19 of Federal Law No. 173-FZ were suspended).

The level of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of foreign investments of nonresidents in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations to the total authorized capital of said credit institutions. The calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations does not include foreign investments: (1) made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and financed by the profits earned by said credit institutions in Russia or repatriated to Russia from abroad; (2) made by credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that are subsidiaries of foreign banks in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations; (3) made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations; (4) made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that were privatized after August 22, 2012; (5) representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations and made after January 1, 2007, provided these shares (equity stakes) have been owned by the investor for 12 years or more, unless the BR has made a decision on expiration of said period to continue including said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption of said decision by the BR and for its publication is established by the BR.

The amount of participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it has established as of January 1 of each year. Information about the amount of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and the indicators used to calculate it are published in the Bulletin of the BR, the official publication of the BR, and they are also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year.

For the purposes of said federal law, a quota is understood to mean the maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, which is set at 50%.

When a quota is reached, the BR takes the following steps with respect to foreign investments:
(1) it refuses to register the credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a license to perform banking operations;
(2) it prohibits any increase in the authorized capital of the credit institution with foreign investments at the expense of nonresidents' funds and the transfer of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution to nonresidents if the quota will be exceeded as a result of these actions.

Shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution that are transferred (sold) in violation of such a prohibition are not voting shares and are not taken into consideration when determining a quorum at a general meeting of the credit institution's shareholders (stakeholders) during the period that the prohibition is in effect. In the event of the performance of a transaction (or transactions) to transfer (purchase) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of said prohibition, the BR files suit to declare the relevant transaction(s) null and void.

The measures provided for under Article 18, part 6, of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking do not apply to foreign investments referred to under paragraphs 1 and 2 of part 2 of said article. The measures provided for under paragraph 2 of part 6 of said article do not apply to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of Russia.

The BR terminates the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the total authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.

The BR is required to publish information about the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article, the reasons for the application of such measures, and termination of the application of such measures in the Bulletin of the BR, the official publication of the BR, and also to post it on the official website of the BR.

The procedure for the application and termination of the application of measures provided for under part 6 of said article, and the procedure for the disclosure of information about the application, the reasons for the application, and termination of the application of these measures are established by regulatory acts of the BR.

Unless otherwise provided for by international agreements of Russia, the BR has the right, in consultation with the Russian government, to establish restrictions on credit institutions with foreign investments with regard to the performance of banking operations, if restrictions are applied to banks with Russian investments and branches of Russian banks in the respective foreign states with regard to their creation and activities.

The BR has the right, following the procedure established in the Federal Law on the Central Bank of the Russian Federation, to establish additional requirements for credit institutions with foreign investments in terms of their reporting procedures, approval of management personnel, and the list of banking operations performed.

The quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies is calculated by the BR as of January 1 following the procedure established by BR Directive No. 5878-U of August 5, 2021.
Insurance companies must obtain prior authorization of the BR for:
(1) an increase in the size of their authorized capital at the expense of funds from foreign investors;
(2) a transfer of their shares (equity stakes in their authorized capital) to foreign investors (including their sale to foreign investors).
Russian shareholders (partners) must obtain prior approval of the insurance supervisory authority for the transfer of shares (equity stakes in the authorized capital) of an insurance company held by them to foreign investors.

If the quota for the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%, the insurance supervisory authority will deny prior authorization (Article 6, Paragraph 3.1, Subparagraph 5 of the Law of the Russian Federation No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

An insurance company that is a subsidiary of a foreign investor (a parent company) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%, which has obtained a license to perform insurance activities after August 22, 2012, has the right to perform insurance activities in Russia if the foreign investor (parent company) has been an insurance company doing business in accordance with the legislation of the relevant state for at least five years (Article 6 of Russian Federation Law No. 4015-1 of November 27, 1992, on the Organization of the Insurance Business in the Russian Federation).

Federal Law No. 343-FZ of July 2, 2021, defines conditions for the separate capitalization (a guarantee deposit) of a branch of a foreign insurance company.

Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities in

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

Russia are performed under requirements set out in the antimonopoly law, the securities market law, and the Federal Law of November 21, 2011, No. 325-FZ, on organized trading.

Transactions resulting in control by a foreign investor or group of persons over business entities that are of strategic significance (that is, defense and state security) are subject to approval by the federal executive body authorized to carry out control functions over foreign investments in Russia.

Securities market law does not provide for special types of control of transactions between nonresidents involving domestic securities.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is required in the event of the acquisition by a legal entity or individual or group of individuals, defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, through the performance of one or several transactions, including those in the secondary market, of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) (including those acquired previously) in a credit institution, private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) over shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution (private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) that hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in said organization (and also with respect to a person acquiring more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in a credit organization).

Effective February 28, 2022, the BR issued a temporary ban for brokerage companies to satisfy requests by foreign investors for the sale of securities. Furthermore, the payment of dividends to nonresidents was banned.

Effective March 1, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 81, a special procedure was established for performing transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of securities carried out with persons of unfriendly states. Such transactions may be performed based on a permit granted by the BR on approval of the MOF. This replaced the ban for brokerage firms, and it is no longer in force.

Effective May 4, 2022, the special procedure established by Presidential Decree No. 81 of March 1, 2022, is not applied to (1) transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of shares or bonds of Russian legal entities and of which an entity from an unfriendly state is a party, and which are part of the same group of entities with Russian legal entities on the grounds provided for in paragraph 1 of part 1 of Article 9 Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, provided the payment for the shares or bonds is made in rubles, and (2) transactions that give rise to ownership of additional shares of Russian legal entities by foreigners related to unfriendly states, provided such foreign entities do not acquire the right to directly or indirectly dispose of more than 25% of the shares of a Russian legal entity.

Effective August 5, 2022, a ban was imposed until December 31, 2022, on transactions that directly and/or indirectly entail the establishment, change, termination or encumbrance of the rights of possession, and use and/or disposal of shares of Russian legal entities if these securities are owned by foreigners related to unfriendly

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of shares or other equity securities by nonresidents. Specific aspects of the placement and trading of securities of foreign issuers in Russia are governed by the law on the securities market (specifically Article 51.1 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market), according to which: (1) Foreign financial instruments may be traded in Russia as securities of foreign issuers, provided the following conditions are met simultaneously: (a) the foreign financial instruments are assigned an international securities identification code (number) and an international financial instrument classification code and (b) the foreign financial instruments are classified as securities following the procedure established by the BR. (2) Securities of foreign issuers that meet the requirements of Paragraph 1 may be placed and/or publicly traded in Russia if the issuers are: (a) foreign entities established in countries that are OECD members, members or observers of the FATF, and/or members of the Committee of Experts on the Evaluation of Anti-Money-Laundering Measures and the Financing of Terrorism of the Council of Europe (MONEYVAL), and/or members of the Common Economic Space; (b) foreign entities established in countries that have the relevant agencies (relevant organizations) with which the federal executive agency responsible for the securities market has a cooperation agreement; (c) international financial institutions included in a list approved by the Russian government; (d) the foreign governments indicated in Points (a) and (b) and those countries' autonomous CBs and administrative–territorial units; and (e) foreign organizations whose securities are listed on a foreign stock exchange that meets the criteria established by the BR in accordance with paragraph 4, Article 51.1. (3) Foreign issuers' securities may be placed in Russia by a decision of the BR, provided the prospectus for these securities is registered by the BR. (4) Foreign issuers' securities that meet the requirements of paragraphs 1 and 2 of Article 51.1 may be traded publicly in Russia based on a decision by a Russian exchange allowing for their organized trading. Such a decision may be made by a Russian exchange if the securities, other than securities of international financial institutions, are listed on a foreign exchange that meets the criteria established by the BR and no restrictions on the securities have been established by Russian law or international law. (5) International financial institutions' securities may be publicly placed and/or traded in Russia, provided the conditions for the trading of these securities do not contain any restrictions regarding their trading among an unrestricted group of persons and/or the offering of the securities to an unrestricted group of persons. Effective February 28, 2022, the BR issued a temporary ban for brokerage companies, to satisfy requests by foreign investors for the sale of securities. Furthermore, the payment of coupons to nonresidents was banned. Effective March 1, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 81, a special procedure was established for performing transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of securities carried out with persons of unfriendly states. Such transactions may be performed based on a permit granted by the BR on approval of the MOF. This replaced the ban for brokerage firms, and it is no longer in force. Effective May 4, 2022, the special procedure established by Presidential Decree No. 81 of March 1, 2022, is not applied to (1) transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of shares or bonds of Russian legal entities and of which an entity from an unfriendly state is a party, and which are part of the same group of entities with Russian legal entities on the grounds provided for in paragraph 1 of part 1 of Article 9 Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, provided the payment for the shares or bonds is made in rubles, and (2) transactions that give rise to ownership of additional shares of Russian legal entities by foreigners related to unfriendly states, provided such foreign entities do not acquire the right to directly or indirectly dispose of more than 25% of the shares of a Russian legal entity.

Effective August 5, 2022, a ban was imposed until December 31, 2022, on transactions that directly and/or indirectly entail the establishment, change, termination or encumbrance of the rights of possession, and use and/or disposal of shares of Russian legal entities if these securities are owned by foreigners related to unfriendly states.

Purchase abroad by residents — Yes. The foreign exchange legislation does not prohibit the purchase abroad of shares or other equity securities by residents.

There are certain restrictions: (1) the share of securities of foreign issuers and Russian depositary receipts in the composition of the aggregated investment portfolio consisting of funds intended for housing for military personnel may not exceed 30% (Federal Law No. 117-FZ of August 20, 2004, on the Mortgage Savings System to Provide Housing for Military Personnel); (2) nonstate pension funds that carry out compulsory pension insurance (a) may have assets in foreign currency in their portfolios in an amount not exceeding 30% of the value of the investment portfolio and (b) may have securities of international financial organizations, as well as units (stocks, shares) of foreign index investment funds (including securities receivables and/or securities to be transferred during the second part of the repo transaction) if the share of such instruments does not exceed 20% of the value of the investment portfolio (BR Regulation No. 580-P of March 1, 2017); and (3) the total share of bonds of foreign governments, securities of international financial organizations, shares and bonds of foreign issuers, and units (shares) of foreign investment funds in pension reserves cannot exceed 30% (BR Directive No. 5343-U of December 5, 2019).

BR Regulation No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers became effective January 1, 2023. In addition to insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), Regulation No. 781-P also takes into account the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. An assessment of the impact of risks is performed for a one-year horizon, and it is estimated as the aggregate impact of concentration risk, the risk of a change in the credit spread, the risk of a change in interest rates, the risk of a change in share value, the risk of a change in the foreign exchange rate, the risk of a change in real estate prices, credit risk, and the risk of a change in prices for other assets.

According to Paragraph 2.2. of Regulation No. 781-P, target assets for investment in the case of the equity of an insurance company and insurance reserve funds of insurers must meet the following requirements:
2.2.1. The issuers of the securities must be created in accordance with the legislation of Russia or foreign states that are members of the EAEU, the OECD, or the European Union, or China, India, Brazil, or South Africa;

2.2.2. The items, other than certificated bonds and shares, must be located (physically held) within Russia.

Regulation No. 781-P does not impose any other restrictions on the purchase of the overseas assets by insurance organizations. As long as the insurer complies with the regulatory capital to incurred liabilities ratio, it is entitled to invest in any assets.

Effective January 1, 2023, in line with the decision by the Board of Directors of the BR, the value of shares and bonds, units of foreign investment funds that are issued by (or make liable) a resident of a non-friendly country, not accounted for as part of the insurer's assets as of February 25, 2022, as well as claims to residents of non-friendly countries (except for the reinsurers' share in reserves) are recognized as equal to zero in determining the value of assets of the insurer that made a decision to pay dividends after January 1, 2023. If the insurer has not decided to pay dividends after January 1, 2023, it will amortize the value of the above assets over 10 years. The policy is set forth in the regulation on a permanent basis in the BR's Directive No. 6513-U of August 21, 2023, on Amendments to the Regulation of the BR No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers.

There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license.

Article 24 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking states that banks with a basic license have the right to perform operations and transactions, including those involving acquisition, only with securities listed on the first (highest) list of a trading organizer in whose capital the BR holds a stake, and securities that meet the requirements of the BR established in Directive No. 4979-U. Taking into consideration the requirements for the listing of securities on the first (highest) list established by Regulation No. 534-P and the stock exchange, securities of foreign issuers as well as securities denominated in foreign currency may be included in the list.

This law does not impose restrictions on: (1) the composition of counterparties of banks with a basic license in transactions with such securities, including those based on the private law of counterparties (other than transactions in which banks with a basic license act as creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange.
Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision.

Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries within the territory of a foreign state with the permission of the BR and in accordance with its requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary within the territory of a foreign state. General licenses to perform banking operations issued before June 1, 2017, remain in effect until they are replaced following the established procedure.

The BR does not issue permits to establish a subsidiary in states (territories) that are classified according to the procedure defined by

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

		Russian law as states (territories) that do not participate in international cooperation in combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism. Effective March 18, 2022, and until May 31, 2022, residents were prohibited from carrying out the following transactions without obtaining permits from the BR: (1) payment for a stake, contribution, unit in the property (authorized or share capital, share fund of a cooperative) of a nonresident legal entity; and (2) contribution to a nonresident under a simple partnership agreement with investment in the form of capital investments (joint activity agreement). Effective April 1, 2022, approval is not required if payment is made to a company from a friendly state and the payment is made in the currency of the friendly state or in rubles in an amount not to exceed 10 million rubles or an equivalent amount in foreign currency. Effective June 1, 2022, the BR granted all residents the right to pay in the currency of friendly states and rubles for stakes, contributions and units in the property of nonresidents, as well as to make a contribution to nonresidents under a simple partnership agreement without prior obtaining individual permits from the BR regardless of the amount. If the payment is made in the currency of unfriendly states, the sum is limited to an equivalent of 15 million rubles.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The foreign exchange law does not prohibit the sale or issuance abroad of shares or other equity securities by residents. Under the law on the securities market, the placement and trading of securities of Russian issuers abroad require authorization by the BR.
Bonds or other debt securities	Yes.	Rules similar to the rules governing transactions with shares or other equity securities apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	There are no restrictions on purchases of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents from nonresidents or residents. Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities must adhere to the requirements of the antimonopoly law and the securities market law. Effective February 28, 2022, the BR issued a temporary ban for brokerage companies, to satisfy requests by foreign investors for the sale of securities. Furthermore, the payment of coupons to nonresidents was banned. Effective March 1, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 81, a special procedure was established for performing transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of securities carried out with persons of unfriendly states. Such transactions may be performed based on a permit granted by the BR on approval of the MOF. This replaced the ban for brokerage firms, and it is no longer in force. Effective May 4, 2022, the special procedure established by Presidential Decree No. 81 of March 1, 2022, is not applied to transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of shares or bonds of Russian legal entities and of which an entity from an unfriendly state is a party, and which are part of the same group of entities with Russian legal entities on the grounds provided for in paragraph 1 of part 1 of Article 9 Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, provided the payment for the shares or bonds is made in rubles. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 95 on the temporary procedure for fulfilling obligations to certain foreign creditors, debt repayment to nonresidents from unfriendly countries is done in rubles. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Executive Order No. 95, of March 5, 2022, on debt repayment, (1) creditors who are residents of Russia and creditors from countries that have not joined sanctions against Russia may receive repayments on Russian residents' current debt obligations within the respective periods in rubles in the amount of the ruble equivalent at the exchange rate as of the moment of the repayment or, provided there is a special permit, in the currency of the debt. The Executive Order does not restrict the use of rubles received by creditors, including with regard to foreign exchange transactions. (2) Ruble repayments on debt obligations to creditors from the countries that have imposed sanctions against Russia will be credited into C-type accounts opened with Russian and foreign credit institutions. Effective June 22, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 394, payment on foreign currency debt (Eurobonds) may be done in rubles.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents. Specific aspects of the placement and trading of securities of foreign issuers in Russia are governed by the law on the securities market (specifically Article 51.1 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market). Effective February 28, 2022, the BR issued a temporary ban for brokerage companies, to satisfy requests by foreign investors for the sale of securities. Furthermore, the payment of coupons to nonresidents was banned. Effective March 1, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 81, a special procedure was established for performing transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of securities carried out with persons of unfriendly states. Such transactions may be performed based on a permit granted by the BR on approval of the MOF. This replaced the ban for brokerage firms, and it is no longer in force. Effective May 4, 2022, the special procedure established by Presidential Decree No. 81 of March 1, 2022, is not applied to transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of shares or bonds of Russian legal entities and of which an entity from an unfriendly state is a party, and which are part of the same group of entities with Russian legal entities on the grounds provided for in paragraph 1 of part 1 of Article 9 Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, provided the payment for the shares or bonds is made in rubles.
Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	The foreign exchange law of Russia does not prohibit purchases of bonds or other debt securities by residents abroad. Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market does not impose requirements or restrictions on the acquisition by residents of securities abroad. When transferring securities, which were acquired abroad and are intended for qualified investors under the legislation on the Russian securities market, into Russia for registration, the holder of such securities must have the status of a qualified investor (pursuant to Article 51.1, paragraph 14, of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market, if the securities of foreign issuers have not be admitted for public placement and/or public circulation in Russia in accordance with this article, then the requirements and restrictions established by this Federal Law for the circulation of securities intended for qualified investors apply to the circulation of such securities. Pursuant to Article 27.6, paragraph 3, of Law No. 39-FZ, the acquisition and conveyance of securities intended for qualified investors, as well as the provision (acceptance) of said securities as collateral to ensure the fulfillment of obligations, may be performed only through brokers. This rule does not apply to investors who are qualified by virtue of federal law when they perform said transactions, or to cases in which a person has acquired said securities as a result of universal legal succession, conversion, including reorganization, distribution of the property of a legal entity being liquidated, as well as other cases established by the BR. Pursuant to Article 3, paragraph 5, of Law No. 39-FZ, a broker has the right to acquire securities intended for qualified investors and to enter into derivatives contracts intended for qualified investors, only if the client on whose behalf the transaction is being performed (the contract is being concluded) is a qualified investor in accordance with Article 51.2, paragraph 2, of this Federal Law or is recognized by the broker as a qualified investor in accordance with this Federal Law).

Article 24 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking states that banks with a basic license have the right to perform operations and transactions, including those involving acquisition, only with securities listed on the first (highest) list of a trading organizer in whose capital the BR holds a stake, and securities that meet the requirements of the BR established in Directive No. 4979-U. Taking into consideration the requirements for the listing of securities on the first (highest) list established by Regulation No. 534-P and the stock exchange, securities of foreign issuers as well as securities denominated in foreign currency may be included in the list.

This law does not impose restrictions on: (1) the composition of counterparties of banks with a basic license in transactions with such securities, including those based on the private law of counterparties (other than transactions in which banks with a basic license act as creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange.

Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision.

BR Regulation No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers became effective January 1, 2023. In addition to insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), Regulation No. 781-P also takes into account the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. An assessment of the impact of risks is performed for a one-year horizon, and it is estimated as the aggregate impact of concentration risk, the risk of a change in the credit spread, the risk of a change in interest rates, the risk of a change in share value, the risk of a change in the foreign exchange rate, the risk of a change in real estate prices, credit risk, and the risk of a change in prices for other assets.

According to Paragraph 2.2. of Regulation No. 781-P, target assets for investment in the case of the equity of an insurance company and insurance reserve funds of insurers must meet the following requirements:
2.2.1. The issuers of the securities must be created in accordance with the legislation of Russia or foreign states that are members of the EAEU, the OECD, or the European Union, or China, India, Brazil, or South Africa;

		2.2.2. The items, other than certificated bonds and shares, must be located (physically held) within Russia. Regulation No. 781-P does not impose any other restrictions on the purchase of the overseas assets by insurance organizations. As long as the insurer complies with the regulatory capital to incurred liabilities ratio, it is entitled to invest in any assets. Effective January 1, 2023, in line with the decision by the Board of Directors of the BR, the value of shares and bonds, units of foreign investment funds that are issued by (or make liable) a resident of a non-friendly country, not accounted for as part of the insurer's assets as of February 25, 2022, as well as claims to residents of non-friendly countries (except for the reinsurers' share in reserves) are recognized as equal to zero in determining the value of assets of the insurer that made a decision to pay dividends after January 1, 2023. If the insurer has not decided to pay dividends after January 1, 2023, it will amortize the value of the above assets over 10 years. The policy is set forth in the regulation on a permanent basis in the BR's Directive No. 6513-U of August 21, 2023, on Amendments to the Regulation of the BR No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The foreign exchange law of Russia does not prohibit the purchase or issuance of bonds or other debt securities by residents outside of Russia. According to Article 16 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market, organization of the circulation of issue-grade securities of a Russian issuer outside Russia, including circulation through the placement of securities of foreign issuers certifying rights with respect to issue-grade securities of Russian issuers in accordance with foreign law, requires authorization by the BR. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 95 on the temporary procedure for fulfilling obligations to certain foreign creditors, debt repayment to nonresidents from unfriendly countries is done in rubles. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Executive Order No. 95, of March 5, 2022, on debt repayment, (1) creditors who are residents of Russia and creditors from countries that have not joined sanctions against Russia may receive repayments on Russian residents' current debt obligations within the respective periods in rubles in the amount of the ruble equivalent at the exchange rate as of the moment of the repayment or, provided there is a special permit, in the currency of the debt. The Executive Order does not restrict the use of rubles received by creditors, including with regard to foreign exchange transactions. (2) Ruble repayments on debt obligations to creditors from the countries that have imposed sanctions against Russia will be credited into C-type accounts opened with Russian and foreign credit institutions. Effective June 22, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 394, payment on foreign currency debt (Eurobonds) may be done in rubles.
On money market instruments	Yes.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Under the Russian foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on purchases of money market instruments by nonresidents (from nonresidents or residents). Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities in Russia are performed under requirements set out in the antimonopoly law and the securities market law. Pursuant to Article 27.5-1, paragraph 3, of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market, the placement and circulation of BR bonds are performed only among Russian credit institutions. Effective February 28, 2022, the BR issued a temporary ban for brokerage companies, to satisfy requests by foreign investors for the sale of securities. The money market instruments that fall under the definition of securities are covered by Decree No. 81. Effective March 1, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 81, a special procedure was established for performing transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of securities carried out with persons of unfriendly states. Such transactions may be performed based on a permit granted by the BR on approval of the MOF. This replaced the ban for brokerage firms, and it is no longer in force. Effective May 4, 2022, the special procedure established by Presidential Decree No. 81 of March 1, 2022, is not applied to transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of shares or bonds of Russian legal entities and of which an entity from an unfriendly state is a party, and which are part of the same group of entities with Russian legal entities on the grounds provided for in paragraph 1 of part 1 of Article 9 Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, provided the payment for the shares or bonds is made in rubles. Those money market instruments that are classified as credit, loans or other financial instruments, fall under the restrictions set by Presidential Decree No. 95. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 95 on the temporary procedure for fulfilling obligations to certain foreign creditors, debt repayment to nonresidents from unfriendly countries is done in rubles. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Executive Order No. 95, of March 5, 2022, on debt repayment, (1) creditors who are residents of Russia and creditors from countries that have not joined sanctions against Russia may receive repayments on Russian residents' current debt obligations within the respective periods in rubles in the amount of the ruble equivalent at the exchange rate as of the moment of the repayment or, provided there is a special permit, in the currency of the debt. The Executive Order does not restrict the use of rubles received by creditors, including with regard to foreign exchange transactions. (2) Ruble repayments on debt obligations to creditors from the countries that have imposed sanctions against Russia will be credited into C-type accounts opened with Russian and foreign credit institutions. Effective June 22, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 394, payment on foreign currency debt (Eurobonds) may be done in rubles.

Sale or issue locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on the sale or issuance of bonds or other debt securities by nonresidents. Specific aspects of the placement and trading of securities of foreign issuers in Russia are governed by the law on the securities market (specifically Article 51.1 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market). Effective February 28, 2022, the BR issued a temporary ban for brokerage companies, to satisfy requests by foreign investors for the sale of securities. Furthermore, the payment of coupons to nonresidents was banned.

		The money market instruments that fall under the definition of securities are covered by Decree No. 81. Effective March 1, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 81, a special procedure was established for performing transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of securities carried out with persons of unfriendly states. Such transactions may be performed based on a permit granted by the BR on approval of the MOF. This replaced the ban for brokerage firms, and it is no longer in force. Purchase abroad by residents	Yes.	There are no prohibitions in the foreign exchange legislation against the purchase of money market instruments by residents outside of Russia. There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. Article 24 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking states that banks with a basic license have the right to perform operations and transactions, including those involving acquisition, only with securities listed on the first (highest) list of a trading organizer in whose capital the BR holds a stake, and securities that meet the requirements of the BR established in Directive No. 4979-U. Taking into consideration the requirements for the listing of securities on the first (highest) list established by Regulation No. 534-P and the stock exchange, securities of foreign issuers as well as securities denominated in foreign currency may be included in the list. This law does not impose restrictions on: (1) the composition of counterparties of banks with a basic license in transactions with such securities, including those based on the private law of counterparties (other than transactions in which banks with a basic license act as creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange. Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision. Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries within the territory of a foreign state with the permission of the BR and in accordance with its requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary within the territory of a foreign state. Universal licenses to perform banking operations issued before June 1, 2017, remain in effect until they are replaced following the established procedure. The BR does not issue permits to establish a subsidiary in states (territories) that are classified according to the procedure defined by Russian law as states (territories) that do not participate in international cooperation in combating money laundering and the financing of terrorism.

		BR Regulation No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers became effective January 1, 2023. In addition to insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), Regulation No. 781-P also takes into account the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. An assessment of the impact of risks is performed for a one-year horizon, and it is estimated as the aggregate impact of concentration risk, the risk of a change in the credit spread, the risk of a change in interest rates, the risk of a change in share value, the risk of a change in the foreign exchange rate, the risk of a change in real estate prices, credit risk, and the risk of a change in prices for other assets. According to Paragraph 2.2. of Regulation No. 781-P, target assets for investment in the case of the equity of an insurance company and insurance reserve funds of insurers must meet the following requirements: 2.2.1. The issuers of the securities must be created in accordance with the legislation of Russia or foreign states that are members of the EAEU, the OECD, or the European Union, or China, India, Brazil, or South Africa; 2.2.2. The items, other than certificated bonds and shares, must be located (physically held) within Russia. Regulation No. 781-P does not impose any other restrictions on the purchase of the overseas assets by insurance organizations. As long as the insurer complies with the regulatory capital to incurred liabilities ratio, it is entitled to invest in any assets. Effective January 1, 2023, in line with the decision by the Board of Directors of the BR, the value of shares and bonds, units of foreign investment funds that are issued by (or make liable) a resident of a non-friendly country, not accounted for as part of the insurer's assets as of February 25, 2022, as well as claims to residents of non-friendly countries (except for the reinsurers' share in reserves) are recognized as equal to zero in determining the value of assets of the insurer that made a decision to pay dividends after January 1, 2023. If the insurer has not decided to pay dividends after January 1, 2023, it will amortize the value of the above assets over 10 years. The policy is set forth in the regulation on a permanent basis in the BR's Directive No. 6513-U of August 21, 2023, on Amendments to the Regulation of the BR No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers.
Sale or issue abroad by residents	Yes.	The foreign exchange law of Russia does not prohibit the sale or issuance of money market instruments by residents outside of Russia. According to Article 16 of Federal Law No. 39-FZ of April 22, 1996, on the Securities Market, organization of the circulation of issue-grade securities of a Russian issuer outside Russia, including circulation through the placement of securities of foreign issuers certifying rights with respect to issue-grade securities of Russian issuers in accordance with foreign law, requires authorization by the BR. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 95 on the temporary procedure for fulfilling obligations to certain foreign creditors, debt repayment to nonresidents from unfriendly countries is done in rubles. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Executive Order No. 95, of March 5, 2022, on debt repayment, (1) creditors who are residents of Russia and creditors from countries that have not joined sanctions against Russia may receive repayments on

(2) Ruble repayments on debt obligations to creditors from the countries that have imposed sanctions against Russia will be credited into C-type accounts opened with Russian and foreign credit institutions. Effective June 22, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 394, payment on foreign currency debt (Eurobonds) may be done in rubles.
On collective investment securities	Yes.	Rules similar to the rules governing transactions with shares or other equity securities apply.
Purchase locally by nonresidents	Yes.	Under the foreign exchange law, there are no restrictions on purchases of collective investment securities by nonresidents from nonresidents or residents. Transactions between nonresidents with domestic securities in Russia are performed under the requirements in the antimonopoly law and the securities market law. The acquisition of more than 10% of the shares in private pension funds or more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in investment fund, mutual fund, and private pension fund management companies requires the prior consent (subsequent approval) of the BR. Effective February 28, 2022, the BR issued a temporary ban for brokerage companies, to satisfy requests by foreign investors for the sale of securities. Furthermore, the payment of coupons to nonresidents was banned. The money market instruments that fall under the definition of securities are covered by Decree No. 81. creditors, considering the prohibition on lending to foreign persons) and (2) the possibility of the performance of transactions by banks with a basic license with such securities outside of the relevant stock exchange.

Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision.

Effective March 18, 2022, and until May 31, 2022, residents were prohibited from carrying out the following transactions without obtaining permits from the BR: (1) payment for a stake, contribution, unit in the property (authorized or share capital, share fund of a cooperative) of a nonresident legal entity; and (2) contribution to a nonresident under a simple partnership agreement with investment in the form of capital investments (joint activity agreement).
Effective June 1, 2022, the BR granted all residents the right to pay in the currency of friendly states and rubles for stakes, contributions and units in the property of nonresidents, as well as to make a contribution to nonresidents under a simple partnership agreement without prior obtaining individual permits from the BR regardless of the amount. If the payment is made in the currency of unfriendly states, the sum is limited to an equivalent of 15 million rubles.

BR Regulation No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers became effective January 1, 2023. In addition to insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), Regulation No. 781-P also takes into account the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. Financial credits	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license may not place funds attracted for deposit with foreign legal entities, foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or individuals who are subject to the private law of a foreign state. Such restrictions do not apply to banks with a universal license. Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision. Effective March 1, 2022, transactions for the provision of loans in foreign currency to any nonresident, as well as for the provision of credits (in foreign currency and rubles) and loans (in rubles) to nonresidents from unfriendly countries may be performed only based on a permit granted by the Government Commission on Monitoring Foreign Investment.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 95 on the temporary procedure to execute liabilities to certain foreign creditors, debt repayment to nonresidents from unfriendly countries is executed in rubles. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Executive Order No. 95, of March 5, 2022, on debt repayment, (1) creditors who are residents of Russia and creditors from countries that have not joined sanctions against Russia may receive repayments on Russian residents' current debt obligations within the respective periods in rubles in the amount of the ruble equivalent at the exchange rate as of the moment of the repayment or, provided there is a special permit, in the currency of the debt. 		bank guarantees (the issuing of bank guarantees is not a banking operation, but it is considered a bank transaction on the basis of Article 5(3) (8) of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking) to foreign legal entities, foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or individuals who are subject to the private law of a foreign state; perform leasing operations with said persons; or issue sureties on behalf of said persons. Such restrictions do not apply to banks with a universal license. Compliance with the established requirements is evaluated by the BR within the context of banking supervision.
To residents from nonresidents	No.
Controls on direct investment	Yes.
Outward direct investment	Yes.	Direct investments by resident individuals and resident legal entities that are not credit institutions are permitted, provided the requirements of the foreign currency law of Russia are met (for example, those related to investments of pension funds). There are no restrictions on direct investment by resident credit institutions associated with their acquisition of stocks (equity stakes) of foreign entities except when approval from the BR must be obtained following the established procedure. Such approval must be obtained to establish a subsidiary in a foreign state, and also to acquire the status of a parent company with respect to an existing nonresident organization in which a credit institution would have the ability to determine decisions made by the given organization's management bodies by virtue of a dominant stake in the authorized capital, in accordance with an agreement that has been concluded, or in some other manner. There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. Banks that have a universal license to perform banking operations and that meet the requirements of the BR may have subsidiaries (branches) abroad subject to authorization by the BR. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a subsidiary within the territory of a foreign state. The BR does not issue authorization to establish subsidiaries in countries (in areas) that are included, in the manner specified by the laws of Russia, among those governments (areas) that do not participate in international cooperation in the area of combating money laundering and financing of terrorism. Approval from the BR is required for transactions involving the acquisition of shares issued by a Russian credit institution, the placement and/or trading of which outside Russia is carried out through their placement in accordance with the foreign securities law pertaining to foreign issuers and granting rights with regard to issued securities of Russian issuers. The threshold for participation (individually or as part of a group of individuals) in Russian credit institutions without BR approval is 10%. (This restriction also applies with respect to residents of Russia.) BR approval is also required when operations are performed that result in the establishment of control over shareholders (stakeholders) of a Russian credit institution who hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in the given credit institution. (This restriction also applies with respect to residents of Russia.)

		In accordance with the Treaty between Russia and Belarus on the creation of the Union State, the BR has established through Regulation No. 217-P that transfers of funds in rubles and in foreign currency for participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, as well as the acquisition (disposal) of shares issued by Belarusian banks and stakes in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, are to be carried out by authorized banks in accordance with Russian legislation on banks and banking, subject to notification requirements. Authorized banks are required to notify the BR regarding participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks following the procedure established by regulatory acts of the BR. Effective March 18, 2022, and until May 31, 2022, residents were prohibited from carrying out the following transactions without obtaining permits from the BR: (1) payment for a stake, contribution, unit in the property (authorized or share capital, share fund of a cooperative) of a nonresident legal entity; and (2) contribution to a nonresident under a simple partnership agreement with investment in the form of capital investments (joint activity agreement). Effective April 1, 2022, approval is not required if payment is made to a company from a friendly state and the payment is made in the currency of the friendly state or in rubles in an amount not to exceed 10 million rubles or an equivalent amount in foreign currency. Effective June 1, 2022, the BR granted all residents the right to pay in the currency of friendly states and rubles for stakes, contributions and units in the property of nonresidents, as well as to make a contribution to nonresidents under a simple partnership agreement without prior obtaining individual permits from the BR regardless of the amount. If the payment is made in the currency of unfriendly states, the sum is limited to an equivalent of 15 million rubles.
Inward direct investment	Yes.	Direct investments are subject to certain limitations: (1) Requirements have been established for foreign investors and groups of persons that include a foreign investor, for their investment in the authorized capital of business entities that are of strategic significance in providing for the national defense and state security, and/or for the completion of transactions resulting in the establishment of control over such business entities. In this connection, transactions carried out by foreign governments or international organizations or organizations under their control that result in acquisition of the right directly or indirectly to control more than 25% of the total number of votes attached to voting shares (equity stakes) constituting the authorized capital of a Russian business entity, or some other ability to block decisions of such a business entity's governing authorities, are subject to approval in accordance with the procedures specified in Articles 9–12 of the Federal Law on the Procedure for Making Foreign Investments in Business Entities that are of Strategic Significance in Providing for the National Defense and State Security, except transactions in which the participants are international financial organizations established under international treaties to which Russia is a party or international financial organizations with which Russia has entered into international treaties. The list of those international financial organizations is approved by the Russian government (Resolution No. 119-R of the Russian Federation Government of February 3, 2012). (2) In accordance with Federal Law No. 372-FZ of December 14, 2015, on Amendments to Articles 16 and 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking, adopted on the basis of Russia's commitments in connection with accession to the WTO, the level of participation of foreign capital in Russia's banking system is taken into account when considering whether the BR will issue a permit to establish a credit institution with foreign investments. Russian law does not provide for the possibility of opening branches of foreign credit institutions within the territory of Russia. In accordance with federal laws, the BR performs state accreditation of representative offices of foreign credit institutions, as well as accreditation of foreign nationals who will be working at the representative offices.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of nonresidents' foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions that are licensed to perform banking operations to the aggregate authorized capital of such credit institutions.
The procedure for calculating the level of participation of foreign capital is defined under Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking and BR Directive No. 3948-U of January 28, 2016, on the Procedure for Calculating the Level of Participation of Foreign Capital in the Aggregate Authorized Capital of Credit Institutions Licensed to Perform Banking Operations.

The following foreign investments are not included in the calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations (Article 18, part 2):
(1) investments made in the authorized capital from the earnings of the credit institutions received in Russia or repatriated to Russia from abroad;
(2) investments made in the authorized capital by subsidiary credit institutions of foreign banks licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(3) investments made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(4) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations, the privatization of which was performed after August 22, 2012;
(5) investments representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations, performed after January 1, 2007, on the condition that said shares (equity stakes) are held by an investor for 12 or more years, unless the BR has adopted a decision before the expiration of this time period to continue to include said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption by the BR of such a decision and for its publication is established by the BR.

The maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is 50%.

When the quota is reached, the BR performs the following measures with respect to foreign investments (Article 18, part 6):
(1) it refuses to register a credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a banking license;
(2) it imposes a ban on an increase in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations using nonresidents' funds and on the conveyance of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution in favor of nonresidents if such actions mean that the quota will be exceeded. Shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution that have been conveyed (sold) in violation of such a ban are not voting shares and are not taken into account in determining a quorum at a general meeting of shareholders (stakeholders) of the credit institution for the period that such a ban is in effect. In the event that a transaction is performed to convey (acquire) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of the ban, the BR files a petition requesting that the relevant transaction be declared null and void.

The measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments referred to under Items 1 and 2 of the second part of Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking.

The measures provided for under Item 2 of the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of Russia.

The BR ceases to apply the measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.
The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it establishes as of January 1 of each year.

Information about the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and about the indicators used for its calculation is subject to publication in the official publication of the BR, the Bulletin of the BR, and it is also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year.

As of January 1, 2022, the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations was 10.73%;

(3) Restrictions have been established on the use of mineral resources by foreign investors and by legal entities in which foreign investors hold a stake.

(4) Restrictions apply on certain types of activities of insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital of over 49%, other than insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 234-FZ of July 23, 2013, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. As of January 1, 2023, the stake by foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies with an insurance license was 9.58%. A quota of 50% was set on foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies. If the level of (quota for) the participation of foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%, the insurance supervisory authority stops issuing insurance licenses to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies) or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%. Insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors (parent companies), or in which the equity stake held by foreign investors in the authorized capital is more than 49%, may not provide personal life, health, or property insurance in Russia at the expense of funds allocated for these purposes from the budgets of the budget system of Russia to executive government authorities (insurance policy holders); insurance related to the procurement of goods, work, and services to meet state and municipal needs; or insurance for the property interests of government and municipal organizations. These restrictions do not apply to insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 204-FZ of November 20, 1999, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. Payment by foreign investors for the shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) of insurance companies held by them is performed exclusively in monetary form in the currency of Russia.

Insurance companies must obtain authorization for the following: (1) an increase in their authorized capital from funds of foreign investors and (2) transfers of shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including for sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) must obtain authorization to transfer their shares (equity stakes) to foreign investors.

The BR will deny prior authorization if the stake (quota) of foreign ownership in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) from the BR is required in the event that a legal entity or individual, or a group of individuals defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, acquires more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution, private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company (including those previously acquired) when performing one or several transactions, including transactions in the secondary market.

Prior or subsequent consent (approval) from the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) with respect to the shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution (private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) who hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of said institution.

Effective March 1, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 81, a special procedure was established for performing transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of securities carried out with persons of unfriendly states. Such transactions may be performed based on a permit granted by the BR on approval of the MOF. This replaced the ban for brokerage firms, and it is no longer in force. Effective May 4, 2022, the special procedure established by Presidential Decree No. 81 of March 1, 2022, is not applied to (1) transactions that entail the emergence of ownership of shares or bonds of Russian legal entities and of which an entity from an Effective August 5, 2022, a ban was imposed until December 31, 2022, on transactions that directly and/or indirectly entail the establishment, change, termination or encumbrance of the rights of possession, and use and/or disposal of shares of Russian legal entities if these securities are owned by foreigners related to unfriendly states.

By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	Effective March 1, 2022, transactions for the provision of loans in foreign currency to any nonresident, as well as for the provision of credits (in foreign currency and rubles) and loans (in rubles) to nonresidents from unfriendly countries may be performed only based on a permit granted by the Government Commission on Monitoring Foreign Investment.
To residents from nonresidents	Yes.	Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 95 on the temporary procedure for fulfilling obligations to certain foreign creditors, debt repayment to nonresidents from unfriendly countries is done in rubles. Effective March 5, 2022, pursuant to Executive Order No. 95, of March 5, 2022, on debt repayment, (1) creditors who are residents of Russia and creditors from countries that have not joined sanctions against Russia may receive repayments on Russian residents' current debt obligations within the respective periods in rubles in the amount of the ruble equivalent at the exchange rate as of the moment of the repayment or, provided there is a special permit, in the currency of the debt. The Executive Order does not restrict the use of rubles received by creditors, including with regard to foreign exchange transactions. (2) Ruble repayments on debt obligations to creditors from the countries that have imposed sanctions against Russia will be credited into C-type accounts opened with Russian and foreign credit institutions. Effective June 22, 2022, pursuant to Presidential Decree No. 394, payment on foreign currency debt (Eurobonds) may be done in rubles.
Gifts, endowments, inheritances, and legacies	Yes.
By residents to nonresidents	Yes.	The receipt as a result of a gift (endowment) of more than 10% of the stocks (shares) of a Russian credit institution, insurance company, microfinance company, private pension fund, or investment fund, mutual fund, and private pension fund management company requires the consent of the BR. When more than 10% of the stocks (shares) of a Russian credit institution, insurance company, microfinance company, private pension fund, or investment fund, mutual fund, and private pension fund management company are received through inheritance, the consent of the BR is considered to have been obtained. The heir must confirm that his business reputation meets the requirements established by law. In addition, the heir must meet these requirements on an ongoing basis and in the established cases must confirm compliance with the requirements regarding his financial position on an annual basis. An insurance company is required to obtain authorization to transfer its shares (stakes in its authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including their sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) are required to obtain authorization to transfer shares (equity stakes) belonging to them to foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries. The BR will deny prior authorization if the stake (quota) of foreign ownership in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%.

Provisions Specific to the Financial Sector

Provisions specific to commercial banks and other credit institutions	Yes.	The term "credit institution" describes participants in the Russian banking sector. According to the Russian legislation, credit institutions include banks and nonbank credit institutions that carry out certain types of banking operations. The terms "nonresident bank," "foreign bank," and "foreign credit institution" are used for nonresidents. All credit institutions that perform banking operations in Russia must be residents. There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. For banks with a basic license, there are restrictions with regard to the performance of activities with foreign counterparties: (1) there are restrictions on the performance of certain banking operations and transactions, for example, the issuing of credits to foreigners; (2) there are restrictions on their ability to open correspondent accounts at foreign banks; and (3) there are restrictions on their legal capacity in transactions with financial instruments (securities). At the same time, there are no provisions specific to banks with a basic license in terms of the performance of banking operations and transactions in foreign currency. In addition, there are provisions specific to cooperation by a central counterparty with foreign persons. Effective February 22, 2022, financial institutions may recognize shares and bonds in reporting at their market value as of February 18, 2022, until October 1, 2022, and credit institutions may calculate required ratios using the foreign exchange rates as of February 18, 2022, until effective October 1, 2022.
Borrowing abroad	No.
Maintenance of accounts abroad	Yes.	Authorized banks may open correspondent accounts with banks abroad in accordance with the conditions determined by federal legislation. There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license is not permitted to open bank (correspondent) accounts at foreign banks, with the exception of the opening of an account at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system. A bank with a universal license that has obtained the status of a bank with a basic license or that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, or a bank with a basic license that has changed its status to that of a nonbank credit institution, is required to abrogate a bank (correspondent) account agreement with a foreign bank within one year of the date such status is acquired. This restriction does not apply to cases in which an account is opened at a foreign bank for the purpose of participating in a foreign payment system.
Lending to nonresidents (financial or commercial credits)	Yes.	There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license may not perform the placement of funds attracted for deposit, attract for deposit and place precious metals, open and maintain bank accounts in precious metals and perform transfers with them, issue bank guarantees (the issuing of bank guarantees is not a banking operation, but it remains a bank transaction) to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals who are subject to the private law of a foreign state. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to acquire rights of claim against, to perform leasing operations with, or to issue sureties with respect to said entities. Effective March 1, 2022, transactions for the provision of loans in foreign currency to any nonresident, as well as for the provision of credits (in foreign currency and rubles) and loans (in rubles) to nonresidents from unfriendly countries may be performed only based on a permit granted by the Government Commission on Monitoring Foreign Investment.

Lending locally in foreign exchange	Yes.	There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. A bank with a basic license may not perform the placement of funds attracted for deposit, attract for deposit and place precious metals, open and maintain bank accounts in precious metals and perform transfers with them, issue bank guarantees (the issuing of bank guarantees is not a banking operation, but it remains a bank transaction) to foreign legal entities, to foreign organizations that are not legal entities under foreign law, or to individuals who are subject to the private law of a foreign state. A bank with a basic license does not have the right to acquire rights of claim against, to perform leasing operations with, or to issue sureties with respect to said entities. The Federal Law on Banks and Banking does not establish any provisions specific to the performance of operations that involve lending to Russian citizens and legal entities in foreign currency by banks with a basic license. Banks with a basic license have the right to grant credits to Russian citizens and legal entities in foreign currency if such a right is provided for by the license to perform banking operations. Higher risk ratios: Over a number of years, the BR has applied higher risk ratios for operations in foreign currency with both individuals and legal entities. Specifically, as of April 1, 2017, the risk ratio for new unsecured consumer credits in foreign currency with a total cost of credit (TCC) of 20%–25% was raised to 600%. As of May 1, 2016, the risk ratio was raised to 110% for credits (and investments in securities) in foreign currency to legal entities without a sufficient reserve of foreign currency earnings to service the debt. The risk ratio was also raised to 130% for credits to legal entities in foreign currency intended for the purchase of real estate. As of July 1, 2018, the BR raised the risk ratios for credit claims (and investments in debt securities) in foreign currency on resident legal entities that are exporters to 110%. To encourage a further decline in lending in the riskiest segment, risk ratios on credit claims for the purchase of real estate were raised to 150%. All other claims on legal entities in foreign currency are weighted with a risk ratio that was raised to 130%. There is an exception according to which the new risk ratios are not applied to credit claims with direct or indirect guarantees by Russia (specifically, credit claims in foreign currency secured by an insurance policy provided by the Russian Export Insurance Agency,

Macroprudential (sectoral) surcharges:
In connection with the transition to the use of a new macroprudential regulatory mechanism, the BR's Board of Directors adopted a decision to apply as of October 8, 2018, risk ratio surcharges for the purpose of calculating the capital adequacy of credit institutions (macroprudential surcharges). Macroprudential surcharges were established with respect to certain types of assets in accordance with BR Directive No. 4892-U of August 31, 2018, on Types of Assets, Characteristics of Types of Assets for Which Risk Ratio Surcharges Are Established, and the Methodology for Application of Surcharges to These Types of Assets for the Purpose of the Calculation of Capital Adequacy Ratios by Credit Institutions.
Taking into consideration the introduction of risk ratio surcharges to keep the overall level of capital requirements unchanged, the values of risk ratios for assets subject to surcharges were brought into line with their standard values provided for by Basel III. Thus, the establishment of macroprudential surcharges, including those for operations in foreign currency, did not result in an increase in the overall capital adequacy requirements for credit institutions.

For the purpose of supporting the economy amid the spread of COVID-19, it was decided not to apply surcharges to risk ratios on foreign currency credits provided to companies producing medicines and materials and equipment used for medical purposes, and also on investments made during this same period in debt securities of these companies denominated in foreign currency. This is no longer valid effective January 1, 2022.

To ensure the sustainability of credit institutions under the restrictions imposed by Western countries, the BR implemented the following additional support measures:
(1) effective February 28, 2022, the accumulated macroprudential capital buffer was released for claims that arose before February 28, 2022, on loans granted to legal entities in foreign currency and on investments in debt securities denominated in foreign currency (158 billion rubles as of February 1, 2022); (2) effective February 28, 2022, add-ons to risk ratios were eliminated for banks' credit claims to legal entities in foreign currency that arose on or after February 28, 2022;
(3) effective February 28, 2022, the BR released the accumulated macroprudential capital buffer for unsecured consumer loans and mortgage loans in rubles and foreign currency (733 billion rubles as of February 1, 2022).

To minimize foreign exchange and credit risks, the BR recommended that credit institutions should enable borrowers to repay credit (loans) issued in the foreign currency of an unfriendly state in rubles or in the foreign currency of a friendly state if restrictions are introduced against the credit institution or the borrower (Information Letter No. IN-03-23/116 of the BR of September 22, 2022).

In an effort to support the downward trend in the share of foreign exchange among banks' assets, the BR's Board of Directors may set risk coefficient add-ons for claims on credit (loans) issued to legal entities in the currency of unfriendly countries, as well as for claims denominated in the currency of unfriendly countries on investments in debt securities, without the need for the BR's Board of Directors to set add-ons for claims denominated in the currency of countries that do not commit unfriendly acts. Add-ons to risk coefficients may be established by the Board of Directors of the BR, if necessary, as the financial sector goes back to normal after a period regulatory forbearance.

Purchase of locally issued securities denominated in foreign exchange	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts in foreign exchange	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Reserve requirements are imposed on: (1) liabilities to nonresident legal entities (including nonresident banks) in rubles and/or in foreign currency; (2) liabilities to resident and nonresident individuals in rubles and/or in foreign currency; and (3) other liabilities in rubles and/or foreign currency. Effective March 3, 2022, the required reserve ratios were set for banks with a universal license and nonbank credit institutions to 2% for liabilities to nonresident legal entities, liabilities to individuals, and other liabilities in rubles (previously 4.75%) and foreign currency (previously 8%); for banks with a basic license to 2% for liabilities to nonresident legal entities in rubles (previously 4.75%), as well as liabilities to nonresident legal entities, liabilities to individuals, and other liabilities in foreign currency (previously 8%). The reserve requirement for banks holding a basic license remained 1% for liabilities to individuals and other liabilities in domestic currency. Effective March 5, 2022, to decrease the regulatory burden related to the formation of required reserves for banks with a universal license and nonbank credit institutions on C-type accounts used in transactions pursuant to Executive Order No. 95, of March 5, 2022, these credit institutions have the right not to include liabilities in Russian rubles and foreign currency recognized in C-type accounts in calculating the required reserves. Effective April 1, 2022, the procedure for calculating and regulating the amount of required reserves was simplified. Furthermore, for banks with a basic license, the required reserves ratio was set at 1% for all categories of liabilities in rubles (previously it was 1% only for liabilities to individuals and other liabilities in domestic currency) and remained at 2% for all categories of liabilities in foreign currency. Effective May 1, 2022, the required reserve ratios for all categories of liabilities in foreign currency subject to such requirements was raised to 4% for both banks with a basic license and banks with a universal license. Effective August 1, 2022, the required reserve ratios for all categories of liabilities in rubles subject to such requirements were increased for banks with a universal license and nonbank credit institutions, as well as for all categories of liabilities of credit institutions in foreign currency subject to such requirements: for banks with a universal license and nonbank credit institutions the required reserve ratio was increased to 3% from 2% for all categories of liabilities in the national currency which are subject to reserve requirements (liabilities to nonresident legal entities and individuals, other liabilities); the required reserves ratio for banks with a basic license remained at 1% for all categories of liabilities in national currency; the required reserve ratio for liabilities of credit institutions in foreign currency is increased to 5% from 4%. Effective March 1, 2023, amid a growing structural liquidity surplus and to maintain the downward trend in the share of foreign currency on credit institutions' balance sheets, the BR increased the required reserve ratios: to 4% (previously 3%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in the currency of Russia for banks with a universal license and nonbank credit institutions; to 7% (previously 5%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in foreign currency for all credit institutions. Required reserve ratios for all categories of reservable liabilities in the currency of Russia for banks with a basic license remain unchanged. Effective June 1, 2023, considering an evolution in the structural liquidity surplus and in an attempt to maintain the downward trend in the share of foreign currency on credit institutions' balance sheets, the BR increased the required reserve ratios as follows: 4.5% (previously 4%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in the currency of Russia for banks with a universal license and nonbank credit institutions; 6% (previously 5.5%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in foreign currency (excluding liabilities in currencies of unfriendly states) for all credit institutions; 8.5% (previously 7.5%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in currencies of unfriendly states for all credit institutions. Required reserve ratios for all categories of reservable liabilities in the currency of Russia for banks with a basic license remain unchanged.

Liquid asset requirements	No.	The BR established the instant (N2), current (N3), and long-term (N4) liquidity ratios, which are defined as the ratio of assets to liabilities, taking into consideration maturities, amounts, types of assets and liabilities, and other factors, and are calculated for operations in all currencies, and no requirements have been established for separate compliance with them in rubles and/or other currencies. According to Instruction No. 199-I, banks with a universal license must calculate N2, N3, and N4 ratios, whereas for banks with a basic license Instruction No. 183-I provides that they must calculate only the current liquidity ratio (N3). Developed in accordance with Basel III, the LCR for short-term liquidity is applicable to systemically important credit institutions (SICIs) on a consolidated basis in the event that an SICI is the main credit institution of a banking group, or on an individual basis if an SICI has no banking group as defined for regulatory purposes. The LCR is calculated in accordance with the procedure established by BR Regulation No. 421-P of May 30, 2014, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the liquidity coverage indicator (LCI) (Basel III), taking into account the specific aspects established by BR Regulation No. 510-P of December 3, 2015, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the LCR (Basel III) by SICIs. The LCR is set at 100%. These minimum allowable numerical values are established in Regulation No. 510-P. With the aim of establishing an effective liquidity risk management system, SICIs are required to perform separate calculations and forward information to the BR on the LCR values in rubles and in each significant foreign currency. In addition to deposits in rubles, only funds denominated in US dollars and euros, as well as funds denominated in the national currency of a foreign state (other than US dollar and euro) within the territory of which the bank's branch or a participant of the banking group is located, may be treated as stable funds of individuals and small businesses with a lower outflow rate compared to funds classified as unstable, when all of the conditions for stability as defined by Basel III are met. When determining the amount of highly liquid assets (HLAs), the procedure for the calculation of the LCR also provides for limiting the amount of assets denominated in certain foreign currencies to the amount of the net expected outflow of funds in the same foreign currency as established by Basel III (the outflow is calculated in accordance with Regulation No. 421-P/Regulation No. 510-P). At the same time, considering the initial shortage in the Russian banking sector of HLAs defined in accordance with Basel III, Regulation No. 510-P allows for the inclusion of HLAs denominated in US dollars, euros, Japanese yen, pounds sterling, and Swiss francs in the LCR numerator in an amount that exceeds the expected net outflow of funds in the same foreign currency, taking into consideration the restrictions established by Regulation No. 510-P (alternative option (alternative liquidity approach (ALA) 2). No separate standards are applied in Russian banking regulation establishing requirements for coverage by liquid assets of deposits (liabilities) attracted by credit institutions in foreign or domestic currency. In accordance with the Basel III standard, HLAs may be used to cover cash outflows during periods of instability, which may lead to a decrease in the actual LCR value below the minimum allowable level which is not considered in such a case as a non-compliance with the standard. There is a structural liquidity ratio (the net stable funding ratio (NSFR)) developed in accordance with Basel III in effect for SICIs, which is applied on a consolidated basis if an SICI is the main credit institution of a banking group, or on an individual basis if a SICI has no banking group as defined for regulatory purposes. The NSFR is calculated according to the procedure established by BR Regulation No. 596-P of July 26, 2017, on the Procedure for the Calculation of the Structural Liquidity Ratio (NSFR) (Basel III) by SICIs. No separate standards establishing requirements for calculation of the NSFR in foreign or domestic currency are applied. The classification of funds of individuals and small businesses into stable and unstable, including classification based on the currency, for the purpose of calculating the NSFR, is the same as that applied to the LCR as indicated above. Effective February 25, 2022, to expand the capabilities of SICIs to manage their liquidity, the BR eases the LCR N26 (N27) applicable to these institutions. The BR will not apply sanctions against SICIs if they show a drop in the actual value of the above ratio resulted from both actual outflows of funds and depreciation of HLAs, as well as from limited opportunities to prolong fund raising agreements for longer than 30 calendar days with a simultaneous repayment of long-term obligations taken before. The measure is valid until December 31, 2022. Effective January 1, 2023, SICIs continue to be subject to (1) the extended list of conditions introduced in 2022 under which a decrease in actual LCR values below 100% is not considered a breach and (2) forbearance introduced in 2022 for non-compliance with the NSFR in case it is because of unfavorable funding conditions and other objective reasons, with the additional condition that the SICI must implement measures to gradually improve liquidity levels.

Interest rate controls	Yes.	In accordance with Federal Law No. 353-FZ, the BR calculates and publishes on a quarterly basis the average market value of the total cost of consumer credit (loans) (TCC) in terms of percent per annum by categories of consumer credit (loans) defined by the BR.

The TCC restriction which does not allow to exceed the TCC at the time of signing the contract by more than one third of the average market value of TCC is implemented.

The TCC may not exceed the lower of the following values: 365% per annum or the average market value of the total cost of consumer credit (loan) in percent per annum of the relevant category of consumer credit (loan) calculated by the BR and applied in the relevant calendar quarter, by more than one third.

Effective July 3, 2022, the TCC restriction applies to relations arising in connection with the provision of loans (loans) to individuals for purposes not related to their entrepreneurial activities, and where the obligations of the borrowers are secured by a mortgage.

In addition, effective July 3, 2022, consumer credits (loans) extended under government programs providing subsidies to creditors from the federal budget and (or) the budget of a constituent entity of Russia to compensate the creditors for their lost income on extended consumer credits (loans) are not taken into account when calculating the average market value of TCC.

Effective July 1, 2023, the value of the TCC may not exceed the lower of the following values: 292% a year or the average market value of the total cost of consumer credit (loan) in percent per annum of the relevant category of consumer credit (loan) calculated by the BR and applied in the relevant calendar quarter, by more than one third.

Directive No. 6077-U of February 28, 2022, established a moratorium on the application of the TCC limitation effective March 1, 2022, until June 30, 2022, because of significant changes in market conditions. Effective July 1, 2022, it is no longer in force.

BR Board of Directors Decision of August 16, 2023, established a moratorium on TCC limitation effective August 16, 2023, until December 31, 2023, because of a significant change in market conditions.

In accordance with the Federal Law on the Insurance of Bank Deposits in the Russian Federation, the BR determines and discloses to an unrestricted group of persons on a monthly basis the base rate of return on deposits (by types of deposits grouped by one or several conditions of their placement at banks of Russia on the basis of monthly information submitted by banks to the BR on the maximum rate of return on deposits attracted). The base rate of return on deposits is determined to identify banks which exceed it and therefore pay an additional rate or a higher additional rate for insurance contributions to the mandatory deposit insurance fund. Information about base rate of return on deposits was first published by the BR for May 2015.
Pursuant to Federal Law No. 163-FZ, an additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that:
(1) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of Russia (with the exception of deposits in the currency of Russia certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in the currency of Russia offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points per annum;

(2) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency (with the exception of deposits in foreign currency certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in foreign currency offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1 percentage point but not more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;
(3) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of Russia certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points but not more than 4 percentage points per annum;
(4) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 2 percentage points but not more than 3 percentage points per annum.

A higher additional rate for insurance contributions is paid by a bank in the event that:
(1) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of Russia (with the exception of deposits in the currency of Russia certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in the currency of Russia, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points per annum;
(2) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency (with the exception of deposits in foreign currency certified by savings certificates, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand) or the bank has entered into an agreement to change the terms of an agreement on a bank deposit in foreign currency, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 1.5 percentage points per annum;

		(3) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in the currency of Russia certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 4 percentage points per annum; (4) the bank has attracted during any month of the quarter even one deposit in foreign currency certified by a savings certificate, the terms of which do not provide for the right of the holder of the certificate to obtain the deposit on demand, offering the maximum rate of return on the deposit based on interest rates, taking into account other material gain and other terms for the attraction of the deposit in an amount that exceeds the base rate of return on deposits by more than 3 percentage points per annum. At present, banks pay insurance premiums to the Mandatory Deposit Insurance Fund only at the basic rate (0.12% of the calculated base), as the additional and increased additional insurance premium rates are set at 0% of the basic rate as of early 2022 until the end of 2023 (Decisions of the Board of Directors of the State Corporation Deposit Insurance Agency of February 25, 2022 (Minutes No. 2), June 28, 2022 (Minutes No. 4), December 19, 2022 (Minutes No. 6), June 28, 2023 (Minutes No. 3)).
Credit controls	No.
Differential treatment of deposit accounts held by nonresidents	Yes.
Reserve requirements	Yes.	Effective April 1, 2023, to stimulate a change in the composition of credit institutions' foreign currency liabilities toward a higher proportion of friendly states' currencies, while maintaining conditions for a further overall decrease in the share of foreign currencies on the balance sheets of all credit institutions, the BR introduced differentiated required reserve ratios for liabilities in unfriendly states' currencies or other foreign currencies: 7.5% (previously 7%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in unfriendly states' currencies; 5.5% (previously 7%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in foreign currencies (except liabilities in unfriendly states' currencies). The amount of liabilities of banks with a basic license in unfriendly states' currencies is taken equal to zero. Other required reserve ratios remain unchanged. Effective June 1, 2023, considering an evolution in the structural liquidity surplus and in an attempt to maintain the downward trend in the share of foreign currency on credit institutions' balance sheets, the BR increased the required reserve ratios as follows: 4.5% (previously 4%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in the currency of Russia for banks with a universal license and nonbank credit institutions; 6% (previously 5.5%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in foreign currency (excluding liabilities in currencies of unfriendly states) for all credit institutions; 8.5% (previously 7.5%) for all categories of reservable liabilities in currencies of unfriendly states for all credit institutions. Required reserve ratios for all categories of reservable liabilities in the currency of Russia for banks with a basic license remain unchanged.
Liquid asset requirements	No.

Interest rate controls	No.	There is no difference in the methods for the regulation and monitoring of interest rates with regard to the accounts of residents and nonresidents.
Credit controls	No.
Investment regulations	Yes.
Abroad by banks	Yes.	There are two types of banks: those with a basic license and those with a universal license. There are no restrictions on direct investment by resident credit institutions associated with their acquisition of stocks (stakes) of foreign entities except when leading to the establishment of subsidiaries abroad. Banks with a universal banking license may have subsidiaries (branches) abroad subject to authorization and in accordance with BR requirements. There is no provision granting banks with a basic license the right to open a branch and/or subsidiary in a foreign state. General licenses issued before June 1, 2017, to perform banking operations remain in force until they are replaced in the prescribed manner. The BR does not authorize subsidiaries in countries (areas) designated by Russian law among those that do not participate in international cooperation to combat money laundering and the financing of terrorism. Approval from the BR is required for transactions involving the acquisition of shares and/or their receipt in trust that are issued by a Russian credit institution, the placement and/or trading of which outside Russia is carried out through their placement in accordance with the foreign securities law pertaining to foreign issuers and granting rights with regard to issued securities of Russian issuers. The threshold for participation (individually or as part of a group of individuals) in a Russian credit institution without BR consent is 10%. (This restriction applies to residents of Russia as well.) BR approval is also required when operations are performed that result in the establishment of control over shareholders (equity stakeholders) of a Russian credit institution holding more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution. (This restriction applies to residents of Russia as well.) Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is required in the event of the acquisition by a legal entity or individual or group of individuals, defined in accordance with Article 9 of Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, through the performance of one or several transactions, including those in the secondary market, of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) (including those acquired previously) in a private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company. Prior or subsequent consent (approval) by the BR is also required when a legal entity or individual (or group of individuals) establishes direct or indirect (through third parties) control (including acquisition in the secondary market) over shareholders (stakeholders) (of a private pension fund, insurance company, investment fund management company, mutual investment fund or private pension fund, or microfinance company) that hold more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) in said organization. In accordance with the Treaty between Russia and Belarus on the creation of the Union State, the BR has established that transfers of funds in rubles and in foreign currency for participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, as well as the acquisition (disposal) of shares issued by Belarusian banks, and stakes in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks, are to be carried out by authorized banks in accordance with Russian legislation on banks and banking, subject to notification requirements. Authorized banks are required to forward information to the BR regarding participation in the authorized capital of Belarusian banks following the procedure established by regulatory acts of the BR. In accordance with BR Instruction No. 199-I, investments by Russian banks abroad are included on a general basis in the calculation of required ratios limiting credit risk and concentration risk. Thus, it established the following mandatory requirements to limit investments in shares/equity stakes: (1) The ratio limiting the use of the bank's equity (capital) for the acquisition of shares (equity stakes) of other legal entities (N12): the maximum value of this ratio is set at 25%. It regulates (limits) the total risk of the bank's investments in shares (equity stakes) of other legal entities and sets the ceiling for the ratio between the amounts invested by the bank to acquire shares (equity stakes) of other legal entities and the bank's equity (capital) (however, investments in shares (equity stakes) of credit institutions that are members of their banking group are not included in the calculation of the N12 ratio). (2) In addition, to limit the concentration risk, a maximum limit of risk per borrower or a group of related borrowers (N6) and a maximum limit of risk per person connected with a bank (a group of persons connected with a bank) (N25) are established, with all claims to the counterparty, including investment in its shares/equity stakes, included in their calculation. The maximum allowable value of N6 ratio is 25%, and that of N25 ratio is 20%. The procedure for calculating N6 and N25 ratios is defined in Chapters 6 and 8 of Instruction No. 199-I. Therefore, with regard to the calculation of the mandatory ratios, specific features of the regulation of banks' investments abroad have not been established. Directive No. 1584-U of June 22, 2005, establishes requirements for setting aside bigger amounts of reserves for potential losses from operations with residents of offshore zones, based on the group in which the offshore zone is included, in accordance with Directive No. 1317-U of August 7, 2003. For operations with countries and jurisdictions that are included in the 2nd group of offshore zones, the reserve is to be established in the amount of 25%, for those included in the 3rd group – in the amount of 50%. In line with paragraphs 2.2.9, 2.4.3, 2.4.4, 3.2.3, 3.2.4. of Regulation No. 646-P, which defines the methodology for calculating the regulatory capital of credit institutions, investments by a credit institution in ordinary shares (stakes) of financial institutions (including nonresident financial institutions) are recognized as a reduction in the capital of the credit institution in the manner corresponding to Basel III standard.

In banks by nonresidents	Yes.	The requirements established by Russian law regarding the acquisition of shares (equity stakes) in credit institutions extend to all investors regardless of their country of origin.

©International Monetary Fund. Not for Redistribution

The acquisition and/or receipt in trust of more than 1% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution resulting from the performance of one or more transactions by a single legal entity or individual, or group of persons defined in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, must be reported to the BR (with the exception of cases in which the shares (equity stakes) are acquired when a credit institution is being established). The threshold for participation in a Russian credit institution without BR consent is 10%. (This restriction applies to residents of Russia as well.) BR consent is also required for the establishment by a legal entity or an individual, as a result of the performance of one or more transactions, of direct or indirect (through third parties) control over shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution holding more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of the credit institution. (This restriction applies to residents of Russia as well.)

These requirements also apply to the acquisition of more than 1% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, and/or the establishment of control with respect to shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution by a group of persons recognized as such in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition.

The BR has the right to refuse to give its consent for the performance of a transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution if:
(1) the financial condition of the person performing the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, or at the acquisition of 10% or less of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, and that is part of a group of persons acquiring (holding) more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution, as well as an individual or legal entity exercising control over said legal entities, and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution, is found to be unsatisfactory;
(2) the antimonopoly authority has not approved a petition for consent to a transaction (or transactions) submitted in accordance with Federal Law No. 135-FZ of July 26, 2006, on the Protection of Competition, if the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition is (are) subject to controls in accordance with the antimonopoly legislation;
(3) there is no decision regarding prior consent to a transaction or to the acquisition of control in accordance with Federal Law No. 57-FZ of April 29, 2008, on the Procedure for Making Foreign Investments in Business Entities that are of Strategic Significance in providing for the National Defense and State Security, if the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition is (are) subject to controls in accordance with said federal law;
(4) the person performing the transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution or their single-member executive bodies, has an unsatisfactory business reputation as established under Article 16, part 1, paragraph 5, of Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, on Banks and Banking;
(5) there are other grounds provided for under federal laws and BR regulations adopted in accordance with them.

The BR refuses to consent to a transaction (or transactions) aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution if a court previously found the person performing the transaction aimed at the acquisition of more than 10% of the shares (equity stakes) of a credit institution and/or at gaining control of shareholders (stakeholders) of a credit institution, guilty of causing losses to any credit institution in the performance of his duties as a member of the credit institution's board of directors (or supervisory board), as the sole executive officer of the credit institution or a deputy executive officer, and/or as a member of a collegial executive body (executive board, administrative board).

Establishment of a Russian credit institution with the participation of foreign investments requires prior authorization from the BR. According to the Regulation on Specific Aspects of the Registration of Credit Institutions with Foreign Investments and the Procedure for Obtaining Prior Authorization from the BR to Increase the Authorized Capital of a Registered Credit Institution Using Funds from Nonresidents (approved by BR Order No. 02-195 of April 23, 1997), prior authorization is understood to mean obtaining consent in principle from the BR for participation by a specific nonresident in the establishment of a resident credit institution.
In accordance with Federal Law No. 372-FZ of December 14, 2015, on Amendments to Articles 16 and 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking, adopted on the basis of Russia's commitments in connection with accession to the WTO, the level of participation of foreign capital in Russia's banking system is taken into account when considering whether the BR will issue a permit to establish a credit institution with foreign investments.

The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated as the ratio of nonresidents' foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions that are licensed to perform banking operations to the aggregate authorized capital of said credit institutions.
The procedure for calculating the level of participation of foreign capital is defined under Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking and BR Directive No. 3948-U of January 28, 2016, on the Procedure for Calculating the Level of Participation of Foreign Capital in the Aggregate Authorized Capital of Credit Institutions Licensed to perform Banking Operations.
The following foreign investments are not included in the calculation of foreign investments in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations:
(1) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations that are financed at the expense of earnings of said credit institutions received in Russia or are repatriated to Russia from abroad;
(2) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations by subsidiary credit institutions of foreign banks licensed to perform banking operations, and all subsequent investments by said institutions in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(3) investments made before January 1, 2007, in the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations;
(4) investments made in the authorized capital of credit institutions

licensed to perform banking operations, the privatization of which was performed after August 22, 2012;
(5) investments representing 51% or more of the shares (equity stakes) in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations, performed after January 1, 2007, on the condition that said shares (equity stakes) are held by an investor for 12 or more years, unless the BR has adopted a decision before the expiration of this time period to continue to include said investments in the calculation and has published this decision. The procedure for the adoption by the BR of such a decision and for its publication is established by the BR.

The maximum level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is 50% (Federal Law No. 395-1 of December 2, 1990, “On Banks and Banking Activities”).

When the maximum level is reached, the BR performs the following measures with respect to foreign investments:
(1) it refuses to register a credit institution with foreign investments and to issue it a banking license;
(2) it imposes a ban on an increase in the authorized capital of a credit institution licensed to perform banking operations using nonresidents’ funds and on the conveyance of shares (equity stakes) in the credit institution in favor of nonresidents if such actions mean that the quota will be exceeded.
Shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution that have been conveyed (sold) in violation of such a ban are not voting shares and are not taken into account in determining a quorum at a general meeting of shareholders (stakeholders) of the credit institution for the period that such a ban is in effect. In the event that a transaction is performed to convey (acquire) shares (equity stakes) in a credit institution in violation of the ban, the BR files a petition requesting that the relevant transaction be declared null and void.

The measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments referred to under Items 1 and 2 of the second part of Article 18 of the Law on Banks and Banking.

The measures provided for under Item 2 of the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking are not applied with respect to foreign investments intended for the authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations as defined in accordance with regulatory acts of the BR on the basis of international agreements of Russia.

The BR ceases to apply the measures provided for under the sixth part of Article 18 of the Federal Law on Banks and Banking in the event that the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is less than 50%.
The level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations is calculated by the BR following the procedure it establishes as of January 1 of each year.

Information about the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations and about the indicators used for its calculation is subject to publication in the official publication of the BR, the Bulletin of the BR, and it is also posted on the official website of the BR no later than February 15 of the current year. As of January 1, 2022, the level of participation of foreign capital in the aggregate authorized capital of credit institutions licensed to perform banking operations was 10.73%. BR Regulation No. 626-P of December 28, 2017, established the procedure and criteria for assessing the financial position of individuals who perform a transaction aimed at acquiring more than 10% of shares of a credit institution and/or gaining control of shareholders of the credit institution. BR Regulation No. 625-P establishes the procedure for assessing the compliance by such persons with business reputation requirements. In accordance with the BR Instruction No. 199-I, investments in banks by nonresidents are included following a common procedure (similar to residents' investments in banks) in the calculation of the maximum risk limit per person related with the bank (group of persons related with the bank) (N25) the maximum allowable numerical value of which is 20%.

Open foreign exchange position limits	Yes.	Effective February 18, 2022, the BR will not apply measures to credit institutions if they fail to comply with the fixed limits relative to open currency positions in individual foreign currencies and precious metals; total amount of all open currency positions in foreign currencies and precious metals; and the balancing position in rubles provided the said failure is caused externally, and banks do not use the above easing for speculative purposes. This measure is valid until July 1, 2022. On February 28, 2022, the BR clarified that this measure applies to banks subject to foreign sanctions. Effective July 1, 2022, the measures were extended until December 31, 2022. Banks must fully comply with the open currency positions limits by January 1, 2023. Effective May 13, 2022, the BR will not apply until December 31, 2022, measures to banks for non-compliance with the open currency position limits in US dollars and/or euros provided the positions are oppositely directed (a long position versus a short position and vice versa) and have sufficient mutual compensation (the largest in absolute value of the two positions in ruble equivalent should not exceed the smallest by more than 10%). Also, the BR will not apply measures for consequential non-compliance with the total open currency position limit unless such non-compliance exceeds 15 percentage points. This relief will allow banks to carry out internal hedging of opposite open currency positions in US dollars and euros, which will reduce the costs of regulating positions in these currencies with the capital risks to be greatly limited.
On resident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The absolute values of the net open foreign exchange positions (OFXP) of a credit institution in individual foreign currencies and precious metals and the balancing position in rubles for all foreign currencies and precious metals (aggregate OFXP) are limited to 10% of the value of the credit institution's equity (capital). The absolute value of the total of all long (short) net open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution in individual foreign currencies and precious metals is limited to 20% of the value of the credit institution's equity (capital). The OFXP limits are subject to calculation and compliance on a daily basis. Effective August 10, 2023, until December 31, 2023, exceeding the limits of the short OFXP is not considered a violation of the regulatory ratio if it (1) emerges through no fault of the credit organization (as a result of ruble redemption/conversion of foreign exchange assets, provisioning and (or) appreciation of the exchange rates) and (2) is observed for no more than 15 days of operations by the credit organization (of the last 40 days). The calculation of the value of open foreign exchange positions includes balance-sheet assets and liabilities, as well as off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities of a credit institution, the amount (value) of which depends on changes in the exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble set by the BR and/or the prices for precious metals, when a foreign exchange revaluation of these assets (claims) and liabilities has a direct current or deferred impact on the amount of the credit institution's equity (capital) (regardless of the jurisdiction of the counterparty). Open foreign exchange position limits must also be complied with at the level of a banking group.

On nonresident assets and liabilities	Yes.	The absolute values of the net open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution in individual foreign currencies and precious metals and the balancing position in rubles for all foreign currencies and precious metals are limited to 10% of the value of the credit institution's equity (capital). The absolute value of the total of all long (short) net open foreign exchange positions of a credit institution in individual foreign currencies and precious metals is limited to 20% of the value of the credit institution's equity (capital). The limits are subject to calculation and observance on a daily basis. The calculation of the value of open foreign exchange positions includes balance-sheet assets and liabilities, as well as off-balance-sheet claims and liabilities of a credit institution, the amount (value) of which depends on changes in the exchange rates of foreign currencies against the ruble set by the BR and/or the prices for precious metals, when a foreign exchange revaluation of these assets (claims) and liabilities has a direct current or deferred impact on the amount of the credit institution's equity (capital) (regardless of the jurisdiction of the counterparty). Open foreign exchange position limits must also be observed at the level of a banking group.
Provisions specific to institutional investors	Yes.	Temporary measures, including regulatory forbearance, by the BR to ensure financial stability and continuity of operations of financial institutions under conditions of materialization of sanctions risks are published on the official website of the BR.
Insurance companies	Yes.	Restrictions apply to certain types of activities of insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital of over 49%, other than insurance companies that were subsidiaries of foreign investors on the date Federal Law No. 234-FZ of July 23, 2013, went into effect, if they were previously authorized for such activity. Thus, said insurance companies may not provide personal life, health, or property insurance in Russia at the expense of funds allocated for these purposes from the respective budget to federal executive government authorities (insured parties); insurance related to the procurement of goods, work, and services to meet state and municipal needs; or insurance for the property interests of government and municipal organizations. A quota of 50% is set on foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies pursuant to Federal Law No. 267-FZ of December 25, 2012. If this percentage is exceeded, the insurance supervisory authority stops issuing licenses for the performance of insurance activities to insurance companies that are subsidiaries of foreign investors or have a foreign ownership stake in their authorized capital over 49%. As of January 1, 2023, the stake by foreign capital in the authorized capital of insurance companies with an insurance license was 9.58% (the BR calculates and publishes this indicator on its official website on an annual basis in accordance with Article 6, paragraph 3, of Law No. 4015-1). Insurance companies must obtain authorization for the following: (1) an increase in their authorized capital from funds of foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries and (2) transfers of shares (equity stakes in authorized capital) to a foreign investor (including for sale to foreign investors). Russian shareholders (stakeholders) must obtain authorization to transfer their shares (equity stakes) to foreign investors and/or their subsidiaries. The BR will deny prior authorization if the stake (quota) of foreign ownership in the authorized capital of insurance companies exceeds 50%.

Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	BR Regulation No. 781-P became effective January 1, 2023. In addition to of insurance risks assumed by an insurer (the regulatory solvency margin), BR Regulation No. 781-P also takes into account the volume of risks assumed by an insurer in connection with its investment activity. An assessment of the impact of risks is performed for a one-year horizon, and it is estimated as the aggregate impact of concentration risk, the risk of a change in the credit spread, the risk of a change in interest rates, the risk of a change in share value, the risk of a change in the foreign exchange rate, the risk of a change in real estate prices, credit risk, and the risk of a change in prices for other assets. According to Paragraph 2.2. of Regulation No. 781-P, target assets for investment in the case of the equity of an insurance company and insurance reserve funds of insurers must meet the following requirements: 2.2.1. The issuers of the securities must be created in accordance with the legislation of Russia or foreign states that are members of the EAEU, the OECD, or the European Union, or China, India, Brazil, or South Africa; 2.2.2. The items, other than certificated bonds and shares, must be located (physically held) within Russia. Regulation No. 781-P does not impose any direct restriction on the size of the overseas investment portfolio for insurance organizations. As long as the insurer complies with the regulatory capital to incurred liabilities ratio, it is entitled to invest in any assets. Effective January 1, 2023, in line with the decision by the Board of Directors of the BR, the value of shares and bonds, units of foreign investment funds that are issued by (or make liable) a resident of a non-friendly country, not accounted for as part of the insurer's assets as of February 25, 2022, as well as claims to residents of non-friendly countries (except for the reinsurers' share in reserves) are recognized as equal to zero in determining the value of assets of the insurer that made a decision to pay dividends after January 1, 2023. If the insurer has not decided to pay dividends after January 1, 2023, it will amortize the value of the above assets over 10 years. The policy is set forth in the regulation on a permanent basis in the BR's Directive No. 6513-U of August 21, 2023, on Amendments to the Regulation of the BR No. 781-P of November 16, 2021, on Financial Soundness and Solvency Requirements for Insurers.

Limits (min.) on investment portfolio held locally	No.	There are no minimum requirements for investments locally.
Currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition	No.	There are no net currency-matching regulations on assets/liabilities composition. There is only an overall indirect indicator – the regulatory ratio of equity (capital) to liabilities assumed by an insurance company, which takes into account foreign exchange risk.
Pension funds	Yes.
Limits (max.) on securities issued by nonresidents	Yes.	For nonstate pension funds carrying the mandatory pension insurance, (1) assets denominated in a foreign currency must make up no more than 30% of the value of the investment portfolio and (2) securities of international financial institutions, as well as participation units (shares, stakes) of foreign index investment funds (including securities expected to be obtained and/or subject to transfer under the second part of a repurchase agreement) must, together, constitute no more than 20% of the value of the investment portfolio. The total share accounted for by bonds of foreign states, securities of international financial institutions, bonds of foreign issuers, shares of foreign issuers, and units (shares, stakes) of foreign investment funds may constitute no more than 30% of pension reserves (resources intended for fulfilling obligations under voluntary insurance agreements).
Limits (max.) on investment portfolio held abroad	Yes.	For nonstate pension funds carrying the mandatory pension insurance, (1) assets denominated in a foreign currency must make up no more than 30% of the value of the investment portfolio and (2) securities of international financial institutions, as well as participation units (shares, stakes) of foreign index investment funds (including securities expected to be obtained and/or subject to transfer under the second part of a repurchase agreement) must, together, constitute no more than 20% of the value of the investment portfolio. Digital Currencies and Crypto Assets

Circulation of domestic central bank digital currency (CBDC)—retail and/or wholesale	No.
Retail	No.	As of August 1, 2023, Federal Law No. 339-FZ on Amending Articles 128 and 140 of Part One, Part Two and Articles 1,128 and 1,174 of Part Three of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation and Federal Law No. 340-FZ on Amending Certain Laws of the Russian Federation introduced the Digital Ruble, transactions with which are conducted on the Digital Ruble Platform. The digital ruble is recognized as the currency of Russia. The BR serves as the operator of the Digital Ruble Platform. Both individuals and legal entities can become users of the platform. Users interact with the Digital Ruble Platform through credit organizations who are participants of the platform, rather than directly with the platform operator. Individuals and legal entities may access the Digital Ruble Platform through the remote banking system of any credit organization that is a member of the platform, where they have a bank account or a personalized electronic means of payment. User may top up their digital ruble balance by transferring funds from their account or personalized electronic means of payment. Currently, the Digital Ruble Platform is being piloted on a limited number of users and participants of the Digital Ruble Platform. The pilot includes C2C, C2B transactions, and simple smart contracts.
Wholesale	No.
CBDC launched by another jurisdiction in circulation—retail and/or wholesale	Yes.	The legislation of Russia defines the digital currency of a foreign central bank as the national monetary unit of a foreign state (group of foreign states) issued in digital form by the national central bank of a foreign state (group of foreign states) or other body of a foreign state (group of foreign states), whose functions include the issue of such monetary units, a unit that is in circulation and is a legal tender on the territory of the respective foreign country and is recognized as a foreign currency. Therefore, central bank digital currency (CBDC) introduced by another jurisdiction and currently in circulation faces requirements on the territory of Russia that are identical to those applied to foreign currency in terms of foreign exchange regulation and foreign exchange control.
Retail	Yes.	Legislation on foreign exchange regulation and foreign exchange control does not provide for the division of CBDC into retail and wholesale. Therefore, both wholesale and retail CBDC, which was introduced in another jurisdiction and is currently in circulation, fall under the definition of foreign currency pursuant to Federal Law No. 173-FZ of December 10, 2003, on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control.
Wholesale	Yes.	Legislation on foreign exchange regulation and foreign exchange control does not provide for the division of CBDC into retail and wholesale. Therefore, both wholesale and retail CBDC, which was introduced in another jurisdiction and is currently in circulation, fall under the definition of foreign currency pursuant to Federal Law No. 173-FZ of December 10, 2003, on Foreign Exchange Regulation and Foreign Exchange Control.
Controls on the use of domestic CBDC—retail and/or wholesale	Yes.	Legislation provides for a limited list of authorized types of transactions with the digital ruble: (1) transfer of digital rubles; (2) increasing the balance of digital rubles by transferring funds from bank (correspondent) accounts or decreasing the balance of electronic money, with personalized or corporate electronic means of Digital currency is defined as a set of electronic data (digital code or designation) stored in an information system, which is offered and (or) may be accepted as a means of payment other than the official monetary unit of Russia, a monetary unit of a foreign state and (or) an international monetary or settlement unit, and (or) as an investment, and in respect of which there is no person accountable to each holder of such electronic data, except for the operator and (or) nodes of the information system that must ensure compliance of the issuance procedures of these electronic data and actions to make (modify) entries in this information system with its own rules. Therefore, unbacked tokens fall under the definition of digital currency.

Controls on unbacked tokens	Yes.	Russian law prohibits the acceptance of digital currency as consideration for goods, services, or work by Russian legal entities or stand-alone branches of international organizations and foreign legal entities established on the territory of Russia, as well as by individuals who stay on the territory of Russia for at least 183 days within 12 consecutive months. Currently, bills are being drafted to regulate the digital currencies market and mining activities. Pursuant to Article 14, Part 4 of Federal Law No. 259-FZ of July 31, 2020, on Digital Financial Assets, Digital Currency and on Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation, activities to arrange for an issuance and (or) the issuance itself, activities to maintain circulation of digital currency in Russia are regulated in line with federal laws. However, federal laws to regulate these activities have not yet been adopted. Controls over the purchase of unbacked tokens are part of the AML/CFT framework. In particular, credit organizations must identify cases of transfers of cash, electronic funds between individuals using payment cards, and other electronic means of payment via the Internet to conduct transactions at cryptocurrency exchange offices that may fall under the framework.
Acquisition by residents	No.	AML/CFT regulations apply.
Use among residents	Yes. Domestic exchanges	Yes.	There are no provisions in the legislation of Russia regulating the operations of exchanges related to the exchange of cryptocurrencies. Circulation of utility digital rights is regulated by Federal Law No. 259FZ, of August 2, 2019, on Fundraising via Investment Platforms and on Amendments to Certain Laws of the Russian Federation. The laws of Russia have introduced the concepts of the Information System Operator and the Digital Financial Asset Exchange Operator, which organize the circulation of digital financial assets. The BR exercises supervision over the activities of Information System Operators that issue digital financial assets (DFAs), and over Digital Financial Asset Exchange Operators. Services in the DFA market on issuance and execution of transactions with DFAs are provided by dedicated organizations only (Information System Operator and DFA Exchange Operator), listed in the specific registers of the BR.
Access to crypto exchange/trading platform by residents	No.	There are no provisions in the legislation of Russia regulating the operations of exchanges related to the exchange of cryptocurrencies. Services on issuance and execution of transactions with DFAs are available to registered users only. User registration rules (identification, setting up a personal account, etc.) may be found in the Information System Rules of the Information System Operator and the DFA Exchange Rules.
